The Water Front Case On.

Now Will Come the Final Test.

A Brilliant Array of Attorneys at the Bar.

Great Interest Being Expressed in the Litigation.

The Southern Pacific and the State Are Pitted.

Special to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—One of the most important cases of the year was taken up in the United States Supreme Court today.

It involves the validity of the title of the Southern Pacific Company to the water front of Oakland, Cal.

The grant was originally made in 1852 to the town of Oakland, then a mere hamlet, of a large tract of land extending from high water mark to ship channel, to enable the town (which was incorporated in the same act) to create a harbor and construct wharves.

This grant was conveyed to Horace W. Carpentier by the Trustees of the town on his agreement to perform certain conditions required of the town by the granting of an act of the Legislature.

Controversies arose between Carpentier and the authorities of Oakland after its incorporation as a city in 1854.

Claims were all adjusted in 1868 under the authority which the Legislature conferred on the City Council and Mayor for the purpose.

From Carpentier the title now attacked by the State of California was transferred to the Railroad Company.

The present suit is brought to quiet title.

For the State of California appeared Attorney General Hart and A. R. Colton of California.

For the Southern Pacific appeared H. T. Brown of California, Senator Stewart of Nevada, Representative-elect Cowan of Maryland and ex-Assistant Attorney General J. Hubley Ashton of Washington.

The city of Oakland is represented by James A. Johnson, William R. Davis, W. L. Hill and E. J. Pringle.

AS FROM THE GRAVE.

A Startling Scene in the Morgue at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., December 19.—George H. Barbour, a young insurance clerk, supposed to have been murdered at Paua, Ill., walked into the morgue today, where half a dozen associates had gathered to identify the body.

Barbour's father was present and an affecting scene followed.

The body of a young man found buried near the railroad track at Paua had been fully identified by the father as that of his son.

Young Barbour refused to say anything regarding his disappearance on Thanksgiving Day.

NOW HE MUST PAY UP.

Lee Danner Found Guilty of Wronging Miss Sinkard.

VISALIA, Cal., December 19.—The jury in the case of the People versus Lee Danner, charged with the seduction of Laura Sinkard of White River, on a promise of marriage, rendered a verdict this morning of guilty.

The case was sensational and occupied fourteen days on trial.

The defendant was found guilty on the first ballot.

Defendant is now a resident of Kings county, well-to-do, and prominent.

NATIONAL NEWS

A Lot of Important Business Before Congress.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill Is Under Debate.

Spirited Talking in the House Regarding the Currency.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—Immediately upon the convening of the Senate, the Vice President laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting the report of Admiral Walker on the subject of Hawaii, which the Senate called for by resolution.

The letter and report were referred without discussion, to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Pasco of Florida reported from the Committee on Public Lands the bill extending the act relating to abandoned military reservations. Passed without division.

A resolution was introduced by Allen of Nebraska providing for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the political affairs of Alabama, which at his request was laid on the table in order that he might submit some remarks on it later.

He also introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the Senate restaurant.

Allen was about to speak on this matter, when Hale of Maine interposed an objection to its immediate consideration and it went over.

Bate of Tennessee called up the bill to establish a national military park at the battlefield of Shiloh. The bill was passed.

The resolution offered yesterday by Lodge, calling on the President for the correspondence in the Ezeta extradition case, was passed without division.

The Senate then took up the Nicaraguan Canal bill.

Turpie, who had the floor when the Senate adjourned yesterday, yielded to Cullom.

It was remarkable, Cullom thought, that the world had submitted to delay so long in the construction of a canal, the building of which was regarded as a commercial necessity.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at the meeting today decided to report favorably on the Japanese treaty at the next executive session of the Senate.

THE HOUSE.

The Debate Continues on the Currency Bill.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—As soon as the regular routine had been disposed of today on motion of Springer the House went into executive session and debate on the Currency bill was resumed.

Johnson of Indiana, one of the members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, opened with a vigorous speech in opposition to the Carlisle bill.

Admitting the defects of our currency system he said perfection could not be obtained by the passage of a bill along the lines suggested by the Banking and Currency Committee.

It was much easier to attack the present system than to offer a substitute.

The present system had given the country back the currency which enabled the Government to carry on the war and produced a market for our bonds in the hour of danger and peril.

The currency it produced had never been questioned.

This was no time for experimental legislation. There is no need for indecent speed.

Rev. Dr. Wetzell at Christian Church.

Rev. Dr. Wetzell, the popular pastor of the church at Woodland, will preach tonight at the First Christian Church, corner Thirteenth and Market streets. He will attend also the supper and old-fashioned sociable tomorrow night at the church. A reception to all the converts of the late Martin meeting is the occasion of the supper and sociable. The public is invited. Dr. Wetzell is the guest of Rev. Dr. Sweeney at the Crellin Hotel.

Suspect George Rae Under a Hot Fire.

Eye-Witnesses Tell the Story of the Robbery.

The preliminary examination of George Rae, charged with robbing Secretary Gilson of the Judson Iron Works of $15,000, was resumed this morning before Justice Shaw in Judge Clift's courtroom.

The room was packed with spectators, and the atmosphere was thick enough to be cut with a knife.

The prisoner was brought into court by Constable Page, and took a seat beside his counsel, H. W. Aldrich.

The State was represented by Assistant District Attorney Church.

Before the proceedings closed yesterday afternoon some very important testimony came out.

The suspect in Sacramento, was, in the estimation of Secretary Gilson, six feet tall, or two inches taller than he supposed the robber to be. If the defendant should be placed against the wall and should measure six feet, it would not convince the witness that the defendant is not the taller of the two robbers.

Witness was also called to identify men who worked in the Judson works and resided in San Francisco, but without satisfactory results.

He then told of his examination of Glover and son in the County Jail, the son having been arrested on suspicion of being the black man, but witness was unable to identify him. He did not know of any others whom he had been called on to identify as the robbers.

First saw the defendant, to be positive of the identification, about a week ago. Would not swear that he had not seen him before. If he did see him before that time, it was when the defendant stood him up on the train.

The defendant then stood up for examination, and witness said that the prisoner is a trifle taller than the one who robbed him.

On redirect examination, Gilson stated that the defendant bears a stronger resemblance to the tall robber than any of the suspects he examined. Rae resembled the robber in the general appearance of his face.

On re-crose-examination, he said the small robber was about 5 feet 8 inches, sturdily built, dark complexion, dark around the eyes and would weigh probably 150 pounds.

Assistant District Attorney Church then took the witness again and elicited from him that the face of the Sacramento suspect bore a general resemblance to the face of the robber with the linen duster.

AN EYE WITNESS' TESTIMONY.

James R. Campbell of 1917 Tenth street, Sacramento, testified that he was on the train at the time of the robbery.

"Did you see the defendant on the train?" asked Mr. Church.

"I did," was the answer.

"Under what circumstances did you see him?"

"I saw him in connection with that gentleman" (indicating Mr. Gilson).

Rae's face flushed as the witness made this statement.

"I first saw the defendant when he was making Gilson hold up his hands. He came in with another man. The other man had a darkened face, but I could see under the black that the man had a light complexion. The other man had an overall suit. Gilson had at least one sack apparently full of money. The defendant made Gilson throw up his hands by putting a six-shooter in his face. The man with the dark face had a gun pointed at Gilson also. Gilson then handed the money to the taller robber. I took a six-shooter out of my hip pocket. I took it out to shoot that man (indicating Rae), but I put it in my coat pocket again without shooting, because I took the matter under consideration. The man with the overalls walked out of the car, and the defendant backed out, holding the money bag in one hand and the revolver in the other. When he got near the door he put money and gun in one hand and raised up his hat with his left hand."

The witness described this occurrence as taking place some distance from the station. He described the flight of the robbers as has already been told many times.

He was asked if he could identify the defendant.

Witness stood up in a somewhat excited manner and replied, "I can swear to it before God, man and the devil, because I saw him on the train. He looks just as he did the day on the train, except that his face is not so full as it was then, and that he had a mustache which was lighter in color than his hair, and that he had what I call a 'County Antrim' on the right side of his face."

The term "County Antrim" was meant to designate a small side whisker.

At this moment Rae subjected the witness to a very sharp, piercing gaze. The witness noticed the stare and returned it with interest, saying at the same time to the prisoner: "I can look you in the face, my friend, because I've seen you before."

From the moment Campbell testified that he identified Rae, the expression of the defendant's face became very serious. He seemed to think that things were getting a little too warm to be smiled at as he had been doing during the greater part of Gilson's testimony.

On cross-examination Campbell admitted that he had been subpœnaed by a constable of Judge Cliff's court, but that he did not see the defendant until he (witness) came into the court in the morning and the prisoner was pointed out to him.

The story was again gone over but not a change was made in the recital.

He had never, he said, been called before to identify a robber in this case.

He believed that the mustache and side-whiskers worn by the defendant were false.

The description which he gave Captain Lees of the tall robber was that of a man 44 or 45 years old, dark hair, weight 160 pounds, about 5 feet, 10 inches, with a long grey duster.

Could not say that the short man had had a mustache on board. He would weigh 160 pounds and was about 5 feet 7 inches in height. As he threw up his head witness could see that a part of his neck was not blackened and the "Adam's apple" in his throat appeared very prominently.

Witness had worked as a car conductor, but could not tell whether not at the time of the robbery he was a conductor or an expressman.

Never spoke to French on the subject of identifying the accused and did not know that French had anything to do in the matter until he (the witness) came to the court.

The cross-examination continued and the attorney got the witness to partially admit that he had not heard the voice of either the tall or short man before the robbery and yet witness claimed that it was the voice of the tall man he had heard issuing the order to throw up the hands. The attorney then asked how witness knew which of the two men had issued the order.

"By common sense," exclaimed the witness, rising up on the stand.

"You did not see their faces?" suggested the attorney.

"I did see the faces. I saw part of them when they were looking around the car and watching. I saw it was the tall man who issued the order because of his actions, just as I would know from my own action if, when you were on the police force, I should walk up to you and run a gun into your face," pointing his finger like an imaginary gun at Mr. Aldrich.

"I'd break your jaw," said Mr. Aldrich, evidently nettled at the familiarity displayed by the witness.

"You would not break me jaw," defiantly responded the witness, "because, although you are a bigger man than I am, I could knock you out."

Aldrich glowered at Campbell, and for a time it looked as if there was to be trouble, but the thing quieted down and the cross-examination was resumed.

Campbell said he knew from the manner in which Rae was filled out around the breast that he had steel plates inside to protect him.

The cross-examination closed without Campbell's testimony being shaken.

He was subpœnaed by the defense to testify for them as he left the stand, and was ordered to report in court until wanted.

THE BRAKEMAN'S STORY.

J. J. Rivers, residing at the corner of Second and Harrison streets, was the first witness for the State today. He was formerly a brakeman on the Berkeley local. He was on the train on which the robbery took place on June 11, 1892. He was going, he said, to Berryman station and was riding in the "third car from the engine. He was on the platform. When the train reached B street station he got off. Saw one man with a linen duster get off first. The man was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and would weigh about 175 pounds. He had on a brown felt hat and had a drooping mustache. He ran to a buggy which was hitched to a telegraph pole. The buggy had a top. The horse hitched to it was a dark one. The top was down and the outfit looked like a country rig.

Witness went on to state that when the train left the pier, the man with the duster was sitting in the third seat from the rear of the end of the train. The man with the duster was facing the engine. Witness was attracted by the duster. He took a look at the man's face. Saw Secretary Gilson on the car but further forward in the car. Gilson had two seats turned toward one another. He was accompanied by Mortenson. One faced the other. There were two sacks in the seat beside Mortenson. There was also a man with a black face. Witness had seen him at the pier before the train left and thought he recognized him as an acquaintance and spoke to him. Witness thought, because of the man's blackened face that the latter had been at work at the coal bunkers. He did not see him again until the blackened man got off the train at B street with the man with the duster. Both the black man and the man with the duster walked leisurely toward the buggy, got into it and rode away. The tall man carried a revolver in his right hand down by his side and had one of the sacks of money in his left. The black man carried a revolver and sack in the same manner. Witness at the time did not think that any person had been robbed. When he heard the shooting he supposed that some person was shooting at the sea gulls. Witness said he could hardly identify the tall man if he should see him again, because he took only a passing glance at him as he was going away.

Witness then was directed to look at the defendant Rea and tell whether or not he was the man who he had seen in the duster. He replied that the defendant resembled the man in the duster, with the exception that on the day of the robbery the tall man had a mustache.

Nothing important was elicited in the cross-examination.

AN EYE-WITNESS' STORY.

The next witness was Mrs. M. Lewis, who resides at 1807 Ninth street, San Francisco. She was also a passenger on the train on which the robbery was committed. She said that before she would give her testimony she desired to know who was to pay her expenses to this city. She said she had come here at some expense, and occasionally herself a great deal of trouble to comply with the subpœna.

Judge Shaw said he would give her an order on the Auditor after her evidence had been taken.

Mrs. Lewis testified that on the day of the robbery she took the 11 o'clock Berkeley local at the pier. When she was going aboard she had been pulled back, she said, by a man in a new overall jumper and a black face. The man with the black face was accompanied by another man in a long duster. She also saw Mr. Gilson get on the train with another man, each carrying a bag which seemed to contain money. Witness was accompanied by another woman, to whom she pointed out Gilson and his companion with their bags of money.

She said she thought Gilson and his friend were going to the races and that the moneys they had in the sacks was to be used in the pools. Witness stood on the platform of the car behind that in which Gilson was seated, and as she was about to enter the car in which was Gilson the man in the jumper and the black face pulled her back a second time, entered the car and took a seat behind Gilson. When the train reached B-street station there was a commotion. People rushed out of the car containing Mr. Gilson and told her for God's sake to get out of the way because they were going to shoot inside. At that moment the black man and the tall man

Responsibility Placed Where It Belongs.

The Long List of Defeats Now Demand Prompt Action.

SHANGHAI, December 19.—Local papers state that an imperial decree was issued December 17th for the arrest and handing over to the Board of Punishment of Taoti Kung, General Wai Wu Chang, Tung Sshin, Chiang Kurte and Ching Yuan, for losing Port Arthur; Tsao Hua Ye, commander at Talien Wong, for cowardice; Wie Wu Kwei, commander of ship, for incapacity to control his men and permitting them to pillage Ko Yeh; Chie Chav, commander-in-chief in Chihli, for sending false reports of victories, whereas he retreated from Yashan and lost Ping Yang and Anchow, and Admiral Ting, for failing to protect Port Arthur and for cowardice.

It is reported that the authorities refused passports to detachments of Russian marines sent to guard the legation of Russia.

THE JAPANESE MOVEMENTS.

YOKOHAMA, December 19.—The first Japanese army under the command of Field Marshal Nolan (Field Marshal Yamagata having been invalided home) is operating from Chien Lan Cheng, with detachments thrown out towards New Chwang and Moukden.

Little headway is being made.

The country is difficult to traverse and the enemy is making resistance.

It appears the first army is not anxious to get to Chwang or Shanghai Kwang, before the other forces are ready to strike Tien Tsin.

A searching official inquiry is being made into the Port Arthur atrocities.

LONDON, December 19.—A dispatch to the Times from Shanghai says: In view of China's refusal to permit foreign guards to enter Pekin, the various diplomats of that city are combining for local defense should the occasion arise.

A PROTEST.

Interests Below Seventh Street Are Affected.

Objections Are Raised to the Proposed Gates.

A Meeting Is to Be Held Tonight at the Courthouse.

Editor Tribune—SIR: The ordinances which are introduced in the City Council providing for the use of gates on Seventh street and other railway street crossings in the city of Oakland have provoked much discussion and adverse criticism, particularly among the residents and property owners south of Seventh street, who view the ordinances as another blow against their business interests, and as erecting what they denominate a dead-line between them and the more northerly portion of the city. They have been, since the advent of the cars on Seventh street, in a manner cut off from the main business portion of the city by the double tracks on that street, which have greatly reduced the travel south of that line and consequently laid an embargo upon merchants and business men located in that district.

This was a severe blow to parties who had invested their money in real estate and business enterprises south of the track and one which should not have been permitted nor continued now if there is any power in the authorities of the city to push the Seventh street line to First street. This course would also remove the causes which induce members of the City Council to take up the question of gating the streets at that point, as very few streets intersect the railroad track on First street, whereas upwards of forty streets intersect the Seventh street line.

We are not sufficiently skilled in the legal aspect of the matter to be able to venture an opinion as to the power of the city authorities to effect this change, but we feel satisfied that the interests of the public are always paramount to those either of private persons or corporations, and that what the public welfare demands can generally be accommodated by legal means. This being the general rule, we are unable to discern any good reason for making the Seventh street line an exception to it, as there can scarcely be any question that the interests of the city, both from the standpoint of safety and business, would be greatly promoted if this change was effected.

But to return to the gates. The ordinances providing for their establishment have wrought up a fury in the southern district, and a meeting of the property owners and residents of that locality has been called at the Courthouse this evening to give voice and direction to public sentiment upon the question, at which meeting, no doubt, the subject in all its phases will be fully ventilated.

We are not aware of all the grounds of objection to the gates which these residents entertain, but from many expressions upon the street the opinion seems to be general that the erecting of the gates on each side of the street, at its intersection with the cross streets, will create an additional barrier, or what is termed a dead-line, completely shutting out the people south of Seventh street from the principal part of the city, and raising up, as it were, a more formidable division between the two sections than that which is created by the tracks themselves. This is the view entertained from a standpoint of interest, and it would seem that there is much force and reason upon which to base it.

THE PROTECTIVE POINT.

From the standpoint of protection, we are very doubtful that the necessities of the case are sufficient to justify the erection of the gates, and more especially that the gates would secure the results contemplated by the authors of the measure. It must be borne in mind that Seventh street is not exclusively used by the railroad company, but serves the purpose of a public street as well, and many instances may, and doubtless will occur, if the gates are erected, when persons driving on Seventh street in the face of an approaching train with fractious or frightened animals will be cut off by the gates from any avenue of escape from the dangers and perils of their position, and thus the gates may become a death-trap, rather than instruments for protection.

It is our opinion that the dangers from this course are quite as imminent and pressing as that to be anticipated by vehicles on the streets, especially if the city ordinances require flagmen to be stationed on all dangerous crossings in the city. However, these matters, of course, are all the subject of consideration and intelligent action by the City Council, who will no doubt be governed in the matter by what they consider to be for the best interests of the people; but as the use of gates has never been tried in Oakland, it would seem to be dictated by ordinary prudence that the experiment be inaugurated by the compulsion of a limited number in localities of extraordinary hazard, and ascertain their practical efficacy and utility before requiring their construction throughout the entire city.

This course would meet the approval of the whole people, and could not be seriously opposed by the railroad company, whereas to require the assessment to be made to the extent of the gating of all crossings in the city would be the infliction of an extraordinary expense in case they should prove to be less potential than expected by their promoters.

ANTI-DEADLINE.

KELLY IS DEAD.

The Well-known Irish-American Passes Away.

How He Rose From Poverty to Great Wealth.

The Foundation of His Fortune Was Laid in the West.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Eugene Kelly, the banker, died today, aged 87.

Kelly was born in Treblick, county Tyrone, Ireland, and at the age of 20 came to this country.

His first position was that of clerk in Donnelly Brothers' drygoods store in this city.

He tried gold mining in 1849, and later started the San Francisco banking house of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston.

During the war he moved his business to New York and lost considerable in Southern loans.

In spite of this, however, he amassed money at a great rate until, when he retired from active business a few years ago, he was reputed to be worth from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

His pocket book was always open to any fund intended for the benefit of the Irish movement.

After W. C. Ralston withdrew from the banking firm of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston and started the Bank of California, the firm name was changed to Donohoe, Kelly & Co. In 1868 Kelly returned to New York and established a branch bank under the firm name of Eugene Kelly & Co. The bank enjoyed public confidence in a marked degree and tided safely over every financial crisis which it encountered.

He remained in active banking life for fifty years, severing his connection with the Donohoe-Kelly Banking Company of San Francisco less than a year ago and retiring from the management of his bank in New York in favor of his son, to seek rest and health in the mild climate of Florida. He leaves two sons, who succeed him in the banking house of Eugene Kelly & Co.

IT NEED.

Distress Must Be Relieved.

Gloom Reigns in Many a Home.

Make the Poor Happy on Christmas Day.

Send in a Donation to "The Tribune's" Relief Fund.

Donations continue to pour into THE TRIBUNE'S Christmas Relief Bureau for the aid of the poor during the Christmas holidays.

It is expected that these donations will continue and be increased during the few days, so that there will be quite a large stock of assorted goods, with which to make the destitute happy at least during this gladsome period of the year.

Any person who knows how really miserable many of the residents of this city are can withhold a slight contribution [illegible] clothing, which can easily be spared, with the certainty of relieving the wretchedness of their fellow man or woman.

Any goods sent to the Bureau, 482 Eighth street, will be cheerfully received and acknowledged in the columns of this paper.

This has been stormy weather, but several donations have been received at the bureau.

A poor woman called and handed in fifty cents. She declined to give her name, but finally said that the management could characterize the donation as "the widow's mite."

Cotton Brothers sent in three bags of fine potatoes.

Paulan & Fish, the grocers and produce dealers, contributed a fine ham.

Supervisor J. D. Johnston sent in an unusually large sack of potatoes.

WANTS TO SEE HIS MOTHER.

So Desperado Newell Surrenders in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 19.—Ted Newell, the young Colorado desperado, who in October last broke jail in Denver, where he was incarcerated under charges of train wrecking, highway robbery, burglary and assault to murder, surrendered himself to the San Francisco police this morning and will be taken back to Denver.

"The reason I surrender," he explained, "is that my poor old mother is in Denver and I want to see her before she dies."

LOOKS LIKE A FIGHT.

Litigants Have Trouble in Judge Allen's Court.

A lively personal encounter was with difficulty averted in Judge Allen's court room this morning.

The case of Farwell & Sons against Harry Richards to recover $79 99 for money loaned and goods purchased was set for 11 o'clock.

While waiting for the case to be called the elder Farwell and Richards engaged in a discussion. The latter claimed Farwell had cheated him out of some money. Farwell angrily called his tormentor a liar. Richards sprang to his feet and attempted to strike his enemy, but several attorneys stepped in and forced him to his seat till he cooled down.

BLAMES HIS WIFE.

W. B. Porter Defends Himself in Court.

W. B. Porter of Fruit Vale, who has been arrested, on complaint of his wife, for failure to provide for his little child, appeared in the Police Court this morning, and his case was set for January 3, 1895. Porter claims his arrest is due to spite work on the part of his wife, and that when he married her he possessed $2500. Against his wife's wishes he invested it and lost it all. She then sued for a divorce and, to "rub it in," had him arrested on the present charge.

A Ship Ashore.

PORTLAND, Or., December 19.—News has reached here that the schooner Mary Gilbert, Captain Dodge, from San Francisco to Alsea Bay for lumber, went ashore on the night of the 15th inst. just inside the entrance to Alsea bay. She will probably be a total loss.

A Lonely End.

John Gallagher, a native of Ireland, 45 years old, was taken in an unconscious condition from a garret at the corner of Franklin and Seventh streets yesterday, and died at the Receiving Hospital last night. He is supposed to have a sister residing at San Jose. He will be buried by the county.

A Constable After Fees.

John Hines, Frank Williams and John Dao were arrested at the Sixteenth street depot last night by a Deputy Constable, on charge of evading payment of railroad fare.

"Did you [illegible]?"

"No, [illegible]."

"You [illegible] of Mrs. Lemon's finances. You [illegible] mentioned the matter to her. Did you think that necessary?"

"I did not think there was necessity to have a [illegible] for the purpose of Mrs. Lemon. I did not [illegible] to give [illegible] to her. I [illegible] necessary for [illegible] to [illegible] the room with me."

"Yes, I [illegible]."

"Well, I [illegible] private matter, [illegible] spiritualism."

"Is Mrs. Lemon [illegible]?"

"I think [illegible]."

Mrs. Mary [illegible] was the next witness called. She [illegible] Mrs. Lemon in her [illegible] and was intimately acquainted with her.

"She [illegible] was a very strong woman physically," [illegible] never saw her [illegible] that she was sane [illegible] spiritualism. [illegible] what Mrs. Lemon [illegible] were, she was a [illegible] and a [illegible] of [illegible].

"Is [illegible] you?"

"[illegible]."

"Is she [illegible]?"

"[illegible]."

"Is she [illegible] to-day?"

"[illegible]."

"Is she [illegible] to-day?"

"[illegible]."

"Have your [illegible] with her [illegible] conversations with [illegible]?"

"I [illegible] that I [illegible] person who [illegible] communications, and [illegible] and take on [illegible], so you?"

"I believe that [illegible] understood the law it was a [illegible]."

"Do you [illegible]?"

"I have never [illegible]."

"Then you [illegible] that [illegible] has been read [illegible] on the [illegible] desk, no one [illegible] reappear to [illegible]?"

"I [illegible] that [illegible] Rest [illegible] the dead [illegible] is natural, in the [illegible] spirit [illegible] and draw [illegible] body."

"Can I [illegible] reason a certain medium to do that?"

"I do."

"Then that medium, according to your theory, must be a person who possesses supernatural power?"

"I think there is [illegible] supernatural. I think [illegible]."

"Yes, I see [illegible] it is a part of your philosophy. Then you will say powers else than to [illegible]."

"Of course if [illegible] power, I believe there is no other [illegible] outside of the divine power."

"Do you believe in different degrees of divine power?"

"I do, most [illegible]."

"You believe that a person, through a medium, can get communication with various spirits that have [illegible]?"

"Of course if we can communicate with one another on this plane we certainly can [illegible] we [illegible]."

"Is there such a thing as conversing with [illegible]?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can you see them?"

"Yes, sir. I see them all around this room now."

"What do you see, sir?"

"What does [illegible]?"

The witness [illegible] her theory and said that she could see one and that was what she meant.

The witness never heard Mrs. Lemon say that the spirit of an Indian chief perched on her bed and kept her awake all night, or that the spirit of her dog had followed her around.

SPIRITUALISTS SWORN.

James H. Swift was next called and said he had been a [illegible] since 1850. He knew Mrs. Lemon and said his views were not unlike the [illegible] spiritualists.

COURT NOTES.

Matters Brought Before the Superior Judges.

The suit of William Crow Jr. against E. F. Fish, to recover possession of a butcher shop at Thirteenth and Washington streets, is on trial before Judge Frick. Crow claims that Fish is unlawfully holding possession of the premises. His attorneys are Colonel Thomas P. Garrity and [illegible] Mayor Chapman.

Mrs. Catherine Pickett's suit against M. C. Fleishman, the cattle man, was this morning transferred from Department 1 to Judge Frick's department for trial. The case is set for January 8th.

Philip E. Riley has applied to the court for letters of administration on the estate of Thomas Riley, who died April 22, 1893. The estate consists of a lot valued at $2000. The heirs are: Mary T. Riley, Florence Riley and Philip E. Riley, sisters and brother of the deceased.

The estate of Jean C. Bogren, deceased, is now in a condition to be closed. Julia Bogren, administratrix of the estate, has petitioned for the distribution of the property.

Public Administrator James Stanley has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late James MoreLouse.

Nathan Hadlock, one of the legatees and devisees under the will of Nancy Lawrence, deceased, denies generally and specifically every allegation made by Mary E. Hill in her contest of the will.

The first account of John Gerber, as guardian of the person and estate of Eliza C. Head, an insane person, has been settled by Judge Frick.

John E. Shane, who, with ex-Mayor N. W. Spaulding, is being sued by the Union Savings Bank, has demurred to the complaint on the general ground that it fails to Pointers About Some Reliable Oakland Firms.

No Occasion to Do Shopping in San Francisco.

The Best of Articles at the Lowest Rates Obtainable Here.

The year 1894 is fast drawing to a close, and with it ends a year which, in many respects, has been the most remarkable for many years in the history of this city.

It was ushered in while the country was groaning under the weight of financial depression. Men with money did not dare to take it from their places of deposit. Enterprises inaugurated had come to a close because of lack of means with which to carry them to a successful termination, and, in fact, there seemed to be, in all parts of the country, an ill-defined dread that there was nothing but discouragement and disaster for them in the future.

While, in common with almost every other place, Oakland felt the effects of the depression, yet, like Minerva, springing from the brain of Jupiter, she came forth armed cap-a-pie, ready to do battle for her rights, and to maintain the position which she had attained by the intelligence and energy of her citizens.

For this reason, Oakland has survived the troublous times. The merchants who were foremost in the mercantile world at the time of the panic, in the main, still retain their places in the confidence of the people. Hundreds of beautiful cottages, substantial and palatial residences have been erected. A larger percentage of artisans than formerly has been kept employed throughout the year. Mercantile institutions have been increased in number, and some of the older ones have been enlarged and beautified, and their patronage extended so that they really rival the rich and long-established institutions on the other side of the bay.

Besides, Oakland has experienced another great advantage, although it may be only an indirect benefit. The territory immediately adjacent to the city limits has attracted thousands of prudent and thrifty residents, nearly all of whom have bought and paid for their homes.

The patronage of these homes on the north, east and west is tributary to Oakland. It means the enrichment of this city, because it is a patronage that is inspired by patriotism. It will not seek in San Francisco what it can find at more reasonable rates in this city. The people in these outlying districts are destined eventually to become citizens of Oakland and, when they do, this city will rank among the populous municipalities in the western country.

SPLENDID TRANSPORTATION.

During the past year, also, there has been aroused in the community a most commendable spirit of public enterprise. This has led to the branching out in many lines of business, and the completion of a system of inter-urban communication by means of some of the finest electric and cable railway systems in the world. Today, more than ever, there is not a town in the county the trade of which is not tributary to Oakland. This was a trade which formerly went to San Francisco.

This year also, more than ever, the people have learned to realize the advantages of a first class theater. It is no longer necessary in order to see a great show to go to San Francisco immediately after dinner and be compelled to remain there until after midnight.

This year also has developed in an extraordinary degree the desire to patronize home industry and home enterprise. It was a difficult undertaking, but it has at length been accomplished. The people have been convinced that Oakland merchants can sell goods as cheaply as those in San Francisco can. Hence the local business of our merchants has increased almost immeasurably. Not only can our home merchants sell as cheap as those in San Francisco, but it is within the knowledge of THE TRIBUNE that they frequently supply San Francisco merchants with the very goods which the latter try to sell back again in this city.

While the prosperity of the city has been appreciated in a general way, it has been felt in a special manner by certain lines of trade.

REAL ESTATE.

There, for instance, is the real estate business. This is a very important element of commercial life. It is a business which should be in the hands, not alone of far-seeing, but also of prudent and conscientious men. Thousands of people have been irretrievably ruined by placing their confidence in and bestowing their money upon unreliable operatives in this line. Persons, therefore, desiring to invest money, should take these facts under consideration, because it may mean a great deal to them. People desiring to purchase land should be encouraged in their investments for the sake not alone of the city, but also because of themselves, as the ownership of the land is the basis of original wealth. More men have become wealthy by sudden appreciation of land values than have been raised to independence by an hundred Wall streets. One of the real estate dealers of this city who answers

MEAT MARKETS.

One of the marvels of the coast to the people who come here from the East is the magnificent display which is made of the meat slaughtered at the various abattoirs here. At all seasons of the year dressed beeves in hundreds may be seen hanging outside the meat markets, presenting a scene which is at once unique and beautiful. Eastern people cannot understand how meat can be cured in this manner, and they pass the highest compliments upon the butchers for the skill and artistic taste which they thus display. Not alone is the meat beautiful in appearance, but it is rich, juicy and wholesome, fit indeed for an American citizen, who is just as good any day in the year as a king. The completeness of Oakland's markets in other respects is not less a source of wonder and admiration. They are kept as neat and clean and pure as the kitchen of one's home. They are presided over by courteous, gentlemanly and cleanly attendants, who succeed almost in anticipating every wish of their customers. During these Christmas holidays these meat markets will make excellent exhibits, and those who desire to verify this statement may easily do so by calling at the palatial Central Market of Fred Becker, 910 Washington street, where Christmas displays are excelled by no person in this line in the country.

ALL KINDS OF TOYS.

Oakland is a city of happy homes. Where there is a city of happy homes it means a city of thousands of happy children. Children are naturally inclined to be happy even under most unforbidding circumstances, but when they are surrounded with the toys and novelties which indulgent parents provide their happiness is unalloyed, and in reality knows no bounds. There are few cities which are better supplied with the means of making little people happy than Oakland. The town is provided with a number of bazars, emporiums and stores, in which the latest designs in simple, improved and scientific toys are provided in thousands. These are bought at liberal prices because the happy homes of Oakland can afford to pay for the latest designs in everything. One of the leading and most reliable places which receives the patronage in his line of everybody is the Grand Rule Bazar at the northeast corner of Ninth and Washington streets.

THE FINEST FURNITURE.

There is not in this part of the world a city whose homes are more luxuriously and more richly furnished. This fact has special reference to the palaces which are to be found on every avenue and on the imposing and beautiful heights which surround the city. It is also true of the humble homes which are found in all parts of the city. In these, while richness does not obtain in the furnishing, there is a substantial and beautiful feature in the household furnishing which is conspicuous by its absence in the homes of other cities. These facts are to be attributed to the management of the furniture houses which are to be found in this city. In them every line of household goods may be obtained, and at prices which cannot be duplicated elsewhere. For this reason, Oakland need not go to San Francisco for its furniture. It does not do it. It makes its purchases at home, and, as a consequence, the money, or a large part of it, remains here. One of the furniture firms which has contributed to and led in bringing about this state of affairs is that of J. L. Lyon & Son, whose metropolitan store is situated in the Albany Hotel, at the corner of Fifteenth street and Broadway.

JEWELRY OF EXCELLENT DESIGN.

The richness of California has been the by-word of nations. Wherever one goes the fame of this Golden State has preceded him. The word California is a synonym for wealth. To say in the hearing of thousands of people abroad that a man is a Californian is to convey the idea that he is a man of means, and as such that he appreciates the precious metals and jewels as a means of personal adornment. The desire to make use of the riches with which nature has endowed him is an evidence of gratitude and refined taste on the part of the Californian, who might otherwise be regarded with lack of appreciation. As a consequence, while California men and women are noted for their love of jewelry, they are also famed for their taste, a taste which can be satisfied only by the most expert workers and dealers in gold and silver and precious stones. This is pre-eminently a characteristic of the people of Oakland, and among those who have led in catering to it for the past thirty years, and who still occupies the same proud position is R. W. Edwards, the well-known jeweler, 963 Broadway.

THE BEST OF HATS.

In the matter of dress the residents of this city are characterized by the same elegance and taste which denote them in every other respect. They will have nothing but the finest, and as a consequence the dealer in gentlemen's goods who attempts to furnish other than the best goes without patronage. But a perfect suit of clothes without a dressy and fashionable hat would be like a king without a sceptre. The important feature of head covering, however, has its votaries here, as evidenced by the dressy hats which one sees worn by the well dressed people of the city. And these in greater part are to be attributed to the enterprise of I.

Warm Encouragement Tendered to Salvini.

"Don Cæsar de Bazan" to Be Given Tonight.

Oakland Theater-Goers Are Getting First-Class Shows.

As "Ruy Blas," Salvini last night showed another phase of his versatility and genius. The character called for the work of a tragedian, and though that line is not as much his forte as comedy, he carried his part well.

It was wet and dreary without, but the Macdonough had another big house and the lights shone on a fashionable an attendance as had occupied the seats on the opening night. The reason for this is easily to be found. Society has not had much of an opportunity to show itself lately, and now that it can, in addition to doing so, participate in a thoroughly first-class entertainment, it is little wonder that it turns out in full force.

The story presented last night is one of Victor Hugo's prettiest efforts. It is of a lackey who loves a queen, and who is, through the intrigue of a court gallant, placed in a position to declare himself. His good fortune, however, finally falls him and he falls from his high place and ends with suicide. Salvini was very effective in the title role and won much hearty, well-merited applause. The rest of the cast was in excellent hands, the make-up being as follows:

Don Salluste, Marquis of Bazan . . . Elmer Delamater
Don Cæsar De Bazan, his cousin . . . William Redmond
Count of Alta . . . Ben Johnson
Count of Camporeal, . . . Dan Basto,
Don Pedro, Don Manuel, Don Prinero, Grandees of Spain, . . . Carl Carmenyee, Henry Leigh, William Travers, Albert Gillam
Guduel, secretary to Don Salluste . . . William Sanders
Sancho, servant to Don Salluste . . . Edmund Day
Gomez, page to Ruy Blas . . . John Knox
An Alcalde . . . Charles Stuart Rusell
An Alguazil . . . Antonio Nasini
Amute . . . Max Mazzanovich
Amute . . . John Smith
Marianna of Neuboirich, exiled Queen of Spain . . . Eleanor Moretti
Donna Cæsilda, maid of honor to the Queen . . . Grace Eddefsen
Courtiers of Alkaparisa, duteuns to the Queen . . . Frank De Forrest
Isabella, attendant to the Queen . . . Jessie Lansing
Ruy Blas . . . Alexander Salvini

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ransome, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Tawales, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hall, Dr. and Mrs. Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lovell, Mr. and Mrs. T. Tonight Salvini will be seen in that charming historical play Don Cæsar de Bazan. It is a favorite with theater goers.

The Oriental.

Thoroughly enjoyable in every way is the vaudeville presented this week at the Oriental. Will Pettingill's famous dog Willie is almost outshone by a trick mule called Mike, who appears with the Burke Brothers. Then there is a clever Spanish dancer called Papita and a host of other equally good attractions.

The People's.

The members of the People's Theater stock company are giving a very artistic production of Tried for Treason this week. The romance and fire of the play is proving just what the patrons want and the big houses nightly tell a tale of appreciation.

Athletic Clubmen Now Indulging in Whist.

Efforts Being Made to Get Up a Big Entertainment.

The whist tournament at the Acme Club has created considerable interest among the boys. The tournament will be continued at the clubrooms this evening.

The Reliance men are discussing the proposition to give an entertainment for the benefit of the Native Sons at the Macdonough Theater.

The new season of the Oakland Navy will open in January. There will be a number of new boats entered for the races.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is making rapid progress and the members are very enthusiastic.

The football players are all waiting for the arrival of the Chicago team. Then there will be some exciting games played across the bay.

THE UMPIRE.

There is every prospect of the national game being revived in California next year. Yesterday two prominent baseball men from across the bay dropped into Oakland to feel the public pulse in regard to the sport. The gentlemen have financial backing and they are willing to go into a league, provided it is formed on a business basis. They called on me yesterday and discussed the situation so far as this city is concerned. They had been around among some of the business men and felt very much pleased over the encouragement they received from various sources.

I am not at liberty to give their names for the reason that they desire to remain in the background during the preliminary work of forming a league. They told me about their plans and I referred them to T. C. Coogan, J. T. Moran, Alex Hirshberg, D. W. Kirkland, Fred Poor and H. D. Erkson as among those who would talk baseball to them all day and give them some good advice as to how to work up a club in this city. The gentlemen who are seeking the information are no slouches at the business. They can get the backing if they can show that there is a chance to make the league a success.

***

The proposition is to have a club formed in Oakland and another in San Francisco. The managers of these two clubs can meet and then pick out the cities to be represented in the league. They will have San Jose, Sacramento, Stockton, and Fresno to make a choice from. Already Fresno has been considered in the matter and it is said that the people in that town are anxious to get into a league and will put up their share of the money. The expense of getting the teams to and from Fresno has been fully considered and it is said that the town's receipts at the game will warrant the trip.

***

The proposition is to make Oakland an independent city in the league so that the people will rally to the support of the club. It is desired to work up a home pride in the city which was lacking in years past. Heretofore Oakland has simply been the tail to San Francisco's baseball kite and this must be changed. The gentlemen who have looked over the situation concede this point and say that if they go into the deal Oakland will be an independent city and will have Sunday games just the same as any other league city. We have the grounds here and there is no reason in the world why we should not have our regular games. In summer the Piedmont grounds are as good as any in the State for baseball. In my judgment the people of this city will patronize the Sunday game if there is any chance of seeing some good playing.

***

The question of salaries was fully discussed with me, and the gentlemen interested came to the conclusion that the only proper way to run the league is to pay a stated sum to the players. Of course there will be no large salaries, for the day for gilt-edged salaries has passed. Players, and good ones at that, can now be secured for a reasonable sum, and many of them are glad to get the work. The idea seems to prevail that new talent must be secured from abroad. The public is tired of the old-time players and they want to see new faces. Altogether the scheme proposed by the gentlemen is a good one in my judgment, and I see no reason why they would not make a success of the venture.

***

In regard to Oakland, I made the suggestion that it might be well, besides a regular manager, to have an honorary board of directors composed of well known men, who could from time to time give suggestions as to the management of the team. I do not think this would be a bad scheme.

***

The gentlemen interested in the deal desire that every club that goes into the league shall put up $1500 as a guarantee that the team will play the season out. This is a good rule and one which I can commend. It will inspire confidence in the league on the part of the public. In a short time I will be able to give the names of the gentlemen who are urging the formation of the league. They are well known in the business world.

The salary roll of the Boston Club will not be very small next year. Here is what an exchange says about it: "Of the Boston players Ganzel, Nichols, Hodson, Lowe, Nash and Duffy have not yet signed. McCarthy, Stivetts, Long and Tucker of last year's team have signed. Mac got pretty near the limit, $2400, last year, and surely didn't sign unless he got that sum. Tucker was given the limit, an increase of $250 over last year. Herman Long signed for last year's figures, $2600. Jack Stivetts will draw $2000 from the Bostons next year. Of the new men Collins will get the most money, $1700. Pitcher Sullivan comes next with $1600. Catcher Warner will draw $1550 and Shortstop Nye $1350. Pitcher Dolan will get $1200. Hodson, when he signs, will probably get $1400. Of the players to sign Nash, Nichols and Duffy will get over the limit and Bob Lowe the limit. Ganzel will get about $2000. The salary roll of the Boston Club will amount to $35,000.

***

The National League does not hesitate to rob baseball players. The following from an exchange gives an idea of how they work it: "The result of A. C. Gumbert's case against the Chicago Ball Club, which was settled in the United States Courts here recently, was somewhat of a surprise. It has been again fully demonstrated that the player who while in the employ of the National League desires to say his soul is his own will get another think. No one with good common sense will for a moment doubt that the Chicago people did conspire with the rest of the league clubs to keep Gumbert out of employment, all because he refused to accept a reduction in salary amounting to $900 a year. He dared to make a stand against the Chicago Club and he has got the worst of it, for the time being at least. But the end is likely not yet. The little testimony taken in during the trial showed very plainly that the National League did, at a meeting in 1892, concoct a scheme to beat players out of a greater portion of that salary to which they had been raised during the Brotherhood war, but it seems that in their great American privilege."—Pittsburg Gazette.

ACME ATHLETES.

Much Interest Taken in the Whist Tournament.

The Acme athletes are turning their attention to the game of whist. The tournament at the club will be continued this evening. Weston and Champion are in the lead, and they look very much like winners. The score of the game up to date is as follows:

Names of Players.	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.
Weston & Champion	36	25	11	.694
Bernett & Wright	37	24	13	.648
Williamson & Mullen	34	23	11	.676

Jacobus & Weber	29	8	21	.276

The directors of the club will give an entertainment for gentlemen in January, when another boxing contest will be arranged.

THE WHEELMEN.

An Important Point Regarding the Stealing of Bicycles.

The wheelmen have long been anxious to have the law construed in regard to the stealing of bicycles. There have been many thefts in Oakland and the wheelmen wanted the law defined. The Supreme Court of this State has just given a decision that will be of interest to every owner of a wheel. It is as follows:

The Supreme Court has reversed the judgment and order of the lower court in the case of John Brown, convicted of burglary and sentenced to a term of imprisonment. Brown stole a bicycle from a house where he was working for his board. His excuse was that he did it to suite another boy. It was his intention, he said, to return the wheel in a few hours after giving its owner a scare. Counsel for Brown accordingly argued at the trial that in order to convict there must be proof of felonious intent.

The trial judge, however, took an opposite view from that of counsel and so instructed the jury. He declared that if the boy had simply taken the bicycle to help him over a journey of twenty-five miles or so the offense would be larceny just as much as though he had intended an absolute theft. It did not matter whether he intended to permanently deprive the owner of his bicycle or not.

The Supreme Court holds that this instruction was error. It was declared that to support a conviction in such a case as the one at bar there must be proof of felonious intent. The case was therefore remanded for a new trial.

ON THE WATER.

The Oakland Navy Season for 1894 is a History.

With the race last Sunday, the season of the Oakland Navy for 1894 ended. It was a foregone conclusion that the Flash would win the pennant, for she had already scored enough points to win without the race last Sunday. This fact rather killed the interest in the last contest, because the boys knew that they did not have a chance to beat the Flash out.

The season for 1895 will open in January, when the first race will be sailed. A number of new boats will join the navy and participate in the season's contests. It is proposed to hold twelve races during the season.

Commodore Von Schmidt is building a new race boat which he will enter in the navy races next year. He realizes that the Whirlwind, as a racer, is out of the contest, and he proposes to put a boat on the water that will make the Flash look to her laurels.

THE RELIANCE CLUB.

A Big Entertainment Is Under Consideration.

The directors of the Reliance Club are considering a proposition to give a big entertainment at the Macdonough Theater. Some of the members of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West have urged that the club give the entertainment in order to raise funds for the reception of Native Sons in this city. It is proposed to produce a new opera written by a San Francisco man. If the arrangements are completed the entertainment will probably be given in January.

The gymnasium at the club is well patronized by the athletes these days. The wheelmen cannot take an outing in this kind of weather, so they get their exercise in the gymnasium.

The Reliance athletes will hold a handball tournament soon. It is proposed to limit the tournament to members of the club only. Some of the boys, however, would like to have an inter-club tournament so that they could try their skill with the Acme men.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

The Reliance Men Are Anxious to Play Again.

The Reliance football players have not done any hard practice as yet, although it is a settled fact that they are going to play a game with the Chicago University team. The local boys, however, are taking a little exercise in the gymnasium and it will not take more than a week for them to get in good playing condition. Captain Freeland and his men feel confident that they can hold their own with the visiting team. As the men of the Reliance team are the champions of the coast the visitors will have to defeat them in order to gain much glory.

The negotiations to get the Denver team to come to the coast are still going on and the Reliance boys are willing to put up some money to help pay for the trip. It is rather late now, however, to close the negotiations.

The Reliance team has not made any arrangements to play games with either the Stanford or the Berkeley teams. The best of feeling does not prevail among the three teams on account of the negotiations that were made by Stanford to bring out the Chicago team.

The receipts from the three big football games played by the University of Pennsylvania team this year were $35,881 75, and the expenses for the same three games were $20,657 98. Pennsylvania's net profits from all these games were $12,151 87, an equal amount being divided between the other three colleges. The Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania is now for the first time in its history free from all indebtedness and has in its treasury nearly $9000. On October 1, 1893, the deficit amounted to $8752 97, in addition to an indebtedness to the Board of Directors individually of some $1500, making a total of about $10,000. This deficiency has been met.

The figures for the three big games follow:

	Receipts.	Expenses.	Each Pay.
Princeton	$12,275 00	$ 4,911 75	$ 3,887 12
Cornell	11,606 75	5,031 75	1,790 25
Harvard	10,000 00	10,214 48	1,197 85

CRESCENT ATHLETES.

The Berkeley Club Now in a Prosperous Condition.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is now on a firm basis. Arrangements are being made with J. Lancaster for the erection of a club building near the corner of Addison street and Shattuck avenue. According to the plans the lower floor will consist of the gymnasium and dressing and bathrooms. The upper story will contain billiard, reading, lounging and reception rooms.

The club numbers several fine track and field athletes and will enter a team in the spring games. Application has been made for membership in the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association. A baseball club is also being organized and will look after the Reliance and college teams.

J. L. Grant, a well-known Eastern teacher of physical culture and author of a standard work on the subject, has joined the club and will lead classes twice a week.

Tonight Al Lean and Jim Cook of the Acme Club will give the boys a few pointers on wrestling.

ALAMEDA NOTES.

Treasurer Barber Resigns—The Free Library.

At the meeting of the City Trustees of Alameda, last night, County Tax Collector-elect Barber handed in his resignation as City Treasurer, to take effect December 31st. Several of the Trustees spoke in very flattering terms of Mr. Barber's efficiency in office. E. Minor Smith and C. S. Neal are the most prominent candidates for the vacant position.

In the event of Mr. Smith's success, a vacancy will occur in the Assessor's office, on which M. Meyrisch Jr. is said to have a pinch.

A report compiled by Librarian Harbourne shows that although Alameda's Free Library is first in circulation in proportion to population and third in the State in actual circulation, the institution is run about $5000 per annum cheaper than any other.

PERSONAL.

He is so pleased with Oakland that it is his intention to dispose of his Michigan property interests to return with his family to make this city his future home.

C. J. Herton is spending the winter in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Dr. J. S. McGrew of Honolulu, who has been the guest of Mrs. E. N. Van Vliet of Berkeley, left for San Jose yesterday morning.

Rev. William Rader, associate pastor of the First Congregational Church, has gone to Philadelphia to attend his mother's deathbed.

Ex-Mayor Andrus is lying seriously ill at his home in West Oakland.

John Mitchell of Berkeley has returned from San Jose.

J. Harrington of Alameda is visiting in El Dorado county.

TWO TO WO.

Berkeley's Town Trustees in a Bad Plight.

The Election of a New Member Dead-Locked.

Preble May Yet Get Left in His Race for the Clerkship.

When Berkeley's Board of Town Trustees meet next Monday evening it will be without a chairman or clerk, and instead of five members there will be but four.

There was a slight mistake in the advertising for some street work, which necessitated the bids being opened last night, so the meeting Monday night was adjourned till last night. The second meeting was held for the carrying out of the little deception, but it was Saturday night. W. H. Wolfe had become disgusted with the newspaper notoriety which the affair had subjected him to, and with how to get out of the scrape. The newspaper men would not consent, so there is no other candidate on whom the warring factions in the board can agree. Still C. S. Preble, with cheerful optimism, decided to resign and take his chances of getting re-elected Town Clerk.

As soon as the resignation was accepted nominations for the position were in order. Acton nominated Dr. C. Anthony and Whiting seconded. Ballot boxes were produced. The vote stood 2 and 2. Acton and Anthony each pulling for Anthony, while Hadlen and Whiting cast their ballots for Kim.

Another vote and still another was taken with the same result, and as the deadlock seemed impossible to break, an adjournment was taken. The survivors of the cold storm will make a strong effort to whip Hadlen into line by the next meeting Monday night.

Meantime, Preble is doing some deep thinking, as Peterkamp is to take part in the programme has ruined the beautifully laid plans to a chaotic condition.

THE WEATHER.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 19, 1894.

The moderate barometric depression which was central yesterday off the Northern California coast is now centered along the Central California coast, from which locality a trough-like depression extends northwestward along the coast to British Columbia. Rain has fallen throughout California which has been heavy at San Francisco and in the Sacramento valley. The heaviest rainfall reported is 1.44 inches at Red Bluff; 1.12 inches at Sacramento; 0.72 at San Francisco. The rainfall has been but light in the San Joaquin valley and the southern portion of the State, but the generous rain in that locality today and tonight. The area of high pressure is over Utah, together with the Rocky mountains, it being 30.42 inches at Denver, eastward of this it is much lower. It is likely, however, to be augmented through Southern California. Arizona and Utah during the next thirty hours. Fair weather prevails in California today and snowery weather is probable tonight and a portion of Thursday.

Forecasts for thirty hours from 5 p. m. today:

Northern California: Rain tonight, probably showers but partly clearing weather. Thursday, probably fair; winds are to operate southerly tonight, probably shifting to northerly Thursday.

Southern California: Local rain, probably all over by midnight; temperature, easterly winds probably shifting to northerly Thursday.

Nevada: Local snow, turning to rain and probably Thursday, mostly stationary temperature.

Arizona: Showers today, tonight and probably Thursday, mostly stationary temperature.

Utah: Rain today, probably changing to snow tonight, but by evening. Warmer tonight. Thursday, snow, but changing to rain by morning, easterly winds becoming variable.

Forecast Official.

WEATHER BUREAU REPORT.

[illegible] has been for many years an inveterate cigarette smoker, and there is not much room for doubt that he settled down with [illegible] finally and [illegible].

It is proposed to make a collection of Indian antiquities for the museum at Golden Gate Park. San Francisco is nearly twenty years behind Chicago in making an investigation, for it is nearly that length of time since M. Pinart scoured the State and America in the interest of the French Academy of Sciences. He had a very good haul to work in and carried many lots of the rarest antiquities which the Pacific coast had to offer. [illegible] dwelling contained. These now enrich the museum collections of the French Academy. I see the California Academy of Sciences looks on at M. Pinard's work with indifference. It was not until he had despoiled the field of its greatest treasures that it woke up to a full realization of the value of these antiquities of extinct races. It, thereupon, sent its collectors into the field. But they were too late. Pinard had gathered the harvest; only the gleanings were left for them. Now the newly-appointed curator of the park museum intends making a collection. He is seriously handicapped beforehand, for the field has been well-worked. He will be very fortunate if he finds anything left that is of any really scientific value.

Escaping Tuition Fees.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education Director Mock exposed one of the impositions that are being perpetrated on the department regularly by persons having no claim upon it. Mr. Mock reported that there were three pupils in the Lincoln Grammar and one in the High school whose parents are residing in an outlying district, but who are escaping the payment of tuition fees by subterfuge and fraud. This practice is a common one—much more common than anyone connected with the department has ever been willing to admit. A few years ago a woman from one of the northern counties, opened a boarding house in the Third ward expressly for the accommodation of the children of her up-country friends who desired the advantages of city school education for their children, but who were unwilling to pay the regular tuition fees. That woman carried on a thriving business successfully through several terms, and may be doing so yet for what is known to the contrary. The constant demand for increased facilities upon these school buildings lying near the city boundary support that a similar process is at work there. The condition of the Garfield school seems to have been for years past entirely inconsistent with the condition of the district legitimately within the city limits. As a matter of fact there is a strong suspicion that the city has, at its own expense, been saving a large sum annually to the county in this and other schools for many years past. The cases uncovered by Director Mock show the length to which some people will go in order to get free tuition for their children in the schools of Oakland, when they will register them from a livery stable. Perhaps a thorough canvass of the children in attendance in our public schools would show a very large number of cases similar to those exposed by Director Mock and be the means of stopping some of the fraud.

An Editorial Reminiscence.

Walter Mead, in a very readable correspondence to the Nevada City Transcript on the pioneer editors of Nevada county, tells some good anecdotes about the late Edwin G. Waite. One of them describes the manner in which Waite killed off Eugene Casserly, politically. Waite had been installed on the San Francisco Times, a paper that was afterwards merged in the Alta, as the chief editorial writer. Dr. L. C. Gunn was its managing editor and chief stockholder. Casserly was a Democrat, and at the time—1868—a United States Senator. Having just arrived in San Francisco from Washington, the Senator was prevailed upon to make a public speech. What followed is thus told by Mead:

It was his (Casserly's) downfall. The speech was made in what was then called Platt's Hall. In it he endeavored to show the magnitude of the public debt; he crowded facts and figures (of his own) on us in such a way that they began to believe that "the wealth of Crœsus and of Ind." would be of no account. Silver was then on a par with gold. He took the former as the standard. He stated that it would take so many carts each one loaded to its fullest capacity, going so many times around the world to pay of the debt. It was a long time many years ago, and I have forgotten the number, but it was enormous. When Waite pricked the bubble. He showed the fallacy of Mr. Casserly's statements by arithmetical calculations, and so conclusively were his arguments, so thoroughly was he reviewed, that Mr. Casserly's friends had no reply to make. Day after day these articles continued. It was a treat to read and was worth the price of the paper. One day Mr. Waite received a letter from a strange source. It was to the effect:

"Sir: I do not want you to say anything more of my friend Senator Casserly." Yours, ANON.

Waite afterward told Gunn of the letter. Both read and laughed. "Mr. Gunn, there is a subject that is now engaging the attention of a great many minds. It is the utilization of sewage. I would have your articles to that subject." Gunn: He was to be allowed to express a single personal opinion after that date.

That story brings up another, which Waite enjoyed to tell himself. Dr. Gunn was unreasonably critical in his treatment of everybody's manuscript. Waite suffered like the rest. Getting tired of the doctor's editing, Waite put up a job on him. He copied an extract from The Spectator by Addison, one of the greatest masters of good English of his time, on a subject which fitted the occasion, and giving it a suitable heading, sent it in to Dr. Gunn as an original editorial. The article appeared in the next issue of the Times, having been severely "edited," as usual.

"See, doctor," remarked Waite, "that you made the article on such and such a subject." "Yes," replied the doctor, "it was very good; but I dressed it up a little, you know, to make it read a little more smoothly," he added, apologetically. "That's all right, doctor, I don't care, if Addison is satisfied." Then Waite explained to the astonished doctor what he had done and why he had done it. So long as Waite remained on the Times after that his manuscript was not "mangled," as he described it, any more.

The tramp steamer Montserrat, which is supposed to have foundered in a recent gale while en route to San Francisco with a cargo of coal from Nanaimo, is said to have been overloaded at every trip she made between the two ports, carrying invariably nearly 200 tons in excess of her gross registered capacity. The Montserrat was a British ship and sailed under the British flag. The loading of all British ships is regulated by a law known as the Plimsoll act, and the lawful load line of each vessel sailing under the British flag is defined by what is known as the "Plimsoll mark." No sailor is required to go to sea in a vessel so heavily loaded that the Plimsoll mark is submerged, and severe penalties to officers and owners accompany an offense of that kind. If the Montserrat was overloaded, the Plimsoll mark was submerged. The subject of loading British ships engaged in the Pacific Coast coal trade down to the deck line is likely to be taken up by the proper authorities, owing to the disaster which seems beyond doubt to have befallen the Montserrat.

W. T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, and some very harsh things about Chicago in his recent book on "If Christ Came to Chicago," but there is nothing in that publication which is half as severe as the following concerning the same city which John Burns, the British labor reformer and leader, is reported to have uttered in a speech recently made at Denver:

If there is a place on the face of the earth that deserves to be wiped out of existence that place is Chicago. I have no toleration for such corruption as I saw there on all sides. Men, women and children seemed imbued with the filth of politics, and there is no attempt to purify the moral atmosphere. Corruption is on every side, and no one seems to take notice of the most flagrant abuse of ordinary decency. Then the social strata is undermined with all that is but. As I walked through the Bitban quarter the sights brought tears to my eyes. Such misery and wretchedness is unparalleled in the darkest part of London. Then the city has more prostitutes than the modern Babylon from which I come and which is said to be the worst city of the world. I prefer it that Chicago is a pocket edition of hell and it is not then hell is a pocket edition of Chicago. Look at the City Hall in Chicago, filled with brothel-keepers, saloon-keepers and prize fighters.

Now that Stevenson is dead the foundation is being skillfully laid to flood the market with posthumous works bearing his name. The first report of his death mentioned one unfinished story. Less than a week after the news reached here this literary heritage has grown to three stories, two being ready for the press. The posthumous racket has been worked for all it was worth after the death of almost every author of note of late years, the publishers reaping a rich harvest from writings which the alleged authors, being dead, could not repudiate.

Chicago formerly boasted that the arrivals and departures of vessels there exceeded the arrivals and departures at any three seaports in the United States. The Times of that city says it cannot make that boast now, for there has been a steady falling off in the record since 1880. That year 12,788 vessels were recorded as having entered the port. It had dropped to 10,000 in 1889. Since then the falling off has steadily continued, and this year the total number of arrivals was 7,492. The decrease in the number of vessels has, however, been accompanied by an increase in the tonnage, which, it is claimed, has nearly doubled since 1880. Larger vessels are now being employed in the lake trade, and many of the small schooners formerly engaged in the Lake Michigan trade have been transferred to Lake Superior.

It is in the air that the organizer of vagrants and ex-convicts into an army whose sole mission is to prey upon the charitable and rob the worthy poor of the aid that justly belongs to them, has made enough out of the organization to start a publication, the first number of which is to contain a libel on those through whose official toleration he and his vagrant crew have been permitted to remain here so long unmolested. If this be true, the fable of the viper and the husbandman will have been again exemplified and the character representing the husbandman will have no one else but himself to blame for it. The vagrancy laws ought to have been put into active operation long ago.

The Berkeley University students seem to have butted their heads against a stone wall when they hazed Campbell for sympathizing with the Stanford football team. They did not hurt him in the least when they painted him with the Stanford colors, but it hurt them to pay the $10 fine imposed by the Justice of the Peace for battery which followed.

What has become of David B. Hill, senior Senator from New York, since the election in which he and Tammany were buried in the same grave?

Merry Old Santy.

Oh, merry old Santy, what stories you tell
To the ears of our dear little sweet Rosabelle!
It touch only four summers and three winters old,
She knows you are coming without being told.
Aye, merry old Santy, she knows you quite well!

For our little one kneels
In bells
"Did you call, mamma?"
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle.

Just as sure as the morning, at dawn o' the day,
The opens her eyes to the light but to say
In Santy Claus come, oh, tell me, mamma!
It's Christmas today, on 5th t, papa!
And out of the bed in her little bare feet
She traps to the window, your sleighbells to greet
Oh merry old Santy, such stories you tell
To our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

Her tiny white stockings she hangs every
In the hope
That Santy's gonna' tonight, I believe
And she's tucked up in her snug little bed
She prays for a dolly (wot wiggles) and
And nice, curly hair, an' wot dresses as An' kin almost start saying it on its feet in a twye.
Oh, merry old Santy, she knows you so well—
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

THE NEW YEAR'S NEW DRESS.

"I have called," said the captious critic, "to find out what reason you can give for representing the new year as a nude small boy."

"That is done," responded the art editor, "because the year does not get its close till the 31st of December."—Indianapolis Journal.

ANOTHER ALTERNATIVE.

Customer—See here, I want to change this coat I bought yesterday. My wife doesn't like it.

THE REASON WHY.

Two Mexicans were standing in the door of the little railroad station, each insisting with infinite bows and flowing compliments that the other should precede him.

"Oh, now deliciously polite," twittered the tourist lady. Why can't our American men learn such politeness?"

"It ain't so much politeness, mum," explained the resident American gentleman, "as that no Greaser don't like to give no other Greaser a chance to get close behind his back."—Indianapolis Journal.

CURRENT EASTERN COMMENT.

The subject of legalizing liquor selling under suitable restrictions is one that calls for rational and dispassionate treatment, and not for narrow and reckless denunciation.—New York Advertiser.

If George Gould gets into New York "society" there ought to be a bright future for the son of Jesse James.—Chicago Times.

JUST THE THING.

How to Reduce the Cost of Living Expenses.

An Association That Is Based on Economy.

Opportunity for Money Small Means to Save Money.

People of moderate income will be pleased to know that several well-known and enterprising gentlemen of this city and San Francisco have lately started a new enterprise which will enable its members to save about one-third of what they have heretofore been required to spend on "pants" wearing apparel.

The American Clothing Association of San Francisco was incorporated last September with a capital stock of $100,000, divided into 2000 shares of $50 each, over one-half of which has been subscribed. Judging by what has already been accomplished and the further fact that it starts with abundant capital and is under able management, we predict a complete success and a bright future for this new, enterprising and worthy California institution.

The principal aim of the association seems to be to reduce the price to the consumer on such goods as it may handle. It is patterned after a very successful institution of the same kind in England, which has revolutionized the trade there.

The plan of the organization is to obtain a lot of subscribing members, each of whom shall pay a small amount annually in dues. Each subscriber is entitled to receive any of the goods carried by the association at wholesale prices.

While it is the intention of the American Clothing Association to do a regular mercantile business and sell to the general public, its principal business will be to supply the wants of its regular members, thus avoiding the high rents and other expenses which retail establishments of similar size are compelled to pay, in order to obtain trade and which, quite naturally, has to come out of the pocket of the consumer.

The association has established temporary offices at 206 Parrell street, San Francisco, where stock subscription books and books for membership have been opened. Arrangements are being made also to open large departments in store, consisting of six departments, to wit: Gents' Furnishing goods, hats, shoes, ready made clothing, tailoring and jewelry.

T. B. Potter, a well-known Oakland man, has been elected president and manager for the first year, and his record of ten years past in Oakland as an honorable and successful business man is a guarantee that the new association will be both successfully and economically managed.

F. M. Persinger, for several years cashier and manager of a national bank in Nebraska and more recently the land agent for the South San Francisco Land Improvement Co., has been elected secretary, and is a capable and energetic business man, well fitted for the duties of the office.

The directorate of the association contains the names of some of the most conservative and prosperous business men in Oakland and San Francisco, and taken altogether it will command the respect of the mercantile world.

That business men of Oakland think well of the new proposition is evidenced by the fact that several of our most prominent merchants, professional men and city and county officials have subscribed for the stock.

The stockholders enjoy the same privilege as members but do not have to pay any dues, in addition to which they obtain a share of any profits which may accrue.

The plan of this association should not be mistaken for that of the numerous "supply companies" which have started in various parts of the country with practically no capital, and which make a business of obtaining a discount from various dealers for their patrons.

The American Clothing Association will carry a complete stock from which selections may be made. Its members will actually receive their goods at wholesale cost.

In times like the present nearly everyone is more or less affected by the general depression in business, and we believe that many will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity of saving money by joining the American Clothing Association and reaping its benefits. Its promoters have our best wishes for its ultimate success.

DOLLAR BLAND.

Butler News, Dem.

Look at Bland. There is a man who has been in Congress continuously from the Forty-third Congress, this being the Fifty-third. He has made a study of free coinage and he is considered here and in foreign countries an authority on the subject. He has devoted his life to the study of the silver question. He has not only taught the country generally, but it is said by those who are acquainted with his home conduct that there is not a farmer in his district whom he does not know and not a hearthstone in it over which he has not expectorated tobacco juice. It is said of him that his custom has always been to make a house to house campaign. In a buggy sufficiently old not to offend the people drawn by a horse not too sleepy to excite remarks about style and fat enough to prevent remarks about the candidate being a trifling man, he wheeled over his district, and in groves, schoolhouses, court buildings, at picnics, fish fries and barbecues, taught and kept in line his people on the free coinage of silver idea. His voice has been heard by every bird and rabbit in his district as a warning cry against the gold bug and the dastard that would relegate free silver to the rear, and yet at the last election his people either walked up to the polls or remained away from them, which is the same thing, and handed their great leader, bound hand and foot, over to the gold bug and shut out the free coinage idea as a plan would relieve his mouth of tobacco. The question is, was Bland an indifferent teacher or did the people of Bland's district commence some time ago to think for themselves?

Overcome Opposition.

"Knowledge overcomes ignorance as sunlight darkness." In the same way ALLCOCK'S PORUS PLASTER overcome the prejudice of people who are opposed to every remedy of the kind. Their success is attested to on every hand by those who have used them and those who have seen them tried.

For more than fifty years they have won the highest praise from people of every nationality in every country. Sufferers from rheumatism indigestion stiff and sore muscles have tried of their worth, and friends who have seen the relief and returning health have followed their praise of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. The result has been that opposition has ceased and they stand supreme.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS can always be relied upon.

A Hard Worker

And success should crown his untiring efforts to please any and all with whom he may come in contact, both socially or in a business way.

Referring to B. C. Lund, who has recently gone to a large expense in fitting up his finest tonsorial parlors in Oakland, which are located in the Central Bank building, on Fourteenth street, we would say, that he has executed splendid judgment in having arranged the salesroom, writing room and ladies' dressing room on the ground floor and the repairing department and storeroom in the basement.

He carries a full line of the Columbia and Cleveland wheels, besides a large assortment of cheaper and smaller ones for the holiday trade. He makes a specialty of teaching and can be found at the Central Cyclery, 520 Fourteenth street, corner Broadway.

MUSIC FOR ALL.

The happy home of Oakland would want an important element to raise them to the highest standard of refinement, were their echoes never aroused with music and song. But, it may be said, that his evidence of refinement and culture is one of the chiefest charms of Oakland homes. Not only do parlors of this city resound with the sweetest of voices—all home voices and the result of home culture, too—but they are also supplied with instrumental music which can be supplied only by the finest pianos and other instruments intended to produce music under the manipulation of skilled and artistic performers. The music stores of this city have always been distinguished in this respect, and the firm that has been in the van in this respect has been, and is, that of Sherman, Clay & Co., whose new store is now stocked with the most improved of all kinds of musical instruments, which invite inspection. The establishment is located at the southeast corner of Fairmouth street and Broadway.

FOR THE FEMME.

What has been said of the elegantly dressed gentlemen of this city is equally true of the ladies of Oakland, in San Francisco, in New York, and even in Paris, there are no more finely appareled women strolling about than in the Athens of the Pacific coast. This is because in the first instance they have artistic discrimination. They know what becomes them, and, as they are individually gifted with personal charms of form and feature which can be excelled nowhere, it naturally requires the finest kind of apparel to be in keeping. For this reason Oakland ladies, when they appear on the streets are visions of ovaliness. This is because they have within this city the means of gratifying their taste for the personal adornment which becomes them. The firm which has conducted in a most remarkable manner to this great feature of our social life is the well-known one of Taft & Pennoyer, 1163, 1165 and 1167 Broadway, which has been in business in this city for many years.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL.

It is one of the facts borne out by experience that whenever nature has been liberal in gifts in beautifying the surrounding country there is sure to be found a race of people who in their form and figure are endowed with charms which are always so agreeable to behold.

There is no need of ill favored, and prematurely aged people suffering by comparison of their appearance, because, if old, they may again become young in a few days at trifling expense. Their gray hair may be made to resume its natural color. If they are wrinkled, the skin may again be made as smooth as it was when they were charming and irresistible. If they have pimpled faces, the blotches may be removed. If they are freckled, the liver spots may be erased without pain, and the same may be done with warts and moles. The person who is able to accomplish this is Mrs. Nettie Harrison, the beauty restorer, whose parlors are at 26 Geary street, San Francisco.

BUSINESS.

The manner in which Oakland has managed to survive all the commercial crises which has distressed this country, has been one of the marvels of the history of the Pacific coast. She has weathered every storm and today is stronger, braver, more solid and more generally known throughout the country than she ever was before. All this has been effected by the stanchness of the clear-eyed men who have stood beside her and who now stand ready to back her in any financial contest. The money of the people is the bulwark of this municipality. This money is in Oakland's banks. Back of this money is the personal reputation and wealth of her bankers, and with the latter nearly every citizen in the city is acquainted. These banks and bankers have a reputation unrivaled. It is the proud boast of Oakland that she has never had a bank failure. When banks in other places were crashing and falling in ruin low there was not the suggestion of a tremor in any of Oakland's many financial institutions. They weathered the last financial storm with the ease and grace worthy of experienced financial institutions and were among the first to announce to their depositors that their deposits were again at their disposal without the customary restriction placed upon their withdrawal as a safeguard in times of trouble. This is especially the proud record of the Oakland Bank of Savings, the president of which is I. L. Requa; the Union National Bank, the president of which is Thomas Prather; and the Central Bank, the president of which is W. G. Palmanteer.

A POPULAR THEATER.

When a community is prosperous, it has the means of relaxation. It readily seeks the means of providing that relaxation, and among those means there is none more popular than the theater. Oakland has always been a good theater city. She has always attracted the best comedy and tragic combinations, and whenever she has permanent theaters of her own they have invariably been of a most worthy character. They have also reaped a rich harvest in patronage of

How many we see on our streets, only remnants of beautiful women, shadows of bygone days. It need not be so while there exists America's only Beauty Doctor,

Mrs. Nettie Harrison

YEARS of experience and practice have made her success unparalleled. Her fashions for the winter may be interesting, but a skin food and Tissue Builder will give you beautiful flesh, a transparent, natural complexion. I GUARANTEE to remove the most severe case of pimples, blackheads, freckles, moth patches, red nose, red veins, oily skin, or any other skin disfigurement. I guarantee to develop and fill out the form in the roundest, fullest and most beautiful proportions. Where a lady will have an honest talk with me, in confidence and candor, I will tell her how to get a form like mine, and how to keep it good. If it is bad I will make it good. If it is thin I will develop it with massage and nourish it with my wonderful Skin Food. In many cases of nervousness and ruined health, I would have to refer to my own experience. I have taken under my care cases where nervousness and ruined health were the result of a bad complexion, and have seen them grow young and comely by a perfect transformation of their features. In fact, I confidently recommend my system of treatment to the middle aged woman who is losing her beauty and good looks, as I positively guarantee to restore the light and graceful step of youth, the bright eye, the rosy cheek, the beautiful hair, the soft, velvety skin, the perfect form, the winning smile, the musical laugh, the graceful carriage, the captivating manner, the sweet disposition, the attractive dress, the fascinating ways, the magnetic influence, the charming personality, the lovable nature, the womanly qualities, the queenly bearing, the majestic presence, the handsome figure, the beautiful complexion, the faultless features, the lustrous eyes, the pearly teeth, the coral lips, the dainty hands, the shapely feet, the graceful limbs, the perfect health, the buoyant spirits, the happy heart, the contented mind, the peaceful home, the loving husband, the darling children, the true friends, the respect of all, the love of many, the admiration of the world, the esteem of society, the confidence of business men, the favor of the public, the good will of the people, the blessings of the poor, the gratitude of the afflicted, the prayers of the unfortunate, the smiles of the cheerful, the welcome of the stranger, the kindness of the rich, the charity of the benevolent, the sympathy of the sorrowful, the consolation of the mourner, the hope of the dying, the joy of the saved, the glory of heaven, the crown of righteousness, the palm of victory, the harp of gold, the song of the redeemed, the rest of the weary, the peace of God, the love of Christ, the mercy of the Father, the grace of the Holy Spirit, the Trinity of the Godhead, the Omnipotence of the Creator, the Omniscience of the Omnipresent, the Eternity of the Ages, the Infinity of the Universe, the Immortality of the Soul, the Resurrection of the Body, the Judgment of the Great White Throne, the Lake of Fire, the Second Death, the Bottomless Pit, the Devil and his Angels, the Beast and the False Prophet, the Antichrist, the Mystery of Iniquity, the Man of Sin, the Son of Perdition, the Whore of Babylon, the Scarlet Woman, the Mother of Harlots, the Abomination of Desolation, the Wormwood, the Star Fallen from Heaven, the Key of the Bottomless Pit, the Smoke of the Pit, the Locusts, the Horses Prepared unto Battle, the Crowns like Gold, the Faces like Men, the Hair like Women, the Teeth like Lions, the Breastplates like Iron, the Sound of their Wings like the Sound of Chariots of many Horses running to Battle, the Tails like unto Scorpions, and there were Stings in their Tails, and their Power was to hurt Men five Months. And they had a King over them, which is the Angel of the Bottomless Pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon. One Woe is past; and behold there come two Woes more hereafter. And the Sixth Angel sounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the Golden Altar which is before God, saying to the Sixth Angel which had the Trumpet, Loose the four Angels which are bound in the great River Euphrates. And the four Angels were loosed, which were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to slay the third part of men. And the number of the army of the horsemen were two hundred thousand thousand: and I heard the number of them. And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and them that sat on them, having breastplates of fire, and of jacinth, and brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and out of their mouths issued fire and smoke and brimstone. By these three was the third part of men killed, by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths. For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt. And the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and of wood: which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk: neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts. And I saw another mighty Angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth, And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices. And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not. And the Angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven, And sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer: But in the days of the voice of the seventh Angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets. And the voice which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the Angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth. And I went unto the Angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey. And I took the little book out of the Angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter. And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings. And there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the Angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein. But the court which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months. And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth. These are the two olive trees, and the two candlesticks standing before the God of the earth. And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he must in this manner be killed. These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them to blood, and to smite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will. And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them. And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified. And they of the people and kindreds and tongues and nations shall see their dead bodies three days and a half, and shall not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves. And they that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth. And after three days and a half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them. And they heard a great voice from heaven saying unto them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them. And the same hour was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell, and in the earthquake were slain of men seven thousand: and the remnant were affrighted, and gave glory to the God of heaven. The second woe is past; and, behold, the third woe cometh quickly. And the seventh Angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. And the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail. And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars: And she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered. And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads. And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born. And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne. And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days. And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, And prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him. And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man child. And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast out of his mouth after the woman water as a flood, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ. And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy. And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast. And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him? And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations. And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. If any man have an ear, let him hear. He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints. And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred threescore and six. And I looked, and lo a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps: And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth. These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb. And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God. And I saw another Angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. And there followed another angel, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication. And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand, The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb: And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name. Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus. And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them. And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle. And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Thrust in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped. And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle. And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe. And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great winepress of the wrath of God. And the winepress was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the winepress, even unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs. And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues; for in them is filled up the wrath of God. And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire: and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God. And they sing the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest. And after that I looked, and, behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened: And the seven angels came out of the temple, having the seven plagues, clothed in pure and white linen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles. And one of the four beasts gave unto the seven angels seven golden vials full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever. And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from his power; and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled. And I heard a great voice out of the temple saying to the seven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth. And the first went, and poured out his vial upon the earth; and there fell a noisome and grievous sore upon the men which had the mark of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image. And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea; and it became as the blood of a dead man: and every living soul died in the sea. And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters; and they became blood. And I heard the angel of the waters say, Thou art righteous, O Lord, which art, and wast, and shalt be, because thou hast judged thus. For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy. And I heard another out of the altar say, Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments. And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the sun; and power was given unto him to scorch men with fire. And men were scorched with great heat, and blasphemed the name of God, which hath power over these plagues: and they repented not to give him glory. And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the seat of the beast; and his kingdom was full of darkness; and they gathered their tongues for pain, And blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores, and repented not of their deeds. And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared. And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done. And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great. And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great. And there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will show unto thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters: With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication. So he carried me away in the spirit into the wilderness: and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet colour, and decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations and filthiness of her fornication: And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH. And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great admiration. And the angel said unto me, Wherefore didst thou wonder? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns. The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is. And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth. And there are seven kings: five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a short space. And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into perdition. And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast. These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast. These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful. And he saith unto me, The waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues. And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire. For God hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God shall be fulfilled. And the woman which thou sawest is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth. After these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory. And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird. For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities. Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double. How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her. And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, Standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more: The merchandise of gold, and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron, and marble, And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and slaves, and souls of men. And the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all. The merchants of these things, which were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing, And saying, Alas, alas, that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls! For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. And every shipmaster, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, And cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city is like unto this great city! And they cast dust on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea by reason of her costliness! for in one hour is she made desolate. Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her. And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all. And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard no more at all in thee; And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived. And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth. And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God: For true and righteous are his judgments: for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand. And again they said, Alleluia. And her smoke rose up for ever and ever. And the four and twenty elders and the four beasts fell down and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen; Alleluia. And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great. And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me, These are the true sayings of God. And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me, See thou do it not: I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus: worship God: for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, that no man knew, but he himself. And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God. And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God; That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great. And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshipped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone. And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh. And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season. And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea. And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them. And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever. And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire. And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful. And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death. And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will show thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, Having the glory of God: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal; And had a wall great and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel: On the east three gates; on the north three gates; on the south three gates; and on the west three gates. And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. And he that talked with me had a golden reed to measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof. And the city lieth foursquare, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal. And he measured the wall thereof, an hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is, of the angel. And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass. And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones. The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald; The fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst. And the twelve gates were twelve pearls: every several gate was of one pearl: and the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass. And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it. And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it. And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for there shall be no night there. And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it. And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life. And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him: And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever. And he said unto me, These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to show unto his servants the things which must shortly be done. Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book. And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which showed me these things. Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God. And he saith unto me, Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand. He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still. And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie. I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star. And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will

Oakland Iron Works

One of the Most Perfectly Appointed Institutions of the Kind in the Country.

It is Larger, Better Equipped, Capable of Turning Out a Greater Variety of Work and Employs More Men Than Ever Before.

LOCATION, COR. JEFFERSON and SECOND STS.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The OAKLAND IRON WORKS, which suffered from the fire some weeks ago, has been rebuilt, restocked with new machinery and is virtually a new institution in everything save the management, which remains as formerly. It has two sites, one on the north and the other on the south side of Second street at the intersection of Jefferson, each 100x150 feet. In place of the structure destroyed there has been a magnificent shop, 100x100 feet erected, supplied with the most improved machinery, and especially with a fifteen ton traveling crane, which is a great saver of time and effort.

There are now 150 men employed in the works. The iron foundry, the machine shop, the brass foundry, the pattern, the boiler and blacksmith shops are perfect, and work in them turned out at more reasonable figures than elsewhere on the coast. Call or address the most encouraging kind. This has been especially true of the theaters established for the masses. One of these which has a warm spot in the heart of every Oaklander is the People's Theater on Washington and Twelfth streets, which is really the people's theater, and in which plays that are well produced and inculcate a wholesome moral are produced in a magnificent manner at the lowest popular prices.

One of the best known and most successful enterprises introduced to this city is the Kendall Spice Mills, which is doing a thriving business at 261 Fourth street.

Dreams

Am I lonely? Oh, no! I could not be,
For I live in a land of dreams.
Where the shadows, if ever they gather,
Are dispelled by the soft sunbeams
Of a never ending summer
Where the flowers never stoop nor die,
Where life flows on like a happy song
Under a cloudless sky.

Sometimes when my heart grows weary
With the worry and cares of the day,
I close my eyes—and swiftly
My soul goes flitting away,
Away from the world and its sorrows,
Its pain, and turmoil and strife
To my perfect, changeless, haven of rest,
To my glorious dreamland life.

There my dream friends gather around me,
My dream loves, who never grow cold,
And listening to their tender words,
I forget I am growing old
And a wonderful rest steals o'er me,
A peace that the world can not know,
And out from the mystical distance
Comes music so sweet and so low.

Music, so pure and uplifting,
Inspiring, triumphant and clear,
That I listen entranced to the marvelous sounds,
Till my eyes are filled with tears.
Happy tears that cool the tired eyes,
And fall with healing power
Into this restless, unsatisfied heart,
With a touch of infinite calm.

Music, so full of the meaning
Of the life that is to be,
When the earthly fetters that bind me now
Shall be broken, and I at last be free,
Music, that swells, and surges
To a pitch so grand and strong
That it seems to enfold and bear me away,
And my heart grows strangely young.

And the little cares of this earth life
Dissolve, and fade away,
And I see with vision made perfect
The dawn of a brighter day.
Oh, friends, does the way seem lonely?
Are your hearts with sorrow oppressed?
Come, go with me to my dreamland home
And I promise you joy and rest.

Rest, that surpasses knowledge,
Joy, that the angels might share,
You cannot be lonely, tired or old
In this house of my dreams so fair.
You shall gather the flowers of contentment,
You shall bathe in the crystal spray
Of musical, magical fountains
That shall wash every care away.

—Lida Wolcott.

Autumn.

A hazy splendor veiling the earth,
A lazy languor filling the air,
A glory of light on the hillsides
That tells of the passing year.

A quivering, tremulous radiance
Bathing the land and the seas,
While Nature, with touch of an artist,
Is painting the leaves of the trees.

Crimson, and brown, and golden,
They glow, and glisten, and gleam,
Till one wonders how they were ever content
In their cool modest suits of green.

The days are like glistening jewels
Slipped from the fingers of time,
And the wind sings a soothing lullaby
As it murmurs through hollow and pine.

The nights are a dreamy enchantment
The mocking bird's song sweet and clear
Floats in the woods with deli'ious music,
Entrancing the listening ear.

Spring and summer may have more flowers,
Winter more gladsome cheer,
But autumn for restful contentment
Is the best of all the year.

THINK THEY WERE WORKED.

Heirs of the Santos Estate Object to Some Bills.

Maria Roberts, Samuel J. Davina, Eugene A. Davina, and Frances A. Davina have filed objections in court to the first annual account of M. J. Souza, executor of the estate of Joseph S. Santos, deceased.

The contestants make some serious charges against the executor.

They object to the item of $1150 alleged to have been paid to Rufino & Bianchi for a monument on the ground that the amount is excessive. They claim that the monument is only worth $200 and that Souza intending to defraud the estate exclusively agreed with Rufino & Bianchi to pay a larger sum than the statue was worth and to charge the estate with such larger amount and to obtain a voucher for the $1150. They assert that the executor has converted the remainder of the money, over and above the value of the monument, to his own use.

Several other items are also objected to on the ground of excessiveness. The matter will be heard before Judge Greene in a few days.

AGAINST THE GATES.

A Meeting Called Tonight at the Courthouse.

A meeting has been called for tonight of the residents south of Seventh street and those holding property in that section. It will be held at 8 o'clock at the Courthouse on Broadway, and its object is to protest to the City Council against the construction of the proposed gates at the Seventh street crossing. The argument is advanced that if the gates are put in operation the property south of Seventh street will greatly depreciate in value and the business houses there will be sorely hampered.

TWO GRINGOS AND ONE DON

BY GERTRUDE ATHERTON

"Wa—a—l," said Mr. Hiram Stump, seating himself upon a log and snuffing the golden California poppies with tobacco juice, "there's an old sayin' that finders is keepers, and seein' that I've found this yere land, I believe I'll keep."

"But," remonstrated a younger man, who kept his tobacco in a pipe, and whose overalls and flannel shirt were cleaner than his companion's, "you see, it kinder belongs to someone else. Those Spanish folks have claimed it for nigh on to a hundred years, I'm told."

"Wa—a—l, if they have, they ain't had no right to. What's dagos, anyhow? What right had a lot of priests and furriners to come here and take possession of free American soil? Grants be damned! The Mexican Government hadn't no right to a square inch of soil that was by rights American, whether America owned it or not. I'd like for know if the United States didn't prove it when she kicked 'em out in '48? California is United States territory, and United States citizens has got a right to her land, and what's more, they'll take it. If the dagos want it, they'll have to go to law or pay for it, and if they do the last they'll get licked, and if they do the last it's all right. If the Senor Don Julio Sanchez wants this yere section of the Rancho Undervister, he kin pay for it in United States gold coin, and pay it to Hiram Stump, esquire, and John Conly, esquire. Here I am and here I'm going to stick. Amen."

"Well," replied his partner, "if those be your sentiments I'm with you, but it don't seem to me exactly right. Seems painfully like takin' what don't belong to you."

"John Conly," said the older man, solemnly, "we came down here to squat, and if we can't find Government land to suit us we'll squat on dago. It's all the same in American-English, and what's more, might is right. This yere square mile of land will be known hereafter as Potato Farm, property of Hiram Stump, esquire, and John Conly, esquire. Now just put your conscience to bed and git on the bacon and cook dinner. We've had a tramp and I'm powerful hungry."

* * * * * * * *

A few days later a valuable mare escaped from the corral of Linda Vista, and for over a week was lost among the hills and gulches of the vast rancho. At last she was tracked and captured by one of the vaqueros and driven toward home with endearments and execrations.

"Ay, mother of God! Thou wretch, thou thief, thou assassin! I am shaken to jilly looking for thee. But if thou hadst fallen over a bluff and broken thy pretty neck, my beloved one! Ay, yi! Ay, yi! Juan would have wept for thee. Get on, thou lazy devil! Dost thou think I have naught to do but crawl at thy heels?"

"What's that gibberish that man is shoutin'?" demanded Hiram Stump, dropping the hand which was giving the completing touches to his log cabin.

"Spanish, I guess. I'm quick at lingos and I've picked up a few words."

At that moment Juan turned his head and caught sight of the two strangers and of the cabin. He stared incredulously, then raising himself in his stirrups and lifting his bridle dashed up to the intruders.

"What do you do here?" he cried in angry Spanish. "Who are you that you dare to build a house on the rancho of the Senor Don Julio Sanchez?"

"What's all that?" asked Stump, calmly continuing his work.

"He wants to know what we are doin' on his master's land."

"Jest tell him."

"Well, young man," said Conly, in poor and halting Spanish, "seeing we liked this place we thought we'd settle here for a time."

"What! What!" screamed the vaquero. "You build a house on my Senor's land and intend to live here? How long? How long?"

"Oh, we'll stay, I guess."

The vaquero stood up in his stirrups and swung his riata as if to rope the intruders, at the same time stuttering a volley of oaths. But the imperturbability of the Americans nonplussed him, and wheeling suddenly, he galloped at full speed up the ranch, followed at long range by the forgotten mare.

II.

Supper was over in the great adobe house at the upper end of the ranch. The family of Don Julio Sanchez was on the long corridor watching the shadows gather on the plateau. Don Julio sat before the open door of the living-room, a black silk handkerchief knotted about his head. His skin was brown and withered, his nose high, his lips thin. Don Julio was something of a martinet. His brown silk short-clothes and lace ruffles were scrupulously neat. He leaned one jeweled hand on a cane and placidly surveyed the broad acres which made him one of the grandees of the land. By his side sat his wife, Dona Josefa, brown and fat and kindly, embroidering by the falling light. Several young men lounged in hammocks. Three girls in white frocks, their dark hair hanging in long braids, were grouped in a corner, laughing and whispering. A half dozen or more children ran about, admonished occasionally by Dona Josefa. Don Julio was very proud of his fourteen sons and daughters.

Suddenly the sound of galloping hoofs broke above the hoarse croaking of the frogs and the shrieks of the children. One of the young men opened his sleepy eyes and sat erect.

"Juan, it must be," he said. "Valgame dios! Has he found La Pulga?"

"Sure," said Don Julio. "He would not return, alas."

But a moment later Juan dashed up to the house without the truant mare. A chorus of reproaches greeted him, but ceased as wondering and indignant ears listened to his tale.

Don Julio sprang to his feet and strode up and down the corridor, thrusting the little ones out of his way.

"God of my soul! Mother of God!" he cried. "The insolent invaders! The bandoleros! The accursed Americans!"

Dona Josefa shook like a large jelly fish. Her strong white teeth clicked audibly. Her cheeks and shoulders smote each other. The girls stood behind her with flaming eyes and flushed faces, a beautiful trio, with no warning in their white, oval and slim elegance that they would one day be brown and fat. The young men were all out of their hammocks and pressing around Juan, splendid caballeros in their gay silken attire and ribboned curls. They were wider awake than they had been since the warm wave came. One of them threw back his head and gave a loud laugh.

"But why pay those interlopers the honor to get angry?" he cried. "We will sweep them out with a broom. They cannot stay. They have no rights. I speak English and I will go in the morning and order them to go. Calm yourselves."

"True, Emilio," said his father, stopping short. "Thou always speakest with wisdom. Of course they must go. But their insolence infuriated me. Not a word have I ever had with a neighbor, and Don Arturo Serpulvidu and I hardly know where his rancho begins and mine ends. To be threatened by an American! God of my soul! An American! But I leave them to thee, my son."

"Yes, to thee, Emilio," cried an admiring chorus. "Thou art the oldest and the wisest. Thou canst manage the Americans."

And peace once more fell upon Linda Vista.

III.

The next noon Mr. Stump and Mr. Conly were frying bacon and boiling potatoes in their new kitchen when the sound of approaching hoofs caused the elder gentleman to look out of the window.

"Well, I'll be durned!" he ejaculated. "What's this comin'?"

Mr. Conly joined him. "Why, that," he said, with a loud laugh, "that's a cavellero."

"A what?"

"One of the rich daco's sons, what is usually in a hammock or on a horse, and what dresses in the stuff we rig up our girls in—silk and lace and diamonds fit for a queen."

Across the fields of poppies, out from the wooded hills, where the long moss waved and the deer leaped, rode Don Emilio Sanchez, a picture calculated to excite the surprise of Mr. Hiram Stump. The pommel and trappings of his embossed leathern saddle were of chased silver. So were his big spurs. So were the links of his bridle, held high in one slender hand. So were the eagles on his brown sombrero. His jacket and short trousers were of red silk, buttoned and laced with gold. His hair and his long yellow botas were bound with red ribbon. His shirt-front was covered with lace.

"Well, he's pretty," remarked Stump. "I move we go out and invite him enter the parlor. He kin sit on that there barrel of lard, and you kin cover it with your extra shirt so he won't grease them pants."

The caballero drew rein and sprang to the ground, removing his sombrero in a deep graceful bow to the two men who had gone out to meet him. Stump and Conly nodded. The languid clear-cut face of the Californian was as sharp a contrast to the gray skin, drab beard and hard features of the lank, ungainly Stump, and to the yellow-bearded, square, stolid face of Conly, as was his rich attire to their soiled overalls and coarse flannel shirts.

"Senors," he said, with exceeding politeness, "I am Emilio Sanchez, the more old son of the Senor Don Julio Sanchez, whose rancho is these" (with emphasis). "I come talk to you, for I spik English, and the others no can. You understand me?"

"You bet," said Stump. "Won't you come inter the kitchen and set? We're cook n' dinner and its spilin'."

"Gracias I shall like."

He followed them into the low room, coughed slightly at the smoke, regarded a flour barrel dubiously, but finally sat himself upon it, risking his trousers rather than hurt their feelings.

"Now you kin talk while we cook," remarked Stump, and once more the bacon sizz'ed.

"I—my vaquero—telling me las' night that two Americanos build house on our rancho. You know, no? that it no is right to build the house on the land de another person? You no have the law in America?"

"Oh, yes; we've got laws enough, but you see, the fact is California's American, and just now she's in the United States. Now the United States didn't take California to run a lot of dagos—beg pardon—Spaniards. My pard's punchin' me; my manners ain't good. I know. Well, the United States took California to make her a grand American State, and the only way she kin do that is by help of American citizens. So, I guess its our duty to help her along. And it ain't no task, you bet. Her gold and her soil is first class. We didn't have no luck in the mines, so we thought we'd try agriculture. See?"

"But," remonstrated the caballero, who had followed this harangue with some difficulty, "why you no take the land we no live on—government land you call, no?"

"Oh, we don't want your leavin's. You've took the best and we don't go a cent on snags 'n rocks. You've got more'n you want, and considerin' as our Government is goin' to run the place, I consider as how her loyal citizens has got their rights. Have a slice of bacon and a murphy? It ain't king's diet, but it's the best we've got and we're satisfied if you are."

Emilio looked askance at the coarse fare on the tin plate, but considered policy and politeness, and ate heroically.

"Now, young man," continued Stump, "you don't want us and we ain't goin' to leave. What yer goin' to do about it?"

"Do? But you mus' go. The land no is yours and you no can have. My father no will sell—no one leagus."

"And we don't kalkilate to pay no mor'n he kalkilates to sell. We're squattin'."

"Que?"

"Squattin'."

"I no understand."

"Well, you will in time, John, you explain. You've got more English'n I've got, to say nothing of yer Spanish."

"Well, it's this way," said Conly, hesitating and blushing a little. "Newcomers to a country who ain't got more money'n they want usually squats—that is to say, settles—builds a house and sows a crop on any place what takes their fancy. Now, we liked this place, after considerable prospectin', better'n any we'd seen, so we concluded to stay here. You won't find us bad neighbors, and we only want a mile. We won't take no more, honor bright, and you'll never miss it."

Don Emilio arose and laid down his tin plate. "Senors," he said with dignity, "I hear the Americanos are brave mens, but I find they are robbers. When they take our country I no mind, for I think it is the best, and I like the officers very much—very fine gentlemens. But all are not alike. I have come to ask you go—very quiet. Si, you not do it, senors, you feel very sorry."

"Oh, we'll take the chances," said Stump, no whit impressed, "We ain't goin'. You kin put that in your pipe and smoke it!"

The caballero's eyes flashed, but he made no retort. He bowed himself out and jumping on his horse galloped away.

IV.

"They'll try shootin' fust," said Stump, "so we'll fix up," and accordingly he and Conly boarded up the windows, barricaded the doors and bored holes for the muzzles of their guns. At about 4 o'clock the next day their precautions were justified. The hills bounding Potato Farm gave up a gay cavalcade of caballeros, who flourished pistols and conversed with excitement. They were some ten in number and were accompanied by the three daughters of Linda Vista. Rebosos draped the pretty heads and shoulders of the girls and their flowered gowns fluttered in the breeze. They threatened to divert from their grim purpose the young men that had responded to the call of the sons of the house of Sanchez.

They rode directly up to the cabin and circled about it. It was as silent as the tomb. The chimney was smokeless.

"They have gone!" cried Emilio. "All we have to do is to burn the insolent house."

"I would rather fight!" said one of the assisting caballeros, in accents of disappointment.

"You kin fight!" came a rumbling voice from the interior of the cabin. "We ain't gone or goin'. Fire away!"

"We will fire first into the air," whispered Emilio. "We will frighten them off if possible. I would not do murder." Ten pistols were fired into the air.

"That sounds mighty fine," remarked Mr. Stump. "But why don't you hit somethin'?"

"Senor," replied Emilio, sternly. "Will you go away? I give you one more chancacum!"

"What'n hell's that? But it's all the same. We ain't goin' to leave."

"Then we must kill you, senor!"

"Go it! You'd look well swingin' in the breeze in them circus clothes. And that's what American law'd do fur yu."

"What does he say?" demanded the Californians. Emilio translated, and the blood of the Californians boiled.

"Kill them! Kill them!" they shouted. They spurred their horses and galloped about the house, pelting it with bullets. "Bandoleros! Usurpers! Dogs!" they cried. Then, in a final burst of execration: "Americanos!"

The bullets sank peacefully into the soft wood. Neither shriek nor groan came from within. The caballeros paused to listen, and as silence fell Mr. Stump's voice was heard once more:

"Now, I'm goin' to shoot! And I'll hit. You kin hev five minutes to git out!"——

"Ha! ha!" exclaimed Conly's voice, "Do you see that there pretty girl?"

"Pretty girl be ——! This here episode ain't goin' to end in no romance! You 'tend to business, 'n' when I say shoot, shoot! Hear?"

"Of course I'll shoot. Them dolls make me sick. But the girl! Gosh!"

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Stump, loudly, "will you git?"

An excited conversation ensued without. The caballeros eyed the port ruding muzzles with disfavor. The girls counselled war. Their eyes flashed; their cheeks were scarlet. The women of California never willingly yielded to the foe. But prudence prevailed.

"We would only be shot down like dogs!" said Emilio. "We must go to law."

To law they went. The American Alcalde kept the case hanging for several years. Meanwhile, other squatters, encouraged by the success and invitation of Stump and Conly, flocked to Linda Vista, and planted their crops almost to the doors of the adobe mansion. The old Don stamped up and down his corridor in impotent wrath. The sons, like other sons of Californian grandees, drank themselves to death. The daughters married and went elsewhere. The Alcalde died. The Don died. The case fell out of court. The squatters are landholders and the Sanchez are forgotten.—Town Topics.

Gold Bars on the Street.

There was a great deal of excitement on Eleventh street, near Broadway, at noon today. It was at first supposed that somebody had been injured, but it was afterwards ascertained that the crowd was attracted by curiosity to witness the transhipment to San Francisco of two immense gold bars by means of the Whitney Rapid Transfer Company, whose office is at 1072 Broadway, corner Tenth street.

Gold, Silver or Nickel.

Booth & Johnson, the electro platers, have just completed the removal of their works to 520 Broadway. By the location of this establishment Oakland has gained another link in the chain of enterprise and many will be glad to know that they can get any kind of Gold, Silver, Copper and Bronze plating done. They make a specialty of silverware, jewelry, carriage rails and lamps, chandeliers, window stands and brackets for glass shelving.

Have You Observed?

Have you observed the new moving van of the People's Express and Transfer Company? It is another leaf in the calendar of their business enterprise. Manager Graham always has an eye on the necessities of the people of Oakland, and as winter is approaching he has met their requirements in having built one of the most unique moving vans known to a modern transfer business. It is a model in construction, ordered for the special purpose of moving furniture under cover, preventing the exposure of household goods to the weather while in transportation.

The People's Transfer Company makes a specialty of checking baggage at your residence to all parts of the United States. Their office is 418 Ninth street. Their telephone is 326.

The Press Clipping Bureau, 510 Montgomery street, San Francisco, furnishes all newspaper clippings on all subjects, business and personal.

Dames, the photographer, who recently was in business in Oakland, has opened a fine photographic establishment at 1116 Washington street. The firm's name is Dames & Dorsaz.

Adjudication of Insolvency.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT IN AND FOR the County of Alameda, State of California. In the matter of Martin M. Samson, an insolvent debtor.

Order of adjudication of insolvency.

Martin M. Samson having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, from which it appears that he is an insolvent debtor, the said Martin M. Samson is hereby declared to be insolvent. It is hereby ordered that Robert McKillican, Sheriff of Alameda County, be, and he is hereby appointed receiver of the property of said insolvent, and that upon his giving a bond to the People of the State of California, in the sum of $500 conditioned as required by law, and qualifying, he take charge and possession of all of the estate, real and personal, of said Martin M. Samson, insolvent debtor whatsoever and wheresoever situate, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep and care for and dispose of the same until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons having the same or any part thereof in his or their possession, are hereby directed to pay the same to said receiver, and that said receiver keep the said property, or the proceeds thereof, till the further order of this Court. And all persons are hereby forbidden to pay any debts to said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to such insolvent, to him, or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use, and the said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Superior Court of the County of Alameda, Department No. 1, in open court, at the courtroom of said court, in the County of Alameda, on the 21st day of January, 1895, at 10 o'clock A. RAIL RATES.

Comparisons Between Home and Foreign Lines.

What It Costs to Travel in European Cars.

Sleeping Car Fares in America Dearer Than Elsewhere.

Two recent publications—viz., the official guides respectively of the Compagnie Internationale des Wagons-Lits and the Guide Officiel des Voyageurs—possess an especial interest as giving an insight impossible to obtain without the most extensive personal journeying into the railroad systems of Europe, and suggest comparisons with our own. The French official guide is a pudgy little volume of something less than 1000 pages, containing not only the time tables of all railroads on the continent of Europe and North Africa, but also of the river and lake steamboats, with much interesting information in regard to the telegraph and postal services of the different countries, and many pages devoted to advertising and miscellaneous information. The Travelers' Official Guide to the railways in this country, published in New York, is more than double its size, without undertaking to give the same amount of information that is embraced in the foreign publication. This is a fair indication of the difference in the extent and detail of the two railway systems. The sleeping car guide is more suggestive, however. More than half its space is taken up with advertising, and the list of routes or lines embraced therein numbers just 100, covering the entire continent of Europe. Of these but sixty-one are sleeping car lines, some of which run but once or twice weekly and some only in the summer or winter season, as the case may be. The other thirty-nine lines are wagons-restaurant, in the dining cars upon which the charges for breakfast range from 3.50f. to 5f. and for dinner from 5f. to 7f., wine being extra. In the United States the number of sleeping car lines will not fall far short of 1000. The number of dining car lines is difficult to state, as many of them are operated by the individual railroad companies, while the majority are conducted by the Wagner and Pullman Companies. The usual charge in America is $1 per meal. In a few cases, however, luncheon and breakfast are charged at 75 cents, while the buffet cars, with meals served a la carte, appear to be coming much into favor.

The European center of travel, as of art and fashion, is Paris, and from the French capital diverge the most important lines. From London to Paris, the finest and fastest train is the famous Club train, leaving Victoria station at 9 a. m. and arriving at the Gare du Nord, Paris, at 10:47 p. m., traversing a total distance of 257 miles. This train is composed exclusively of first-class carriages, and the passenger is required to pay, in addition to the regular first-class fare of 42.50f., an excess fare of 18.75f., a total of 61.25f., or $18 20—a much higher rate than is charged upon any American train.

One of the principal fast express trains from Paris is the Sud express, which connects with the Club train from London, and makes the run of 902 miles to Madrid in twenty-eight hours, and the 1311 miles to Lisbon in forty-four hours, the usual time by other trains being thirty-five and fifty-nine hours, respectively. The railroad fare from Paris to Madrid is 164.65f. first-class. The sleeping car fare is 82.30f. to Madrid and 307.10f. to Lisbon.

To compare with American Trunk lines, the distance from New York to Chicago by the New York Central line is 975 miles, 74 more than from Paris to Madrid. The fare is $20, $12 43 less than the European first class and $3 33 less than the second class for the shorter distance. The excess fare on the North Shore Limited is but $3, and the sleeping car fare but $5, or less than one-third of that from Paris to Madrid. The Mediterraneau express is another fast train, which runs twice a week during the winter season between Paris and the Riviera via Marseilles, Nice and Monte Carlo—Vintimille being the terminus of the sleeping car line. It is 515 miles from Paris to Marseilles and 16 miles to Vintimille, the sleeping car fare to these points being respectively 45f and 60.50f. The distance from Paris to Marseilles is just about that from Chicago to Buffalo, and this train de luxe makes about the same time as the fast trains of the Michigan, Central and Lake Shore, but the railroad fare is much higher in France, and the sleeping car fare is just three times as much.

The sleeping car fare from Chicago to Utica—738 miles—is $4, less than one-third that from Paris to Vintimille. So on, examples might be multiplied to demonstrate that in Europe, where the cost of living is in almost all things much cheaper than in this country, travelers are obliged to pay from 20 to 60 per cent higher for accommodations on the railroads:

For closer comparison, the charges of the sleeping car lines may be tabulated as follows:

Route.	Miles.	Sleeping-Car Fare.
Paris to Marseilles	515	$ 9 00
Chicago to Buffalo	551	3 00
Paris to Vintimille	716	12 10
Chicago to Utica	738	4 00
Paris to Vienna	871	7 00
Paris to Rome	901	15 50
Paris to Madrid	902	36 10
New York to Chicago	970	5 00
Boston to Chicago	1035	5 50
Paris to Lisbon	1310	21 40
Paris to Brindisi	1341	17 00
St. Louis to Portland	1332	7 00

The comparisons, it will be observed, are very much in favor of the American railroads.

OAKLAND HOSPITAL

—AND—

Hotel for Invalids.

E. H. WOOLSEY, M. D.

SURGEON AND PHYSICIAN IN CHIEF.

Twelfth Street, Bet. Madison & Jackson

OAKLAND, CAL.

This institution is healthfully, pleasantly and conveniently located, occupying an entire block in a quiet neighborhood, surrounded by elegant private residences; and yet within four blocks of the Central Pacific and Narrow Gauge railroads, and accessible to their stations by the Brooklyn street cars.

The sewerage facilities are perfect. The wards and private rooms are large, sunny, well ventilated and appropriately furnished.

The building exteriorly, together with the ground, is attractive; interiorly the woodwork is of solid and carved walnut, the mantels of purest Italian marble and design, and the walls decorated with exquisite frescoes.

The Hospital Section, comprising Surgical, Medical, and Convalescent Wards, is separated from the section for Invalids, each department being provided with special corridors, bathrooms, electrical appliances. Dr. Louis Weigert's hot air treatment for diseases of the lungs, etc.

Steam, Medical and Electric Baths, and all the appointments of a first-class Hospital, and all the requirements, conveniences and comforts of a Private Home for Invalids are here provided.

The matron is an experienced nurse, and the nurses and attendants (male and female) are well trained and reliable.

Cranks of All Sorts Invade the Capital.

Washington's Monument Is a Favored Spot.

One Individual Insisted That He Could Push It Over.

Washington is the Mecca of cranks, and the Monument seems to be their principal shrine. Even the White House is not as attractive to them as the great white shaft which, from its vantage point on the Potomac flats, plays billiards with the clouds. It can be seen for miles around and seems to attract cranks as a candle does moths. The watchmen have become accustomed to this genus, and so long as they appear to be quiet and well disposed they usually deal gently with them, however wild their ideas. One man they tell of, says the Washington Post, declared that the monument was built of human skulls and bones, and persisted in pointing out the faces of friends in the stones; but perhaps this of lost specimen on record happened down there the other day.

When the watchman first observed him he was leaning heavily against the shaft, apparently pushing with all his might. At least it would push for a while, and then he would walk around to the other side, apparently to see if there were any people there.

The watchman watched this proceeding for a while and then accosted him.

"Beg pardon; you aren't going to push it over, are you?"

"I could if I wanted to," responded the man; then, with immense dignity, "My name is Samson."

"Oh, the strong man?" ventured the watchman, sizing up the man, who was about five feet five and not, apparently, very muscular. "Let me see, you were down at Kernan's Theater a few weeks ago, weren't you?"

"No, sir!" replied the man, sternly. "I am the reincarnated Samson of Biblical times; the one who overthrew the Philistines, slaying thousands with the jawbone of an ass, and afterwards pulling down the pillars of the Temple. Why, it would be mere child's play for me to upset this puny monument."

"Well, I wouldn't do it if I were you," expostulated the watchman, mildly. "You see, this is in memory of Washington; probably you have never heard of him, as he was a little after your time; but we moderns think a good deal of him. Then it cost the Government a good deal of money and took a good many years to build this monument, and a good many people would consider it unkind of you to destroy it. Take me, for instance. I am hired to watch it, and of course you would throw me out of a job. Besides, you might hurt somebody."

"No. I was very careful to look on the other side first," said the man. "But perhaps you think I can't do it. Now you just look up and see me shake it."

The watchman was agreeable. Now, it is a fact that when one stands directly at the base of the monument it appears to be toppling over. This is, of course, an optical delusion, caused by the clouds moving overhead, but it impressed the crank with his power.

"Did you see me shake it?" he inquired triumphantly.

"Yes," responded the watchman solemnly, "but I wouldn't do so any more. You might weaken the foundations, even if you didn't push it over. Besides, here comes a crowd of people, and not knowing who you are they might laugh at you. Then you would have to push it over to prove it to them."

"That's so," said the crank, and bidding the watchman good-day he departed and has not been seen about the monument since.

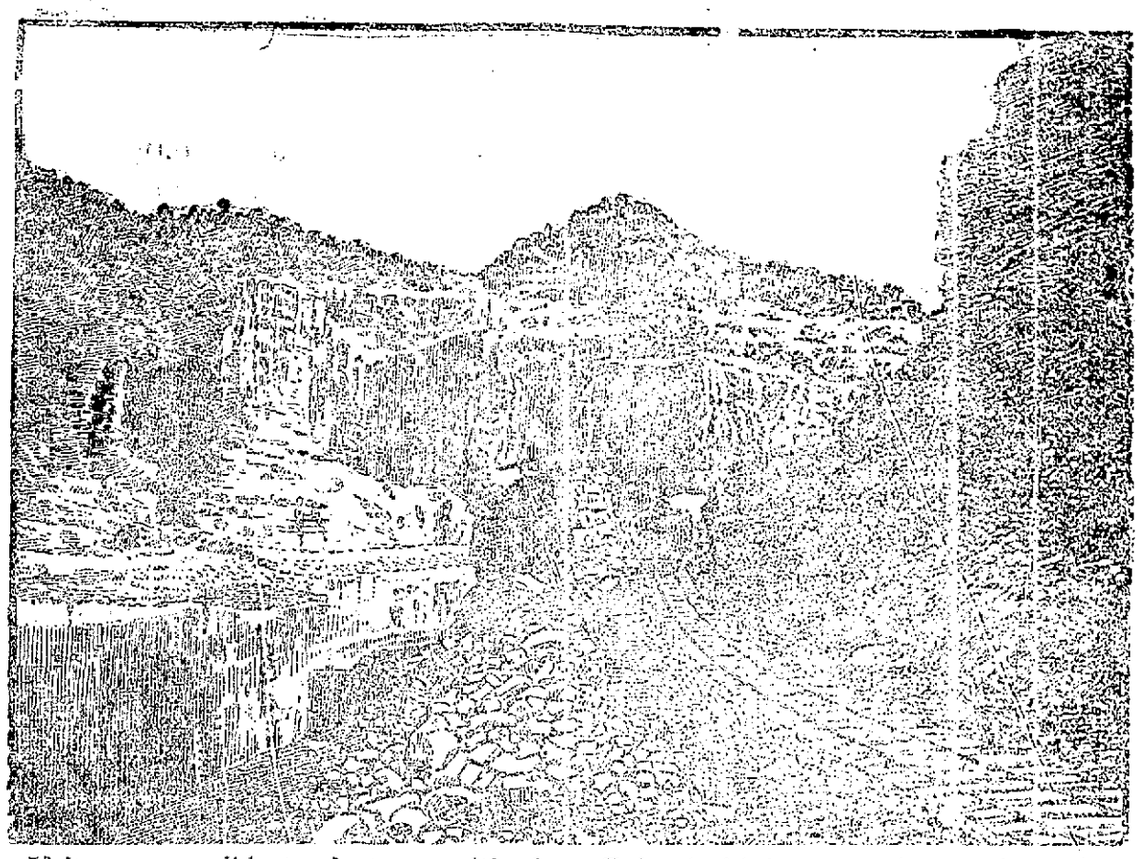
A Panorama of America!



If it were possible to rise to an altitude sufficiently high to permit an observer to view through a telescope the whole of North America at one time, what a wondrous spectable would meet his gaze. Beautiful as it might appear, yet the vision would not be half so satisfactory as that which is afforded by the Great Pictographic Portfolio,

Glimpses of America

Which THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE is now distributing among its subscribers. It is a grand procession of scenic wonderlands pictorially presented in a realism that is bewilderingly charming. By means of this most exquisite of all art works, the reader is carried in his easy rocking-chair to

All the Picturesque Regions of Our Country,

From sunny lands where zephyrs are redolent with the breath of orange blooms regions where frosted peaks catch the gleams from Ithuriel's spears and bathe glacial rivers in a light that rises from behind the polar throne. By its magic pages we are taken across the great plains into the heart of the mighty Rockies, and set down amid the witchery of chaotic nature. Thence to the Yosemite, and the wondrous Northwest to Alaska's icy climes. Back again over mountainous ways to Yellowstone Park, then on by Minnehaha's laughing waters to Superior's pictured shores, by Niagara's raging flood to the deep forests, mountains, rivers and gorges of Canada and the Northwest.

Thence into the smoky and Blue Ridge ranges, by famous battle-fields, the Natural Bridge, through the Dismal Swamp and whitened cotton fields into the lands of perennial summer. And while giving pictures of surprising beauty, Glimpses of America also

PRECIOUS GEMS.

An Expert Talks About the Many Varieties.

Counterfeits of Opals Are Well Nigh Impossible.

"The Stone of Death" Fast Coming Into Favor Again.

D. Earl of Sydney, Australia, is a dealer in precious stones.

In conversation with a St. Louis reporter Mr. Earl said: "I have been engaged in the precious stone business for the past twenty-five years, and for the past nine years have been a resident of Australia. Three-fourths of my time is spent in traveling, as I annually make a business tour of the world. I deal in pearls, opals, sapphires, emeralds and rubies, all of which, with the exception of pearls, I purchase in Australia and New South Wales.

The pearl is found in large quantities in St. George's Sound, off the Australian coast, and in the Indian Ocean, near the Island of Ceylon. Speaking of the popular gems, do you know that the opal, around which so much superstition has been cast, is coming into popular favor, and today more of these beautiful gems are sold in this country than any other stone, except the gem of gems, the diamond.

"About nine years ago the Australian opal was first placed on the market. Previous to that time those from Hungary were considered the finest, but the more beautiful and delicate tints and a greater variegation of colors of the Australian opal have won for it the supremacy above all others.

"Of all stones the opal is the only one that cannot be successfully counterfeited. The delicacy of its tints has proved too difficult of imitation, and all attempts to reproduce that gem artificially have resulted in failures.

"There are two kinds of opals, the sandstone and the matrix. Of these the former is found imbedded in a formation of sandstone and the latter in an ironstone formation. Very often, in breaking the crusts, the gem is partially broken or destroyed.

"In Russia the opal is still called the stone of death and few are worn, and in England, too, the people look upon it with disfavor. The unlucky significance attached to this most beautiful stone is due to Sir Walter Scott, who, in one of his novels, wrote of it so unfavorably that for a long time few could be induced to wear them.

"The majority of persons think that all sapphires are blue in color, but many are found in gray, pink, white and brown. The sapphire is found in many countries, but it is only the Oriental stone which is of various colors. The white sapphire is of the least value, and the brown is often mistaken for a topaz; those of other colors, however, are of nearly equal value. In some of these gems a peculiar formation known as the star is found. This increases its value to a large extent, and when cut so as to reveal this peculiarity a perfect star of six or eight points is brought into prominence. The sapphire is not a favorite stone. During the day its blue depths are beauteous to behold, but at night the stone presents a blackish appearance.

"On the other hand, the emerald is among the most popular of the precious stones, but I doubt if a perfect stone of this kind can be found. In the best of emeralds a close examination will reveal what the lapidaries term 'feathers,' which destroy its brilliancy to some extent. Emeralds bring a better price than diamonds where the stone is of two or more carats in weight.

"The duty on precious stones has been increased since the Wilson bill became a law. Formerly the uncut stones were admitted free, and upon the cut and polished stones a duty of 10 per cent was imposed. Now the duty is 10 per cent on uncut gems and 25 per cent on finished stones. The dealers will therefore increase the price of the various gems to meet the additional increase in cost."

BITS OF GOSSIP.

The Grand Duke of Baden, who has shown his anger at the dismissal of Count von Caprivi, is the most popular and influential ruler in all Germany. He is the Emperor's uncle.

Governor John Gary Evans of South Carolina is the youngest man who ever filled that office in that State. He is 31. The newly elected Attorney General of the State, W. A. Barber, had been practicing law barely four years, and is not yet 25, while the Adjutant General Watts has just reached that age.

Dr. Parkhurst, the energetic reformer of New York City was a Massachusetts boy. He was reared on the rocky hills of Worcester county, where likely enough his favorite recreation, Alpine climbing, was formed. Parkhurst pere was a schoolmaster, who ran a farm summers and taught school winters. The family removing to Clinton, Charles had further schooling and then went into a dry goods store. But the boy had an ambition to become a student and finally went back to school and prepared for college. He graduated from Amherst in the class of '66.

That the Emperor and Empress of Russia are starting in right is manifested by their walking about the streets of St. Petersburg quite like ordinary people and making such purchases in the shops as tempt the bride's fancy.

It is said that the only lineal descendant of John Knox, the Scotch reformer, is a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross at Notre Dame.—New York Tribune.

Professor Leyden, the famous German physician, who was called to attend the dying Emperor of Russia, received $50,000 for his fee.

Queen Victoria did more than President Cleveland. In her message to President Dole of Hawaii she commended the new republic to the protection of the Almighty.

M. Ernst Carnot, son of the late President of France, who is an engineer, has been appointed private secretary of M. Picard, who is Commissioner General of the Paris Exposition of 1900.

The Water Front Case On.

Now Will Come the Final Test.

A Brilliant Array of Attorneys at the Bar.

Great Interest Being Expressed in the Litigation.

The Southern Pacific and the State Are Pitted.

Special to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—One of the most important cases of the year was taken up in the United States Supreme Court today.

It involves the validity of the title of the Southern Pacific Company to the water front of Oakland, Cal.

The grant was originally made in 1852 to the town of Oakland, then a mere hamlet, of a large tract of land, extending from high water mark to ship channel, to enable the town (which was incorporated in the same act) to create a harbor and construct wharves.

This grant was conveyed to Horace W. Carpentier by the Trustees of the town on his agreement to perform certain conditions required of the town by the granting of an act of the Legislature.

Controversies arose between Carpentier and the authorities of Oak and after its incorporation as a city in 1854.

Claims were all adjusted in 1865 under the authority which the Legislature conferred on the City Council and Mayor for the purpose.

From Carpentier the title now attacked by the State of California was transferred to the Railroad Company.

The present suit is brought to quiet title.

For the State of California appeared Attorney General Hart and A. R. Colton of California.

For the Southern Pacific appeared H. T. Brown of California, Senator Stewart of Nevada, Representative-elect Cowan of Maryland and ex-Assistant Attorney General J. Hubley Ashton of Washington.

The city of Oakland is represented by James A. Johnson, William R. Davis, W. L. Hill and E. J. Pringle.

AS FROM THE GRAVE.

A Startling Scene in the Morgue at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., December 19.—George H. Barbour, a young insurance clerk, supposed to have been murdered at Pana, Ill., walked into the morgue today, where half a dozen associates had gathered to identify the body.

Barbour's father was present and an affecting scene followed.

The body of a young man found buried near the railroad track at Pana had been fully identified by the father as that of his son.

Young Barbour refused to say anything regarding his disappearance on Thanksgiving Day.

NOW HE MUST PAY UP.

Lee Danner Found Guilty of Wronging Miss Slinkard.

VISALIA, Cal., December 19.—The jury in the case of the People versus Lee Danner, charged with the seduction of Laura Slinkard of White River, on a promise of marriage, rendered a verdict this morning of guilty.

The case was sensational and occupied fourteen days on trial.

The defendant was found guilty on the first ballot.

A Lot of Important Business Before Congress.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill Is Under Debate.

Spirited Talking in the House Regarding the Currency.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—Immediately upon the convening of the Senate, the Vice President laid before he Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting the report of Admiral Walker on the subject of Hawaii, which the Senate called for by resolution.

The letter and report were referred without discussion, to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Pasco of Florida reported from the Committee on Public Lands the bill extending the act relating to abandoned military reservations. Passed without division.

A resolution was introduced by Allen of Nebraska providing for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the political affairs of Alabama, which at his request was laid on the table in order that he might submit some remarks on it later.

He also introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the Senate restaurant.

Allen was about to speak on this matter, when Hale of Maine interposed an objection to its immediate consideration and it went over.

Bate of Tennessee called up the bill to establish a national military park at the battlefield of Shiloh. The bill was passed.

The resolution offered yesterday by Lodge, calling on the President for the correspondence in the Ezeta extradition case, was passed without division.

The Senate then took up the Nicaraguan Canal bill.

Turpie, who had the floor when the Senate adjourned yesterday, yielded to Cullom.

It was remarkable, Cullom thought, that the world had submitted to delay so long in the construction of a canal, the building of which was regarded as a commercial necessity.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at the meeting today decided to report favorably on the Japanese treaty at the next executive session of the Senate.

THE HOUSE.

The Debate Continues on the Currency Bill.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—As soon as the regular routine had been disposed of today on motion of Springer the House went into executive session and debate on the Currency bill was resumed.

Johnson of Indiana, one of the members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, opened with a vigorous speech in opposition to the Carlisle bill.

Admitting the defects of our currency system he said perfection could not be obtained by the passage of a bill along the lines suggested by the Banking and Currency Committee.

It was much easier to attack the present system than to offer a substitute.

The present system had given the country back the currency which enabled the Government to carry on the war and produced a market for our bonds in the hour of danger and peril.

The currency it produced had never been questioned.

This was no time for experimental legislation. There is no need for indecent speed.

Rev. Dr. Wetzell at Christian Church.

Rev. Dr. Wetzell, the popular pastor of the church at Woodland, will preach tonight at the First Christian Church, corner Thirteenth and Market streets. He will attend also the supper and old-fashioned sociable tomorrow night at the church. A reception to all the converts of the late Martin meeting is the occasion of the supper and sociable. The public is invited. Dr. Wetzell is the guest of Rev. Dr. Sweeney at the Crellin Hotel.

Suspect George Rae Under a Hot Fire.

Eye-Witnesses Tell the Story of the Robbery.

The preliminary examination of George Rae, charged with robbing Secretary Gilson of the Judson Iron Works of $15,000, was resumed this morning before Justice Shaw in Judge Cliff's courtroom.

The room was packed with spectators, and the atmosphere was thick enough to be cut with a knife.

The prisoner was brought into court by Constable Page, and took a seat beside his counsel, H. W. Aldrich.

The State was represented by Assistant District Attorney Church.

Before the proceedings closed yesterday afternoon some very important testimony came out.

The suspect in Sacramento, was, in the estimation of Secretary Gilson, six feet tall, or two inches taller than he supposed the robber to be. If the defendant should be placed against the wall and should measure six feet, it would not convince the witness that the defendant is not the taller of the two robbers.

Witness was also called to identify men who worked in the Judson works and resided in San Francisco, but without satisfactory results.

He then told of his examination of Glover and son in the County Jail, the son having been arrested on suspicion of being the black man, but witness was unable to identify him. He did not know of any others whom he had been called on to identify as the robbers.

First saw the defendant, to be positive of the identification, about a week ago. Would not swear that he had not seen him before. If he did see him before that time, it was when the defendant stood him up on the train.

The defendant then stood up for examination, and witness said that the prisoner is a trifle taller than the one who robbed him.

On redirect examination, Gilson stated that the defendant bears a stronger resemblance to the tall robber than any of the suspects he examined. Rae resembled the robber in the general appearance of his face.

On re-cross-examination, he said the small robber was about 5 feet 8 inches, sturdily built, dark complexion, dark around the eyes and would weigh probably 150 pounds.

Assistant District Attorney Church then took the witness again and elicited from him that the face of the Sacramento suspect bore a general resemblance to the face of the robber with the linen duster.

AN EYE WITNESS' TESTIMONY.

James R. Campbell of 1917 Tenth street, Sacramento, testified that he was on the train at the time of the robbery.

"Did you see the defendant on the train?" asked Mr. Church.

"I did," was the answer.

"Under what circumstances did you see him?"

"I saw him in connection with that gentleman" (indicating Mr. Gilson).

Rae's face flushed as the witness made this statement.

"I first saw the defendant when he was making Gilson hold up his hands. He came in with another man. The other man had a darkened face, but I could see under the black that the man had a light complexion. The other man had an overall suit. Gilson had at least one sack apparently full of money. The defendant made Gilson throw up his hands by putting a six-shooter in his face. The man with the dark face had a gun pointed at Gilson also. Gilson then handed the money to the tailor robber. I took a six-shooter out of my hip pocket. I took it out to shoot that man (indicating Rae), but I put it in my coat pocket again without shooting, because I took the matter under consideration. The man with the overalls walked out of the car, and the defendant backed out, holding the money bag in one hand and the revolver in the other. When he got near the door he put money and gun in one hand and raised up his hat with his left hand."

The witness described this occurrence as taking place some distance from the station. He described the flight of the robbers as has already been told many times.

He was asked if he could identify the defendant.

Witness stood up in a somewhat excited manner and replied, "I can swear to it before God, man and the devil, because I saw him on the train. He looks just as he did the day on the train, except that his face is not so full as it was then, and that he had a mustache which was lighter in color than his hair, and that he had what I call a 'County Antrim' on the right side of his face."

The term "County Antrim" was meant to designate a small side whisker.

At this moment Rae subjected the witness to a very sharp, piercing gaze. The witness noticed the stare and returned it with interest, saying at the same time to the prisoner: "I can look you in the face, my friend, because I've seen you before."

From the moment Campbell testified that he identified Rae, the expression of the defendant's face became very serious. He seemed to think that things were getting a little too warm to be smiled at as he had been doing during the greater part of Gilson's testimony.

On cross-examination Campbell admitted that he had been subpœnaed by a constable of Judge Cliff's court, but that he did not see the defendant until he (witness) came into the court in the morning and the prisoner was pointed out to him.

The story was again gone over but not a change was made in the recital.

He had never, he said, been called before to identify a robber in this case.

He believed that the mustache and side-whiskers worn by the defendant were false.

The description which he gave Captain Lees of the tall robber was that of a man 44 or 45 years old, dark hair, weight 160 pounds, about 5 feet, 10 inches, with a long grey duster.

Could not say that the short man had had a mustache or beard. He would weigh 160 pounds and was about 5 feet 7 inches in height. As he threw up his head witness could see that a part of his neck was not blackened and the "Adam's apple" in his throat appeared very prominently.

Witness had worked as a car conductor, but could not tell whether not at the time of the robbery he was a conductor or an expressman.

Never spoke to French on the subject of identifying the accused and did not know that French had anything to do in the matter until he (the witness) came to the court.

The cross-examination continued and the attorney got the witness to partially admit that he had not heard the voice of either the tall or short man before the robbery and yet witness claimed that it was the voice of the tall man he had heard issuing the order to throw up the hands. The attorney then asked how witness knew which of the two men had issued the order.

"By common sense," exclaimed the witness, rising up on the stand.

"You did not see their faces?" suggested the attorney.

"I did see the faces. I saw part of them when they were looking around the car and watching. I knew it was the tall man who issued the order because of his actions, just as I would know from my own action if, when you were on the police force, I should walk up to you and ram a gun into your face," pointing his finger like an imaginary gun at Mr. Aldrich.

"I'd break your jaw," said Mr. Aldrich, evidently nettled at the familiarity displayed by the witness.

"You would not break my jaw," defiantly responded the witness, "because, although you are a bigger man than I am, I could knock you out."

Aldrich glowered at Campbell, and for a time it looked as if there was to be trouble, but the thing quieted down and the cross-examination was resumed.

Campbell said he knew from the manner in which Rae was filled out around the breast that he had steel plates inside to protect him.

The cross-examination closed without Campbell's testimony being shaken.

He was subpœnaed by the defense to testify for them as he left the stand, and was ordered to report in court until wanted.

THE BRAKEMAN'S STORY.

J. J. Rivers, residing at the corner of Second and Harrison streets, was the first witness for the State today. He was formerly a brakeman on the Berkeley local. He was on the train on which the robbery took place on June 11, 1892. He was going, he said, to Berryman station and was riding in the third car from the engine. He was on the platform. When the train reached B street station he got off. Saw one man with a linen duster get off first. The man was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and would weigh about 175 pounds. He had on a brown felt hat and had a drooping mustache. He ran to a buggy which was hitched to a telegraph pole. The buggy had a top. The horse hitched to it was a dark one. The top was down and the outfit looked like a country rig.

Witness went on to state that when the train left the pier, the man with the duster was sitting in the third seat from the rear of the end of the train. The man with the duster was facing the engine. Witness was attracted by the duster. He took a look at the man's face. Saw Secretary Gilson on the car but further forward in the car. Gilson had two seats turned toward one another. He was accompanied by Mortenson. One faced the other. There were two sacks in the seat beside Mortenson. There was also a man with a black face. Witness had seen him at the pier before the train left and thought he recognized him as an acquaintance and spoke to him. Witness thought, because of the man's blackened face that the latter had been at work at the coal bunkers. He did not see him again until the blackened man got off the train at B street with the man with the duster. Both the black man and the man with the duster walked leisurely toward the buggy, got into it and rode away. The tall man carried a revolver in his right hand down by his side and had out of the sacks of money in his left. The black man carried a revolver and sack in the same manner. Witness at the time did not think that any person had been robbed. When he heard the shooting he supposed that some person was shooting at the sea gulls. Witness said he could hardly identify the tall man if he should see him again, because he took only a passing glance at him as he was going away.

Witness then was directed to look at the defendant Rae and tell whether or not he was the man whom he had seen in the duster. He replied that the defendant resembled the man in the duster, with the exception that on the day of the robbery the tall man had a mustache.

Nothing important was elicited in the cross-examination.

AN EYE-WITNESS' STORY.

The next witness was Mrs. M. Lewis, who resides at 1109½ Ninth street, San Francisco. She was also a passenger on the train on which the robbery was committed. She said that before she would give her testimony she desired to know who was to pay her expenses to this city. She said she had come here at some expense, and occasioned herself a great deal of trouble to comply with the subpœna.

Judge Shaw said he would give her an order on the Auditor after her evidence had been taken.

Mrs. Lewis testified that on the day of the robbery she took the 11 o'clock Berkeley local at the pier. When she was going aboard she had been pulled back, she said, by a man in a new overall jumper and a black face. The man with the black face was accompanied by another man in a long duster. She also saw Mr. Gilson get on the train with another man, each carrying a bag which seemed to contain money. Witness was accompanied by another woman, to whom she pointed out Gilson and his companion with their bags of money.

She said she thought Gilson and his friend were going to the races and that the money they had in the sacks was to be used in the pools. Witness stood on the platform of the car behind that in which Gilson was seated, and as she was about to enter the car in which was Gilson the man in the jumper and the black face pulled her back a second time, entered the car and took a seat behind Gilson. When the train reached B-street station there was a commotion. People rushed out of the car containing Mr. Gilson and told her for God's sake to get out of the way because they were going to shoot inside. At that moment the black man and the tall man

The Long List of Defeats Now Demand Prompt Action.

SHANGHAI, December 19.—Local papers state that an imperial decree was issued December 17th for the arrest and handing over to the Board of Punishment of Taoti Kung, General Wei Wu Chang, Tung Sellin, Chiang Kwto and Ching Yueh, for losing Port Arthur; Tsao Hue Ye, commander at Talien Wong, for cowardice; Wie Wu Kwei, commander of ship, for incapacity to control his men and permitting them to pillage Ko Yeh; Chiu Chav, commander-in-chief in Chihli, for sending false reports of victories, whereas he retreated from Yashan and lost Ping Yang and Anchow, and Admiral Ting, for failing to protect Port Arthur and for cowardice.

It is reported that the authorities refused passports to detachments of Russian marines sent to guard the legation of Russia.

THE JAPANESE MOVEMENTS.

YOKOHAMA, December 19.—The first Japanese army under the command of Field Marshal Nodzu (Field Marshal Yamagata having been invalided home) is operating from Chien Lan Chang, with detachments thrown out towards New Chwang and Moukden.

Little headway is being made.

The country is difficult to traverse and the enemy is making resistance.

It appears the first army is not anxious to get to Chwang or Shanghai Kwang, before the other forces are ready to strike Tien Tsin.

A searching official inquiry is being made into the Port Arthur atrocities.

A PROTEST.

Interests Below Seventh Street Are Affected.

Objections Are Raised to the Proposed Gates.

A Meeting Is to Be Held Tonight at the Courthouse.

Editor Tribune—SIR: The ordinances which are introduced in the City Council providing for the use of gates on Seventh street and other railway street crossings in the city of Oakland have provoked much discussion and adverse criticism, particularly among the residents and property owners south of Seventh street, who view the ordinances as another blow against their business interests, and as erecting what they denominate a dead-line between them and the more northerly portion of the city. They have been, since the advent of the cars on Seventh street, in a manner cut off from the main business portion of the city by the double tracks on that street, which have greatly reduced the travel south of that line and consequently laid an embargo upon merchants and business men located in that district.

This was a severe blow to parties who had invested their money in real estate and business enterprises south of the track and one which should not have been permitted nor continued now if there is any power in the authorities of the city to push the Seventh street line to First street. This course would also remove the causes which induce members of the City Council to take up the question of gating the streets at that point, as very few streets intersect the railroad track on First street, whereas upwards of forty streets intersect the Seventh street line.

We are not sufficiently skilled in the legal aspect of the matter to be able to venture an opinion as to the power of the city authorities to effect this change, but we feel satisfied that the interests of the public are always paramount to those either of private persons or corporations, and that what the public welfare demands can generally be accommodated by legal means. This being the general rule, we are unable to discern any good reason for making the Seventh street line an exception to it, as there can scarcely be any question that the interests of the city, both from the standpoint of safety and business, would be greatly promoted if this change was effected.

But to return to the gates. The ordinances providing for their establishment have wrought up a fury in the southern district, and a meeting of the property owners and residents of that locality has been called at the Courthouse this evening to give voice and direction to public sentiment upon the question, at which meeting, no doubt, the subject in all its phases will be fully ventilated.

We are not aware of all the grounds of objection to the gates which there residents entertain, but from many expressions upon the street the opinion seems to be general that the erecting of the gates on each side of the street, at its intersection with the cross streets, will create an additional barrier, or what is termed a dead-line, completely shutting out the people south of Seventh street from the principal part of the city, and raising up, as it were, a more formidable division between the two sections than that which is created by the tracks themselves. This is the view entertained from a standpoint of interest, and it would seem that there is much force and reason upon which to base it.

THE PROTECTIVE POINT.

From the standpoint of protection, we are very doubtful that the necessities of the case are sufficient to justify the erection of the gates, and more especially that the gates would secure the results contemplated by the authors of the measure. It must be borne in mind that Seventh street is not exclusively used by the railroad company, but serves the purpose of a public street as well, and many instances may, and doubtless will occur, if the gates are erected, when persons driving on Seventh street in the face of an approaching train with fractious or frightened animals will be cut off by the gates from any avenue of escape from the dangers and perils of their position, and thus the gates may become a death-trap, rather than instruments for protection.

It is our opinion that the dangers from this source are quite as imminent and pressing as that to be anticipated by vehicles on the streets, especially if the city ordinances require a flagman to be stationed on all dangerous crossings in the city. However, these matters, of course, are all the subject of consideration and intelligent action by the City Council, who will no doubt be governed in the matter by what they consider to be for the best interests of the people; but as the use of gates has never been tried in Oakland, it would seem to be dictated by ordinary prudence that the experiment be inaugurated by the completion of a limited number in localities of extraordinary hazard, and ascertain their practical efficiency and utility before requiring their construction throughout the entire city.

This course would insure the approval of the whole people, and could not be seriously opposed by the railroad company, whereas to require the Government to be made to the extent of the gating of all crossings in the city would be the infliction of an extraordinary expense in case they should prove to be less potential than expected by their promoters.

ANTI-DEADFALL.

KELLY IS DEAD.

The Well-known Irish-American Passes Away.

How He Rose From Poverty to Great Wealth.

The Foundation of His Fortune Was Laid in the West.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Eugene Kelly, the banker, died today, aged 87.

Kelly was born in Trellick, County Tyrone, Ireland, and at the age of 20 came to this country.

His first position was that of clerk in Donnelly Brothers' dry-goods store in this city.

He tried gold mining in 1849, and later started the San Francisco banking house of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston.

During the war he moved his business to New York and lost considerable in Southern loans.

In spite of this, however, he amassed money at a great rate until, when he retired from active business a few years ago, he was reputed to be worth from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

His pocket book was always open to any fund intended for the benefit of the Irish movement.

After W. C. Ralston withdrew from the banking firm of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston and started the Bank of California, the firm name was changed to Donohoe, Kelly & Co. In 1868 Kelly returned to New York and established a branch bank under the firm name of Eugene Kelly & Co. The bank enjoyed public confidence in a marked degree and tided safely over every financial crisis which it encountered.

He remained in active banking life for fifty years, severing his connection with the Donohoe-Kelly Banking Company of San Francisco less than a year ago and retiring from the management of his bank in New York in favor of his son, to seek rest and health in the mild climate of Florida. He leaves two sons, who succeed him in the banking house of Eugene Kelly & Co.

Another Football Fatality.

PHILADELPHIA, December 19.—George S. Young of the Frankford football eleven, injured December 13th in a game, is dead as a result of a kick on the head. An abscess formed at the base of the brain.

Gold in Demand.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—A dispatch from the Sub-Treasury Department at New York today reported that $500,000 gold was withdrawn this morning. This leaves $90,910,430 gold in the Treasury. The cash balance is $154,460,500.

A Prisoner's Sad Fix.

James Phillips, serving a term of three months in the County Jail for petty larceny, is suffering from inflammation of the eyes. His sight is failing fast and the jail officials fear that the prisoner will be blind if a change for the better does not occur very soon.

IN NEED.

Distress Must Be Relieved.

Gloom Reigns in Many a Home.

Make the Poor Happy on Christmas Day.

Send in a Donation to "The Tribune's" Relief Fund.

Donations continue to pour into The Tribune's Christmas Relief Bureau for the aid of the poor during the Christmas holidays.

It is expected that these donations will continue and be increased during these next few days, so that there will be quite a large stock of assorted goods, with which to make the destitute happy at least during this gladsome period of the year.

Any person who knows how really miserable many of the residents of this city are without a slight contribution of food, fuel or clothing, which can easily be spared, with the certainty of relieving the wretchedness of their fellow man or woman,

Any goods sent to the bureau, 482 Eighth street, will be cheerfully received and acknowledged in the columns of this paper.

This has been stormy weather, but several donations have been received at the bureau.

A poor woman called and handed in 25 cents. She declined to give her name, but finally said that the management could characterize the donation as "a widow's mite."

Cotton Brothers sent in three bags of fine potatoes.

Parker & Fish, the grocers and produce dealers, contributed a ton of hay.

Supervisor J. D. Johnston sent in an unusually large sack of potatoes.

WANTS TO SEE HIS MOTHER.

So Desperado Newell Surrenders in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 19.—Ted Newell, the young Colorado desperado, who in October last broke jail in Denver, where he was incarcerated under charges of train wrecking, highway robbery, burglary and assault to murder, surrendered himself to the San Francisco police this morning and will be taken back to Denver.

"The reason I surrender," he explained, "is that my poor old mother is in Denver and I want to see her before she dies."

LOOKS LIKE A FIGHT.

Litigants Have Trouble in Judge Allen's Court.

A lively personal encounter was with difficulty averted in Judge Allen's courtroom this morning.

The case of Farwell & Sons against Harry Richards to recover $79 90 for money loaned and goods purchased was set for 11 o'clock.

While waiting for the case to be called the elder Farwell and Richards engaged in a dispute. The latter claimed Farwell had cheated him out of some money. Farwell angrily called his tormentor a liar. Richards sprang to his feet and attempted to strike his enemy, but several attorneys stepped in and forced him to his seat till he cooled down.

BLAMES HIS WIFE.

W. B. Porter Defends Himself in Court.

W. B. Porter of Fruit Vale, who has been arrested, on complaint of his wife, for failure to provide for his little child, appeared in the Police Court this morning, and his case was set for January 3, 1895. Porter claims his arrest is due to spite work on the part of his wife, and that when he married her he possessed $200. Against his wife's wishes he invested it and lost it all. She then sued for a divorce and, to "rub it in," had him arrested on the present charge.

A Ship Ashore.

PORTLAND, Or., December 19.—News has reached here that the schooner Mary Gilbert, Captain Dodge, from San Francisco to Alsea Bay for lumber, went ashore on the night of the 15th inst. just inside the entrance to Alsea bay. She will probably be a total loss.

A Lonely End.

John Gallegher, a native of Ireland, 45 years old, was taken in an unconscious condition from a garret at the corner of Franklin and Seventh streets yesterday, and died at the Receiving Hospital last night. He is supposed to have a sister residing at San Jose. He will be buried by the county.

A Constable After Fees.

John Hines, Frank Williams and John Dao were arrested at the Sixteenth street depot last night by a Deputy Constable, on charge of evading payment of railroad fare.

A Brilliant Array of Attorneys at the Bar.

Great Interest Being Expressed in the Litigation.

The Southern Pacific and the State Are Pitted.

Special to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—One of the most important cases of the year was taken up in the United States Supreme Court today.

It involves the validity of the title of the Southern Pacific Company to the water front of Oakland, Cal.

The grant was originally made in 1852 to the town of Oakland, then a mere hamlet, of a large tract of land extending from high water mark to ship channel, to enable the town (which was incorporated in the same act) to create a harbor and construct wharves.

This grant was conveyed to Horace W. Carpentier by the Trustees of the town on his agreement to perform certain conditions required of the town by the granting of an act of the Legislature.

Controversies arose between Carpentier and the authorities of Oak and after its incorporation as a city in 1854.

Claims were all adjusted in 1868 under the authority which the Legislature conferred on the City Council and Mayor for the purpose.

From Carpentier the title now attacked by the State of California was transferred to the Railroad Company.

The present suit is brought to quiet title.

For the State of California appeared Attorney General Hart and A. R. Cotton of California.

For the Southern Pacific appeared H. T. Brown of California, Senator Stewart of Nevada, Representative-elect Cowan of Maryland and ex-Assistant Attorney General J. Hubley Ashton of Washington.

The city of Oakland is represented by James A. Johnson, William R. Davis, W. L. Hill and E. J. Pringle.

AS FROM THE GRAVE.

A Startling Scene in the Morgue at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., December 19.—George H. Barbour, a young insurance clerk, supposed to have been murdered at Pana, Ill., walked into the morgue today, where half a dozen associates had gathered to identify the body.

Barbour's father was present and an affecting scene followed.

The body of a young man found buried near the railroad track at Pana had been fully identified by the father as that of his son.

Young Barbour refused to say anything regarding his disappearance on Thanksgiving Day.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill Is Under Debate.

Spirited Talking in the House Regarding the Currency.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—Immediately upon the convening of the Senate, the Vice President laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting the report of Admiral Walker on the subject of Hawaii, which the Senate called for by resolution.

The letter and report were referred without discussion, to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Pasco of Florida reported from the Committee on Public Lands the bill extending the act relating to abandoned military reservations. Passed without division.

A resolution was introduced by Allen of Nebraska providing for the appointment of a select committee to investigate the political affairs of Alabama, which at his request was laid on the table in order that he might submit some remarks on it later.

He also introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the Senate restaurant.

Allen was about to speak on this matter, when Hale of Maine interposed an objection to its immediate consideration and it went over.

Bate of Tennessee called up the bill to establish a national military park at the battlefield of Shiloh. The bill was passed.

The resolution offered yesterday by Lodge, calling on the President for the correspondence in the Ezeta extradition case, was passed without division.

The Senate then took up the Nicaraguan Canal bill.

Turpie, who had the floor when the Senate adjourned yesterday, yielded to Cullom.

It was remarkable, Cullom thought, that the world had submitted to delay so long in the construction of a canal, the building of which was regarded as a commercial necessity.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at the meeting today decided to report favorably on the Japanese treaty at the next executive session of the Senate.

THE HOUSE.

The Debate Continues on the Currency Bill.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—As soon as the regular routine had been disposed of today on motion of Springer the House went into executive session and debate on the Currency bill was resumed.

Johnson of Indiana, one of the members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, opened with a vigorous speech in opposition to the Carlisle bill.

Admitting the defects of our currency system he said perfection could not be obtained by the passage of a bill along the lines suggested by the Banking and Currency Committee.

It was much easier to attack the present system than to offer a substitute.

The present system had given the country back the currency which enabled the Government to carry on the war and produced a market for our bonds in the hour of danger and peril.

The currency it produced had never been questioned.

This was no time for experimental legislation. There is no need for indecent speed.

Suspect George Rae Under a Hot Fire.

Eye-Witnesses Tell the Story of the Robbery.

The preliminary examination of George Rae, charged with robbing Secretary Gilson of the Judson Iron Works of $15,000, was resumed this morning before Justice Shaw in Judge Clift's courtroom.

The room was packed with spectators, and the atmosphere was thick enough to be cut with a knife.

The prisoner was brought into court by Constable Page, and took a seat beside his counsel, H. W. Aldrich.

The State was represented by Assistant District Attorney Church.

Before the proceedings closed yesterday afternoon some very important testimony came out.

The suspect in Sacramento, was, in the estimation of Secretary Gilson, six feet tall, or two inches taller than he supposed the robber to be. If the defendant should be placed against the wall and should measure six feet, it would not convince the witness that the defendant is not the taller of the two robbers.

Witness was also called to identify men who worked in the Judson works and resided in San Francisco, but without satisfactory results.

He then told of his examination of Gilson and son in the County Jail, the son having been arrested on suspicion of being the black man, but witness was unable to identify him. He did not know of any others whom he had been called on to identify as the robbers.

First saw the defendant, to be positive of the identification, about a week ago. Would not swear that he had not seen him before. If he did see him before that time, it was when the defendant stood him up on the train.

The defendant then stood up for examination, and witness said that the prisoner is a trifle taller than the one who robbed him.

On redirect examination, Gilson stated that the defendant bears a stronger resemblance to the tall robber than any of the suspects he examined. Rae resembled the robber in the general appearance of his face.

On re-cross-examination, he said the small robber was about 5 feet 8 inches, sturdily built, dark complexion, dark around the eyes and would weigh probably 150 pounds.

Assistant District Attorney Church then took the witness again and elicited from him that the face of the Sacramento suspect bore a general resemblance to the face of the robber with the linen duster.

AN EYE WITNESS' TESTIMONY.

James R. Campbell of 1917 Tenth street, Sacramento, testified that he was on the train at the time of the robbery.

"Did you see the defendant on the train?" asked Mr. Church.

"I did," was the answer.

"Under what circumstances did you see him?"

"I saw him in connection with that gentleman" (indicating Mr. Gilson).

Rae's face flushed as the witness made this statement.

"I first saw the defendant when he was making Gilson hold up his hands. He came in with another man. The other man had a darkened face, but I could see under the black that the man had a light complexion. The other man had an overall suit. Gilson had at least one sack apparently full of money. The defendant made Gilson throw up his hands by putting a six-shooter in his face. The man with the dark face had a gun pointed at Gilson also. Gilson then handed the money to the taller robber. I took a six-shooter out of my hip pocket. I took it out to shoot that man (indicating Rae), but I put it in my coat pocket again without shooting, because I took the matter under consideration. The man with the overalls walked out of the car, and the defendant backed out, holding the money bag in one hand and the revolver in the other. When he got near the door he put money and gun in one hand and raised up his hat with his left hand."

The witness described this occurrence as taking place some distance from the station. He described the flight of the robbers as has already been told many times.

He was asked if he could identify the defendant.

Witness stood up in a somewhat excited manner and replied. "I can swear to it before God, man and the devil, because I saw him on the train. He looks just as he did the day on the train, except that his face is not so full as it was then, and that he had a mustache which was lighter in color than his hair, and that he had what I call a 'County Antrim' on the right side of his face."

The term "County Antrim" was meant to designate a small side whisker.

At this moment Rae subjected the witness to a very sharp, piercing gaze. The witness noticed the stare and returned it with interest, saying at the same time to the prisoner: "I can look you in the face, my friend, because I've seen you before."

From the moment Campbell testified that he identified Rae, the expression of the defendant's face became very serious. He seemed to think that things were getting a little too warm to be smiled at as he had been doing during the greater part of Gilson's testimony.

On cross-examination Campbell admitted that he had been subpœnaed by a constable of Judge Clift's court, but that he did not see the defendant until he (witness) came into the court in the morning and the prisoner was pointed out to him.

The story was again gone over but not a change was made in the recital.

He had never, he said, been called before to identify a robber in this case.

He believed that the mustache and side-whiskers worn by the defendant were false.

The description which he gave Captain Lees of the tall robber was that of a man 14 or 15 years old, dark hair, weight 140 pounds, about 5 feet, 10 inches, with a long grey duster.

Could not say that the short man had had a mustache or beard. He would weigh 160 pounds and was about 5 feet 7 inches in height. As he threw up his head witness could see that a part of his neck was not blackened and the "Adam's apple" in his throat appeared very prominently.

Witness had worked as a car conductor, but could not tell whether not at the time of the robbery he was a conductor or an expressman.

Never spoke to French on the subject of identifying the accused and did not know that French had anything to do in the matter until he (the witness) came to the court.

The cross-examination continued and the attorney got the witness to partially admit that he had not heard the voice of either the tall or short man before the robbery and yet witness claimed that it was the voice of the tall man he had heard issuing the order to throw up the hands. The attorney then asked how witness knew which of the two men had issued the order.

"By common sense," exclaimed the witness, rising up on the stand.

"You did not see their faces?" suggested the attorney.

"I did see the faces. I saw part of them when they were looking around the car and watching. I knew it was the tall man who issued the order because of his actions, just as I would know from my own action if, when you were on the police force, I should walk up to you and run a gun into your face," pointing his finger like an imaginary gun at Mr. Aldrich.

"I'd break your jaw," said Mr. Aldrich, evidently nettled at the familiarity displayed by the witness.

"You would not break my jaw," defiantly responded the witness, "because, although you are a bigger man than I am, I could knock you out."

Aldrich glowered at Campbell, and for a time it looked as if there was to be trouble, but the thing quieted down and the cross-examination was resumed.

Campbell said he knew from the manner in which Rae was piled out around the breast that he had steel plates inside to protect him.

The cross-examination closed without Campbell's testimony being shaken.

He was subpœnaed by the defense to testify for them as he left the stand, and was ordered to report in court until wanted.

THE BRAKEMAN'S STORY.

J. J. Rivers, residing at the corner of Second and Harrison streets, was the first witness for the State today. He was formerly a brakeman on the Berkeley local. He was on the train on which the robbery took place on June 11, 1892. He was going, he said, to Berryman station and was riding in the third car from the engine. He was on the platform. When the train reached B street station he got off. Saw one man with a linen duster get off first. The man was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and would weigh about 175 pounds. He had on a brown felt hat and had a drooping mustache. He ran to a buggy which was hitched to a telegraph pole. The buggy had a top. The horse hitched to it was a dark one. The top was down and the outfit looked like a country rig.

Witness went on to state that when the train left the pier, the man with the duster was sitting in the third seat from the rear of the end of the train. The man with the duster was facing the engine. Witness was attracted by the duster. He took a look at the man's face. Saw Secretary Gilson on the car but further forward in the car. Gilson had two seats turned toward one another. He was accompanied by Mortenson. One faced the other. There were two sacks in the seat beside Mortenson. There was also a man with a black face. Witness had seen him at the pier before the train left and thought he recognized him as an acquaintance and spoke to him. Witness thought, because of the man's blackened face that the latter had been at work at the coal bunkers. He did not see him again until the blackened man got off the train at B street with the man with the duster. Both the black man and the man with the duster walked leisurely toward the buggy, got into it and rode away. The tall man carried a revolver in his right hand down by his side and had one of the sacks of money in his left. The black man carried a revolver and sack in the same manner. Witness at the time did not think that any person had been robbed. When he heard the shooting he supposed that some person was shooting at the sea gulls. Witness said he could hardly identify the tall man if he should see him again, because he took only a passing glance at him as he was going away.

Witness then was directed to look at the defendant Rea and tell whether or not he was the man whom he had seen in the duster. He replied that the defendant resembled the man in the duster, with the exception that on the day of the robbery the tall man had a mustache.

Nothing important was elicited in the cross-examination.

AN EYE-WITNESS' STORY.

The next witness was Mrs. M. Lewis, who resides at 1093 Ninth street, San Francisco. She was also a passenger on the train on which the robbery was committed. She said that before she would give her testimony she desired to know who was to pay her expenses to this city. She said she had come here at some expense, and occasioned herself a great deal of trouble to comply with the subpœna.

Judge Shaw said he would give her an order on the Auditor after her evidence had been taken.

Mrs. Lewis testified that on the day of the robbery she took the 11 o'clock Berkeley local at the pier. When she was going aboard she had been pulled back, she said, by a man in a new overall jumper and a black face. The man with the black face was accompanied by another man in a long duster. She also saw Mr. Gilson get on the train with another man, each carrying a bag which seemed to contain money. Witness was accompanied by another woman, to whom she pointed out Gilson and his companion with their bags of money.

She said she thought Gilson and his friend were going to the races and that the money they had in the sacks was to be used in the pools. Witness stood on the platform of the car behind that in which Gilson was seated, and as she was about to enter the car in which was Gilson the men in the jumper and the black face pulled her back a second time, entered the car and took a seat behind Gilson. When the train reached B-street station there was a commotion. People rushed out of the car containing Mr. Gilson and told her for God's sake to get out of the way because they were going to shoot inside. At that moment the black man and the tall man

A PROTEST.

Interests Below Seventh Street Are Affected.

Objections Are Raised to the Proposed Gates.

A Meeting Is to Be Held Tonight at the Courthouse.

Editor Tribune—Sir: The ordinances which are introduced in the City Council providing for the use of gates on Seventh street and other railway street crossings in the city of Oakland have provoked much discussion and adverse criticism, particularly among the residents and property owners south of Seventh street, who view the ordinances as another blow against their business interests, and as erecting what they denominate a dead-line between them and the more northerly portion of the city. They have been, since the advent of the cars on Seventh street, in a manner cut off from the main business portion of the city by the double tracks on that street, which have greatly reduced the travel south of that line and consequently laid an embargo upon merchants and business men located in that district.

This was a severe blow to parties who had invested their money in real estate and business enterprises south of the track and one which should not have been permitted nor continued now if there is any power in the authorities of the city to push the Seventh street line to First street. This course would also remove the causes which induce members of the City Council to take up the question of gating the streets at that point, as very few streets intersect the railroad track on First street, whereas upwards of forty streets intersect the Seventh street line.

We are not sufficiently skilled in the legal aspect of the matter to be able to venture an opinion as to the power of the city authorities to effect this change, but we feel satisfied that the interests of the public are always paramount to those either of private persons or corporations, and that what the public welfare demands can generally be accommodated by legal means. This being the general rule, we are unable to discern any good reason for making the Seventh street line an exception to it, as there can scarcely be any question that the interests of the city, both from the standpoint of safety and business, would be greatly promoted if this change was effected.

But to return to the gates. The ordinances providing for their establishment have wrought up a fury in the southern district, and a meeting of the property owners and residents of that locality has been called at the Courthouse this evening to give voice and direction to public sentiment upon the question, at which meeting, no doubt, the subject in all its phases will be fully ventilated.

We are not aware of all the grounds of objection to the gates which these residents entertain, but from many expressions upon the street the opinion seems to be general that the erecting of the gates on each side of the street, at its intersection with the cross streets, will create an additional barrier, or what is termed a dead-line, completely shutting out the people south of Seventh street from the principal part of the city, and raising up, as it were, a more formidable division between the two sections than that which is created by the tracks themselves. This is the view entertained from a standpoint of interest, and it would seem that there is much force and reason upon which to base it.

THE PROTECTIVE POINT.

From the standpoint of protection, we are very doubtful that the necessities of the case are sufficient to justify the erection of the gates, and more especially that the gates would secure the results contemplated by the authors of the measure. It must be borne in mind that Seventh street is not exclusively used by the railroad company, but serves the purpose of a public street as well, and many instances may, and doubtless will occur, if the gates are erected, when persons driving on Seventh street in the face of an approaching train with fractious or frightened animals will be cut off by the gates from any avenue of escape from the dangers and perils of their position, and thus the gates may become a death-trap, rather than instruments for protection.

It is our opinion that the dangers from this source are quite as imminent and pressing as that to be anticipated by vehicles on the streets, especially if the city ordinances require flagmen to be stationed on all dangerous crossings in the city. However, these matters, of course, are all the subject of consideration and intelligent action by the City Council, who will no doubt be governed in the matter by what they consider to be for the best interests of the people; but as the use of gates has never been tried in Oakland, it would seem to be dictated by ordinary prudence that the experiment be inaugurated by the compulsion of a limited number in localities of extraordinary hazard, and ascertain their practical efficacy and utility before requiring their construction throughout the entire city.

This course would meet the approval of the whole people, and could not be seriously opposed by the railroad company, whereas to require the improvement to be made to the extent of the gating of all crossings in the city would be the infliction of an extraordinary expense in case they should prove to be less potential than expected by their promoters.

ANTI-DEADLING.

KELLY IS DEAD.

The Well-known Irish-American Passes Away.

How He Rose From Poverty to Great Wealth.

The Foundation of His Fortune Was Laid in the West.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Eugene Kelly, the banker, died today, aged 87.

Kelly was born in Tullick, county Tyrone, Ireland, and at the age of 16 came to this country.

His first position was that of clerk in Donnelly Brothers' drygoods store in this city.

He tried gold mining in 1849, and later started the San Francisco banking house of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston.

During the war he moved his business to New York and lost considerable in Southern loans.

In spite of this, however, he amassed money at a great rate until, when he retired from active business a few years ago, he was reputed to be worth from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

His pocket book was always open to any fund intended for the benefit of the Irish movement.

After W. C. Ralston withdrew from the banking firm of Donohoe, Kelly & Ralston and started the Bank of California, the firm name was changed to Donohoe, Kelly & Co. In 1868 Kelly returned to New York and established a branch bank under the firm name of Eugene Kelly & Co. The bank enjoyed public confidence in a marked degree and tided safely over every financial crisis which it encountered.

He remained in active banking life for fifty years, severing his connection with the Donohoe-Kelly Banking Company of San Francisco less than a year ago and retiring from the management of his bank in New York in favor of his son, to seek rest and health in the mild climate of Florida. He leaves two sons, who succeed him in the banking house of Eugene Kelly & Co.

Another Football Fatality.

PHILADELPHIA, December 19.—George S. Young of the Frankford football eleven, injured December 13th in a game, is dead as a result of a kick on the head. An abscess formed at the base of the brain.

Gold in Demand.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—A dispatch from the Sub-Treasury Department at New York today reported that $500,000 gold was withdrawn this morning. This leaves $90,010,430 gold in the Treasury. The cash balance is $154,469,500.

A Prisoner's Bad Fix

James Phillips, serving a term of three months in the County Jail for petty larceny, is suffering from inflammation of the eyes. His sight is failing fast and the jail officials fear that the prisoner will be blind if a change for the better does not occur very soon.

IN NEED.

Distress Must Be Relieved.

Gloom Reigns in Many a Home.

Make the Poor Happy on Christmas Day.

Send in a Donation to "The Tribune's" Relief Fund.

Donations continue to pour into THE TRIBUNE'S Christmas Relief Bureau for the aid of the poor during the Christmas holidays.

It is expected that these donations will continue and be increased during the next few days, so that there will be quite a large stock of assorted goods with which to make the destitute happy at least during this gladsome period of the year.

No person who knows how really miserable many of the residents of this city are can withhold a slight contribution of food, fuel or clothing, which can easily be spared, with the certainty of relieving the wretchedness of their fellow man or woman.

Any goods sent to the bureau, 482 Eighth street, will be cheerfully received and acknowledged in the columns of this paper.

This has been stormy weather, but several donations have been received at the bureau.

A poor woman called and handed in 25 cents. She declined to give her name, but finally said that the management could characterize the donation as "a widow's mite."

Cotton Brothers sent in three bags of fine potatoes.

Phelan & Fish, the grocers and produce dealers, contributed a fine ham.

Supervisor J. D. Johnston sent in an unusually large sack of potatoes.

WANTS TO SEE HIS MOTHER.

So Desperado Newell Surrenders in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 19.—Ted Newell, the young Colorado desperado, who in October last broke jail in Denver, where he was incarcerated under charges of train wrecking, highway robbery, burglary and assault to murder, surrendered himself to the San Francisco police this morning and will be taken back to Denver.

"The reason I surrender," he explained, "is that my poor old mother is in Denver and I want to see her before she dies."

LOOKS LIKE A FIGHT.

Litigants Have Trouble in Judge Allen's Court.

A lively personal encounter was with difficulty averted in Judge Allen's courtroom this morning.

The case of Farwell & Sons against Harry Richards to recover $79 90 for money loaned and goods purchased was set for 11 o'clock.

While waiting for the case to be called the elder Farwell and Richards engaged in a dispute. The latter claimed Farwell had cheated him out of some money. Farwell angrily called his tradueer a liar. Richards sprang to his feet and attempted to strike his enemy, but several attorneys stepped in and forced him to his seat till he cooled down.

BLAMES HIS WIFE.

W. B. Porter Defends Himself in Court.

W. B. Porter of Fruit Vale, who has been arrested, on complaint of his wife, for failure to provide for his little child, appeared in the Police Court this morning, and his case was set for January 3, 1895. Porter claims his arrest is due to spite work on the part of his wife, and that when he married her he possessed $3200. Against his wife's wishes he invested it and lost it all. She then sued for a divorce and, to "rub it in," had him arrested on the present charge.

A Ship Ashore.

PORTLAND, Or., December 19.—News has reached here that the schooner Mary Gilbert, Captain Dodge, from San Francisco to Alsea Bay for lumber, went ashore on the night of the 13th inst., just inside the entrance to Alsea bay. She will probably be a total loss.

A Lonely End.

John Gallagher, a native of Ireland, 45 years old, was taken in an unconscious condition from a garret at the corner of Franklin and Seventh streets yesterday, and died at the Receiving Hospital last night. He is supposed to have a sister residing at San Jose. He will be buried by the county.

A Constable After Fees.

John Hines, Frank Williams and John Dao were arrested at the Sixteenth street depot last night by a Deputy Constable, on charge of evading payment of railroad fare.

WHAT'S A GHOST

Can a Spirit Make the Rounds in Clothes?

Mediums Tell What They Know About Spooks.

The Story of Spiritualism as Told by Many Experts.

The trumpet medium, Mary A. Smith, is now endeavoring to prove that Mrs. Marie Lemon was not insane when she made her last will. The contestants in the case have concluded their testimony.

The session of the court this morning was taken up mostly in a discussion of the belief of spiritualists.

The proponents first offered proof in regard to the due execution of the will. Judge A. L. Frick was one of the witnesses to the testament and said that he had signed it at the request of Mrs. Lemon, who appeared to be sane at that time.

Mrs. Laura Sweatland was next called as a witness. She had first met Mrs. Lemon at a entertainment [illegible] Oakland about eight years ago. The witness did not believe that Mrs. Lemon was insane. She had never heard her swear and never heard of her being intoxicated.

"You are a Christian woman?" asked counsel on cross-examination.

"You will have to define the word," said Mrs. Sweatland.

"You are not an atheist?"

"No, sir."

"You are not an agnostic?"

"No, sir."

"Then madam, what are you?"

"I am a spiritualist."

"Did you ever discuss spiritualism with Mrs. Lemon?"

"Not particularly."

"What did you discuss when you spent the afternoon with her?"

"We talked about reform."

"What kind of reform?"

"Dress reform."

"The bloomer, or the divided skirt?"

"It was mostly about bloomers."

"Did you talk about the [illegible]?"

"No, but I am opposed to it, correct."

"You went to one of Mary Smith's seances. You saw the medium entranced and the medium tied. Did you think that was necessary?"

"I did not think that it was necessary to have a medium tied if she was genuine. Mrs. Smith objected to be tied when she gave a seance. I do not consider it necessary to have darkness in order to hold the seance. At the seance I attended the room was dark."

"You are a medium?"

"Well, I have had private manifestations. I am not a public medium."

"Is Mary Smith a professional?"

"I think she did on the occasion I was [illegible] Mrs. Smith."

Mrs. Mary A. Wood was the next witness called. She said that she knew Mrs. Lemon in her latter days and was intimately acquainted with her.

"Mrs. Lemon was a very sober woman so far as I know," said the witness. "I never saw her drink. She spoke to me that she was sane, because I never saw her do anything to lead me believe otherwise. I knew what Mrs. Lemon's relations were. She was a spiritualist and a theosophist."

"What do you believe?"

"I am an eclectic philosopher."

"What's that?" asked Attorney Campbell.

"I said that I am an eclectic philosopher."

"Does your philosophy teach you that there can be a materialization of departed spirits?"

"I think there is materialization."

"You believe that the spirit of a person who died 100 years ago can be materialized and take on flesh, bone and blood, do you?"

"I believe that if they understand the law it can be done."

"Do you believe it is done?"

"I have never seen it done."

"Then you believe that a man who has been dead 100 years can take on his own flesh, his own bones and his own body and reappear to certain persons?"

"I don't believe he can take on his own flesh or his own bones, but I believe there is material in the atmosphere he can take and draw unto himself a body."

"You believe it requires a certain medium to do that?"

"I do."

"Then that medium, according to your theory, must be a person who possesses supernatural powers?"

"I think there is no thing supernatural. I think everything is natural."

"Yes, I understand that is a part of your philosophy. Then we will say powers akin to divine powers."

"Of course it is divine power. I believe there is no other power outside of the divine power."

Do you believe in different degrees of divine power?"

"I do, most certainly."

"You believe that a person, through a medium, can get communication with various spirits that have departed."

"Of course if we can communicate with one another on this plane we certainly can hereafter because we are all immortal."

"Is there such a thing as conversing with live spirits?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can you see them?"

"Yes, sir. I see them all around this room now. I see one in you, sir."

"What does it look like?"

The witness explained her theory and said that she could see life, and that was what she meant.

The witness never heard Mrs. Lemon say that the spirit of an Indian chief perched on her bed and kept her awake all night, or that the spirit of her dog had followed her around.

SPIRITUALIST SWEAT.

James H. Swift was next called and said he had been a spiritualist since 1850. He knew Mrs. Lemon and said his views were not unlike the great body of spiritualists.

COURT NOTES.

Matters Brought Before the Superior Judges.

The suit of William Cron Jr. against E. T. Bush, to recover possession of a butcher shop, at Thirteenth and Washington streets, is on trial before Judge Frick. Cron claims that Bush is unlawfully holding possession of the premises. His attorneys are Colonel Thomas P. Garrity and ex-Mayor Chapman.

Mrs. Catherine Fuchs' suit against M. C. Thielman, the cattle king, was this morning transferred from Department 1 to Judge Frick's department for trial. The case is set for January 30th.

Philip E. Kiley has applied to the court for letters of administration on the estate of Thomas Kiley, who died April 21, 1893. The estate consists of a lot valued at $2000. The heirs are: Mary T. Kiley, Florence Kiley and Philip E. Kiley, sisters and brother of the deceased.

The estate of Jean P. Boquet, deceased, is now in a condition to be closed. Julia Boquet, administratrix of the estate, has petitioned for the distribution of the property.

Public Administrator James Stanley has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late James Morehouse.

Nathan Hadlock, one of the legatees and devisees under the will of Nancy Lawrence, deceased, denies generally and specifically every allegation made by Mary E. Hill in her contest of the will.

The first account of John Garber, as guardian of the person and estate of Eliza C. Head, an insane person, has been settled by Judge Frick.

John E. Shano, who, with ex-Mayor N. W. Spaulding, is being sued by the Union Savings Bank, has demurred to the complaint on the general ground that it fails to emerged from the car, each carrying a bag of money and a revolver.

Witness was then asked whether she could identify the defendant as the tall man in the duster and she replied that she did not pay so much attention to the tall man as she did to the man in black, yet she thought there was quite a resemblance between the defendant and the man in the duster. The tall robber had a thin neck and thin face.

These features are pronounced in Defendant Rae and when they were referred to they caused him to become uneasy.

Witness was then asked if she closely noticed the tall robber's face and eyes and replied that she had a better view of the side of his face than she had of the front of it and knew that he had a mustache, which was of a light brown color.

When witness was asked what she thought about the relative height of the defendant and the tall robber, she asked Rae to please stand up. The request was complied with.

"Please turn your back and shoulders to me" said the witness.

Rae stood up, but made little effort to straighten up his form.

"It seems to me," said the witness, "that the robber in the duster was somewhat taller than this man (indicating Rae). I think, also, that he had thicker shoulders."

"Could you tell whether the heavy shoulders was the result of the clothing worn or the natural frame of the robber?" asked Mr. Church.

Witness replied that she could not.

She was then asked whether or not she had been called to identify any other person as the tall man who bore a greater resemblance to the robber than does Rae the defendant.

She replied that at the State fair in Sacramento, she had seen a man who bore a stronger resemblance to the robber than the accused.

"Will you swear," asked Mr. Church, "that the defendant is the tall robber in the duster?"

"I will not," was the answer.

"Will you swear," continued Mr. Church, "that he is not the tall robber in the duster?"

"I will not," answered the witness. "He bears quite a resemblance to him."

Fourth Next Day Celebration.

Professor F. H. Foster of the Pacific Theological Seminary will deliver an address in Plymouth Avenue Congregational Church tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock. CITIZENS, ATTENTION!

Are We Opposed to Further Barriers to Our Progress?

Shall the Dead Line Be Made More Permanent?

There will be a meeting of citizens of Oakland owning property or residing south of the seventh street railroad track, this

Wednesday Evg., Dec. 19,

At 8 o'clock, at the Courthouse, Broadway, between Fourth and Fifth streets, to protest to the City Council against the construction or erection of dead line gates, calculated to stop the progress of our section of the city.

All who appreciate the fact that this portion of Oakland has been steadily depreciating in property values for years will turn out and add their voice to this protest against further legislation calculated to destroy the value of our homes and places of business.

Citation.

The People of the State of California to George Albert Aldrich, Annie Aldrich Barton, Helen Aldrich Dunning, William Holt Aldrich, Minnie C. Aldrich, Hosea H. Aldrich, Bernice B. Aldrich, Aileen Aldrich, William A. Aldrich and Lewinton D. Aldrich, Greeting:

By order of this court, you, and each of you, are hereby cited and required to appear before this court, at the courtroom of Department No. 1 thereof, in the Courthouse in the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, on Monday, the twenty-eighth (28th) day of January, A. D. 1895, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day then and there to show cause, if any you have why the accounts of Annie Aldrich Barton, Helen Aldrich Dunning, Arthur A. Smith and Joseph M. Quan, as Trustees created in and by the last will of said William A. Aldrich, deceased, presented to and filed in this court on the 15th day of September, A. D. 1894, should not be allowed and settled.

Said accounts embrace the period commencing on the 31st day of May, 1893, and ending on the 31st day of July, 1894, and are now on file in this court, and are hereby referred to.

Witness, the Honorable W. E. GREENE, Judge of the Superior Court in and for the County of Alameda, with the seal of said court affixed, this 26th day of November, A. D. 1894.

Attest:
SEAL OF SUPERIOR COURT OF ALAMEDA COUNTY

A NOVEL PURSE.

An Ingenious Invention by Charles A. Webster, Formerly of This City.

Charles A. Webster of Spokane, Wash., who resided in Oakland twenty-six years ago and spends a portion of his time in this state, is the inventor of an ingeniously devised coin-holder, on which he is taking out a patent, and of which there will be numerous designs—some to carry in the pocket; others to be connected with the belt for children and ladies. It consist of a case, some of them flexible or hinged between each coin, and long enough to hold several coins, while the slot or opening through the coin-holder admits of the easy passage of the different kinds of coins to pass through, from an opening at upper end and down by gravitation to rest, as it were, on the lower section, which has an ingeniously contrived circular opening in front and rear which opens out to the lower end and shows about two-thirds of the center of the coin in that section and which can be easily and quickly grasped by the thumb and forefinger and removed at the will of the operator, there being springs (or their equivalents) at top and also at lower end to keep coins in place. Mr. Webster has been looking to this a number of years and has constructed a number of models, of which some have within the last year or so been shown to half a hundred people, who all join in congratulating him, each saying it's just the thing and just what the people want. Mr. Webster will soon be manufacturing the coin-holders. Parties wishing to see Mr. Webster in reference to the above will find him at 1022 Broadway, Oakland.

When we speak of Holiday pieces we mean pretty pieces, odd, uncommon pieces of peculiar beauty, made expressly for gifts. We never showed so many, never saw such beautiful designs.

Tabourets and tiny Tea Tables and a host of little pieces at the most moderate cost are features this season.

For the benefit of those whose time is limited we will remain open every evening until Christmas.

Pieces that add particularly to the charm of a comfort of a woman's dressing room are always most acceptable presents. We have innumerable dainty designs in this kind of furniture, for Christmas.

We make it a point to deliver all holiday pieces in the daintiest and most painstaking manner.

It would be hard work, we think, to find any one, no matter how hard to please, who couldn't be suited in the display of tea tables we make this time.

Just a bit of advice—the prettiest pieces sell fastest—don't wait until your particular choice has been sold to another.

If there is some odd or particular kind of piece you want and don't know where to go for it—see if we can't help you.

WHAT'S A GHOST

Can a Spirit Make the Rounds in Clothes?

Mediums Tell What They Know About Spooks.

The Story of Spiritualism as Told by Many Experts.

The trance prophetess, Mary A. Smith, is now endeavoring to prove that Mrs. Mary Lemon was not insane when she left Toledo. Will The Contestants in the case have concluded their testimony.

The session of the court this morning was taken up almost in a discussion of the belief of spiritualists.

The proponents first offered proof in regard to the execution of the will. Judge A. L. Frick, who drew the will, testified at the request of Mr. Lemon who appointed him executor.

Mrs. [illegible] was next called as a witness. She thinks that Mr. [illegible] Oakland about [illegible] was not insane. She thinks that Mr. Lemon was insane. She had never seen anything [illegible] and never heard him talk incoherently.

"You are a medium, are you not?" asked counsel on cross-examination.

"You will have to define the word," Mrs. [illegible] said.

"Are you a spiritualist?"

"No, sir."

"You are not a medium?"

"I am."

"How much do you charge?"

"I make no charge."

"What do you do when you spend the afternoon with [illegible]?"

"We talked and [illegible]."

"What kind of [illegible]?"

"Spirit forms."

"Is he one of them?"

"He was present when [illegible]."

"Do you believe in [illegible]?"

"No, but I am [illegible]."

"You want to convince [illegible] manifestations [illegible] the material in the room [illegible] and draw upon [illegible]."

"I do not [illegible] necessary."

"I do not [illegible] have materialized [illegible] Mrs. Lemon [illegible] very [illegible] the room [illegible]."

"I do not certainly."

"Will the [illegible] your opinions [illegible] you?"

"Mr. Lemon [illegible] Mrs. Lemon [illegible]."

"I think I could [illegible]."

Mrs. Mary [illegible] was then [illegible] Lemon [illegible] and was [illegible] very [illegible].

"Are [illegible] you [illegible] Mrs. Lemon [illegible] ever [illegible] she would [illegible] Mr. Lemon [illegible] were [illegible] quiet."

"What do you [illegible]?"

"I [illegible]."

"What's that [illegible] Mountain Camp [illegible]?"

"I said that I [illegible] place."

"Do your [illegible] by [illegible] that there [illegible] departed spirits?"

"I think there [illegible]."

"Is [illegible] person who died [illegible] and take control [illegible] to you?"

"I believe [illegible] the law [illegible]."

"Do you [illegible]?"

"I have never [illegible]."

"Have you [illegible] who has [illegible] Mrs. [illegible]?"

"If you permit [illegible]."

"Object [illegible]."

"No further [illegible]."

"You want to [illegible] appearances [illegible] the month [illegible]?"

"I do not [illegible] necessary."

"Did you [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. Lemon?"

"No, sir."

"Was it [illegible] when you spent the afternoon with [illegible]?"

"We talked and [illegible]."

"What kind of [illegible]?"

"Spirit forms."

"Is he one of them?"

"He was present when [illegible]."

"Do you believe in [illegible]?"

"No, but I am [illegible]."

The year 1894 is fast drawing to a close, and with it ends a year which, in many respects, has been the most remarkable for many years in the history of this city.

It was ushered in while the country was groaning under the weight of financial depression. Men with money did not dare to take it from their places of deposit. Enterprises inaugurated had come to a close because of lack of means with which to carry them to a successful termination, and, in fact, there seemed to be, in all parts of the country, an ill-defined dread that there was nothing but discouragement and disaster for them in the future.

While, in common with almost every other place, Oakland felt the effects of the depression, yet, like Minerva, springing from the brain of Jupiter, she came forth armed cap-a-pie, ready to do battle for her rights, and to maintain the position which she had attained by the intelligence and energy of her citizens.

For this reason, Oakland has survived the troublous times. The merchants who were foremost in the mercantile world at the time of the panic, in the main, still retain their places in the confidence of the people. Hundreds of beautiful cottages, substantial and palatial residences have been erected. A larger percentage of artisans than formerly has been kept employed throughout the year. Mercantile institutions have been increased in number, and some of the older ones have been enlarged and beautified, and their patronage extended so that they really rival the rich and long-established institutions on the other side of the bay.

Besides, Oakland has experienced another great advantage, although it may be only an indirect benefit. The territory immediately adjacent to the city limits has attracted thousands of prudent and thrifty residents, nearly all of whom have bought and paid for their homes.

The patronage of those homes on the north, east and west is tributary to Oakland. It means the enrichment of this city, because it is a patronage that is inspired by patriotism. It will not seek in San Francisco what it can find at more reasonable rates in this city. The people in these outlying districts are destined eventually to become citizens of Oakland and, when they do, this city will rank among the populous municipalities in the western country.

SPLENDID TRANSPORTATION.

During the past year, also, there has been aroused in the community a most commendable spirit of public enterprise. This has led to the branching out in many lines of business, and the completion of a system of inter-urban communication by means of some of the finest electric and cable railway systems in the world. Today, more than ever, there is not a town in the county the trade of which is not tributary to Oakland. This was a trade which formerly went to San Francisco.

This year also, more than ever, the people have learned to realize the advantages of a first class theater. It is no longer necessary in order to see a great show to go to San Francisco immediately after dinner and be compelled to remain there until after midnight.

This year also has developed in an extraordinary degree the desire to patronize home industry and home enterprise. It was a difficult undertaking, but it has at length been accomplished. The people have been convinced that Oakland merchants can sell goods as cheaply as those in San Francisco can. Hence the local business of our merchants has increased almost immeasurably. Not only can our home merchants sell as cheap as those in San Francisco, but it is within the knowledge of THE TRIBUNE that they frequently supply San Francisco merchants with the very goods which the latter try to sell back again in this city.

While the prosperity of the city has been appreciated in a general way, it has been felt in a special manner by certain lines of trade.

REAL ESTATE.

There, for instance, is the real estate business. This is a very important element of commercial life. It is a business which should be in the hands, not alone of far-seeing, but also of prudent and conscientious men. Thousands of people have been irretrievably ruined by placing their confidence in and bestowing their money upon unreliable operatives in this line. Persons, therefore, desiring to invest money, should take these facts under consideration, because it may mean a great deal to them. People desiring to purchase land should be encouraged in their investments for the sake not alone of the city, but also because of themselves, as the ownership of the land is the basis of original wealth. More men have become wealthy by sudden appreciation of land values than have been raised to independence by an hundred Wall streets. One of the real estate dealers of this city who answers

MEAT MARKETS.

One of the marvels of the coast to the people who come here from the East is the magnificent display which is made of the meat slaughtered at the various abattoirs here. At all seasons of the year dressed beeves in hundreds may be seen hanging outside the meat markets, presenting a scene which is at once unique and beautiful. Eastern people cannot understand how meat can be cured in this manner, and they pass the highest compliments upon the butchers for the skill and artistic taste which they thus display. Not alone is the meat beautiful in appearance, but it is rich, juicy and wholesome, fit indeed for an American citizen, who is just as good any day in the year as a king. The completeness of Oakland's markets in other respects is not less a source of wonder and admiration. They are kept as neat and clean and pure as the kitchen of one's home. They are presided over by courteous, gentlemanly and cleanly attendants, who succeed almost in anticipating every wish of their customers. During these Christmas holidays these meat markets will make excellent exhibits, and those who desire to verify this statement may easily do so by calling at the palatial Central Market of Fred Becker, 910 Washington street, where Christmas displays are excelled by no person in this line in the country.

ALL KINDS OF TOYS.

Oakland is a city of happy homes. Where there is a city of happy homes it means a city of thousands of happy children. Children are naturally inclined to be happy even under most unforbidding circumstances, but when they are surrounded with the toys and novelties which indulgent parents provide their happiness is unalloyed, and in reality knows no bounds. There are few cities which are better supplied with the means of making little people happy than Oakland. The town is provided with a number of bazars, emporiums and stores, in which the latest designs in simple, improved and scientific toys are provided in thousands. These are bought at liberal prices because the happy homes of Oakland can afford to pay for the latest designs in everything. One of the leading and most reliable places which receives the patronage in this line of everybody is the Grand Rule Bazar at the northeast corner of Ninth and Washington streets.

THE FINEST FURNITURE.

There is not in this part of the world a city whose homes are more luxuriously and more richly furnished. This fact has special reference to the palaces which are to be found on every avenue and on the imposing and beautiful heights which surround the city. It is also true of the humble homes which are found in all parts of the city. In those, while richness does not obtain in the furnishing, there is a substantial and beautiful feature in the household furnishing which is conspicuous by its absence in the homes of other cities. These facts are to be attributed to the management of the furniture houses which are to be found in this city. In them, every line of household goods may be obtained, and at prices which cannot be duplicated elsewhere. For this reason, Oakland need not go to San Francisco for its furniture. It does not do it. It makes its purchases at home, and, as a consequence, the money, or a large part of it, remains here. One of the furniture firms which has contributed to and led in bringing about this state of affairs is that of J. L. Lyon & Son, whose metropolitan store is situated in the Albany Hotel, at the corner of Fifteenth street and Broadway.

JEWELRY OF EXCELLENT DESIGN.

The richness of California has been the by-word of nations. Wherever one goes the fame of this Golden State has preceded him. The word California is a synonym for wealth. To say in the hearing of thousands of people abroad that a man is a Californian is to convey the idea that he is a man of means, and as such that he appreciates the precious metals and jewels as a means of personal adornment. The desire to make use of the riches with which nature has endowed him is an evidence of gratitude and refined taste on the part of the Californian, who might otherwise be regarded with lack of appreciation. As a consequence, while California men and women are noted for their love of jewelry, they are also famed for their taste, a taste which can be satisfied only by the most expert workers and dealers in gold and silver and precious stones. This is pre-eminently a characteristic of the people of Oakland, and among those who have led in catering to it for the past thirty years, and who still occupies the same proud position is R. W. Edwards, the well-known jeweler, 966 Broadway.

THE BEST OF HATS.

In the matter of dress the residents of this city are characterized by the same elegance and taste which denote them in every other respect. They will have nothing but the finest, and as a consequence the dealer in gentlemen's goods who attempts to furnish other than the best goes without patronage. But a perfect suit of clothes without a dressy and fashionable hat would be like a king without a scepter. The important feature of head covering, however, has its votaries here, as evidenced by the dressy hats which one sees worn by the well dressed people of the city. And these in greater part are to be attributed to the enterprise of I.

MEAT MARKETS.

One of the marvels of the coast to the people who come here from the East is the magnificent display which is made of the meat slaughtered at the various abattoirs here. At all seasons of the year dressed beeves in hundreds may be seen hanging outside the meat markets, presenting a scene which is at once unique and beautiful. Eastern people cannot understand how meat can be cured in this manner, and they past the highest compliments upon the butchers for the skill and artistic taste which they thus display. Not alone is the meat beautiful in appearance, but it is rich, juicy and wholesome, fit indeed for an American citizen, who is just as good any day in the year as a king. The completeness of Oakland's markets in other respects is not less a source of wonder and admiration. They are kept as neat and clean and pure as the kitchen of one's home. They are presided over by courteous, gentlemanly and cleanly attendants, who succeed almost in anticipating every wish of their customers. During these Christmas holidays these meat markets will make excellent exhibits, and those who desire to verify this statement may easily do so by calling at the palatial Central Market of Fred Becker, 910 Washington street, where Christmas displays are excelled by no person in this line in the country.

ALL KINDS OF TOYS.

Oakland is a city of happy homes. Where there is a city of happy homes it means a city of thousands of happy children. Children are naturally inclined to be happy even under most unforbidding circumstances, but when they are surrounded with the toys and novelties which indulgent parents provide their happiness is unalloyed, and in reality knows no bounds. There are few cities which are better supplied with the means of making little people happy than Oakland. The town is provided with a number of bazars, emporiums and stores, in which the latest designs in simple, improved and scientific toys are provided in thousands. These are bought at liberal prices because the happy homes of Oakland can afford to pay for the latest designs in everything. One of the leading and most reliable places which receives the patronage in this line of everybody is the Grand Rule Bazar at the northeast corner of Ninth and Washington streets.

THE FINEST FURNITURE.

There is not in this part of the world a city whose homes are more luxuriously and more richly furnished. This fact has special reference to the palaces which are to be found on every avenue and on the imposing and beautiful heights which surround the city. It is also true of the humble homes which are found in all parts of the city. In these, while richness does not obtain in the furnishing, there is a substantial and beautiful feature in the household furnishing which is conspicuous by its absence in the homes of other cities. BIG HOUSES.

Warm Encouragement Tendered to Salvini.

"Don Cæsar de Bazan" to Be Given Tonight.

Oakland Theater-Goers Are Getting First Class Shows.

As "Ruy Blas," Salvini last night showed another phase of his versatility and genius. The character called for the work of a tragedian, and though that line is not as much his forte as comedy, he carried his part well.

It was wet and dreary without, but the Macdonough had another big house and the lights shone on as fashionable an attendence as had occupied the seats on the opening night. The reason for this is easily to be found. Society has not had much of an opportunity to show itself lately, and now that it can, in addition to doing so, participate in a thoroughly first-class entertainment, it is little wonder that it turns out in full force.

The story presented last night is one of Victor Hugo's prettiest efforts. It is of a lackey who loves a queen, and who is, through the intrigue of a court gallant, placed in a position to declare himself. His good fortune, however, finally fails him and he falls from his high place and ends with suicide. Salvini was very effective in the title role and won much hearty, well-merited applause. The rest of the cast was in excellent hands, the make-up being as follows:

Don Sallustc, Marquis of Finlas . . . . . Elmer Delamater
Don Cæsar De Bazan, his cousin . . . . . William Redmund
Count of Alba . . . . . Ben Johnson
Count of Camporeal, Don Pedro, Don Manuel, Don Priego, Grandees of Spain . . . . . Don Basto, Paul Carmenevee, Henry Leigh, William Travers, Albert Gillam
Gudiel, secretary to Don Sallustc . . . . . William Sanders

Tonight Salvini will be seen in that charming historical play Don Cæsar de Bazan. It is a favorite with theater goers.

The Oriental.

Thoroughly enjoyable in every way is the vaudeville presented this week at the Oriental. Will Pettingill's famous dog Willie is almost outshone by a trick mule called Mike, who appears with the Burke Brothers. Then there is a clever Spanish dancer called Papita and a host of other equally good attractions.

The People's.

The members of the People's Theater stock company are giving a very artistic production of Tried for Treason this week. The romance and fire of the play is proving just what the patrons want and the big houses nightly tell a tale of appreciation.

Athletic Clubmen Now Indulging in Whist.

Efforts Being Made to Get Up a Big Entertainment.

The whist tournament at the Acme Club has created considerable interest among the boys. The tournament will be continued at the clubrooms this evening.

The Reliance men are discussing the proposition to give an entertainment for the benefit of the Native Sons at the Macdonough Theater.

The new season of the Oakland Navy will open in January. There will be a number of new boats entered for the races.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is making rapid progress and the members are very enthusiastic.

The football players are all waiting for the arrival of the Chicago team. Then there will be some exciting games played across the bay.

THE UMPIRE.

There is every prospect of the national game being revived in California next year. Yesterday two prominent baseball men from across the bay dropped into Oakland to feel the public pulse in regard to the sport. The gentlemen have financial backing and they are willing to go into a league, provided it is formed on a business basis. They called on me yesterday and discussed the situation so far as this city is concerned. They had been around among some of the business men and felt very much pleased over the encouragement they received from various sources.

I am not at liberty to give their names for the reason that they desire to remain in the background during the preliminary work of forming a league. They told me about their plans and I referred them to T. C. Coogan, J. T. Moran, Alex Hirshberg, D. W. Kirkland, Fred Poor and H. D. Ellison as among those who would talk baseball to them all day and give them some good advice as to how to work up a club in this city. The gentlemen who are seeking the information are no slouches at the business. They can get the backing if they can show that there is a chance to make the league a success.

***

The proposition is to have a club formed in Oakland and another in San Francisco. The managers of these two clubs can meet and then pick out the cities to be represented in the league. They will have San Jose, Sacramento, Stockton, and Fresno to make a choice from. Already Fresno has been considered in the matter and it is said that the people in that town are anxious to get into a league and will put up their share of the money. The expense of getting the teams to and from Fresno has been fully considered and it is said that the town's receipts at the game will warrant the trip.

***

The proposition is to make Oakland an independent city in the league so that the people will rally to the support of the club. It is desired to work up a home pride in the city which was lacking in years past. Heretofore Oakland has simply been the tail to San Francisco's baseball kite and this must be changed. The gentlemen who have looked over the situation concede this point and say that if they go into the deal Oakland will be an independent city and will have Sunday games just the same as any other league city. We have the grounds here and there is no reason in the world why we should not have our regular games. In summer the Piedmont grounds are as good as any in the State for baseball. In my judgment the people of this city will patronize the Sunday game if there is any chance of seeing some good playing.

***

The question of salaries was fully discussed with me, and the gentlemen interested came to the conclusion that the only proper way to run the league is to pay a stated sum to the players. Of course there will be no large salaries, for the day for gilt-edged salaries has passed. Players, and good ones at that, can now be secured for a reasonable sum, and many of them are glad to get the work. The idea seems to prevail that new talent must be secured from abroad. The public is tired of the old-time players and they want to see new faces. Altogether the scheme proposed by the gentlemen is a good one in my judgment, and I see no reason why they would not make a success of the venture.

***

In regard to Oakland, I made the suggestion that it might be well, besides a regular manager, to have an honorary board of directors composed of well known men, who could from time to time give suggestions as to the management of the team. I do not think this would be a bad scheme.

***

The gentleman interested in the deal desire that every club that goes into the league shall put up $1500 as a guarantee that the team will play the season out. This is a good rule and one which I can commend. It will inspire confidence in the league on the part of the public. In a short time I will be able to give the names of the gentlemen who are urging the formation of the league. They are well known in the business world.

***

The salary roll of the Boston Club will not be very small next year. Here is what an exchange says about it: "Of the Boston players Ganzel, Nichols, Hodson, Lowe, Nash and Duffy have not yet signed. McCarthy, Stivetts, Long and Tucker of last year's team have signed. Mac got pretty near the limit, $2400, last year, and surely didn't sign unless he got that sum. Tucker was given the limit, an increase of $250 over last year's figures, $2500. Jack Stivetts will draw $2000 from the Bostons next year. Of the new men Collins will get the most money, $1700. Pitcher Sullivan comes next with $1600. Catcher Warner will draw $1550 and Shortstop Nye $1350. Pitcher Dolan will get $1200. Hodson, when he signs, will probably get $1400. Of the players to sign Nash, Nichols and Duffy will get over the limit and Bob Lowe the limit. Ganzel will get about $2000. The salary roll of the Boston Club will amount to $35,000.

***

The National League does not hesitate to rob baseball players. The following from an exchange gives an idea of how they work it: "The result of A. C. Gumbert's case against the Chicago Ball Club, which was settled in the United States Courts here recently, was somewhat of a surprise. It has been again fully demonstrated that the player who while in the employ of the National League desires to say his soul is his own will get another think. No one with good common sense will for a moment doubt that the Chicago people did conspire with the rest of the league clubs to keep Gumbert out of employment, all because he refused to accept a reduction in salary amounting to $900 a year. He dared to make a stand against the Chicago Club and he has got the worst of it, for the time being at least. But the end is likely not yet. The little testimony taken in during the trial showed very plainly that the National League did, at a meeting in 1892, concoct a scheme to beat players out of a greater portion of that salary to which they had been raised during the Brotherhood war, but it seems that in their great American privilege."—Pittsburg Gazette.

***

George Stallings, an ex-Oakland player, is still in charge of the Nashville team. He has commenced to sign players for next season. THE UMPIRE.

THE WHEELMEN.

An Important Point Regarding the Stealing of Bicycles.

The wheelmen have long been anxious to have the law construed in regard to the stealing of bicycles. There have been many thefts in Oakland and the wheelman wanted the law defined. The Supreme Court of this State has just given a decision that will be of interest to every owner of a wheel. It is as follows:

The Supreme Court has reversed the judgment and order of the lower court in the case of John Brown, convicted of burglary and sentenced to a term of imprisonment. Brown stole a bicycle from a house where he was working for his board. His excuse was that he did it to suite another boy. It was his intention, he said, to return the wheel in a few hours after giving its owner a scare. Counsel for Brown accordingly argued at the trial that in order to convict there must be proof of felonious intent.

The trial judge, however, took an opposite view from that of counsel and so instructed the jury. He declared that if the boy had simply taken the bicycle to help him over a journey of twenty-five miles or so the offence would be larceny just as much as though he had intended an absolute theft. It did not matter whether he intended to permanently deprive the owner of his bicycle or not.

The Supreme Court holds that this instruction was error. It was declared that to support a conviction in such a case as the one at bar there must be proof of felonious intent. The case was therefore remanded for a new trial.

ON THE WATER.

The Oakland Navy Season for 1894 is in History.

With the race last Sunday, the season of the Oakland Navy for 1894 ended. It was a foregone conclusion that the Flash would win the pennant, for she had already secured enough points to win without the race last Sunday. This fact rather killed the interest in the last contest, because the boys knew that they did not have a chance to beat the Flash out.

The season for 1895 will open in January, when the first race will be sailed. A number of new boats will join the navy and participate in the season's contests. It is proposed to hold twelve races during the season.

Commodore Von Schmidt is building a new race boat which he will enter in the navy races next year. He realizes that the Whirlwind, as a racer, is out of the contest, and he proposes to put a boat on the water that will make the Flash look to her laurels.

THE RELIANCE CLUB.

A Big Entertainment is Under Consideration.

The directors of the Reliance Club are considering a proposition to give a big entertainment at the Macdonough Theater. Some of the members of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West have urged that the club give the entertainment in order to raise funds for the reception of Native Sons in this city. It is proposed to produce a new opera written by a San Francisco man. If the arrangements are completed the entertainment will probably be given in January.

The gymnasium at the club is well patronized by the athletes these days. The wheelmen cannot take an outing in this kind of weather, so they get their exercise in the gymnasium.

The Reliance athletes will hold a handball tournament soon. It is proposed to limit the tournament to members of the club only. Some of the boys, however, would like to have an interclub tournament so that they could try their skill with the Acme men.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

The Reliance Men Are Anxious to Play Again.

The Reliance football players have not done any hard practice as yet, although it is a settled fact that they are going to play a game with the Chicago University team. The local boys, however, are taking a little exercise in the gymnasium and it will not take more than a week for them to get in good playing condition. Captain Peck and his men feel confident that they can hold their own with the visiting team. As the men of the Reliance team are the champions of the coast the visitors will have to defeat them in order to gain much glory.

The negotiations to get the Denver team to come to the coast are still going on and the Reliance boys are willing to put up some money to help pay for the trip. It is rather late now, however, to close the negotiations.

The Reliance team has not made any arrangements to play games with either the Stanford or the Berkeley teams. The best of feeling does not prevail among the three teams on account of the negotiations that were made by Stanford to bring out the Chicago team.

The receipts from the three big football games played by the University of Pennsylvania team this year were $35,381 75, and the expenses for the same three games were $20,457 90. Pennsylvania's net profits from all three games were $22,461 87, an equal amount being divided between the other three colleges. The Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania is now for the first time in its history free from all indebtedness and has in its treasury nearly $9000. On October 1, 1893, the deficit amounted to $8752 97, in addition to an indebtedness to the Board of Directors individually of some $1000, making a total of about $10,000. This deficiency has been met.

The figures for the three big games follow:

	Receipts.	Expenses.	Each Team.
Princeton	[illegible]	[illegible]	$ 6,344 12
Cornell	[illegible]	[illegible]	1,750 55
Harvard	[illegible]	[illegible]	11,767 35

CRESCENT ATHLETES.

The Berkeley Club Now in a Prosperous Condition.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is now on a firm basis. Arrangements are being made with J. Lecester for the erection of a club building near the corner of Addison street and Shattuck avenue. According to the plans the lower floor will consist of the gymnasium and dressing and bathrooms. The upper story will contain billiard, reading, lounging and reception rooms.

The club members several fine track and field athletes and will enter a team in the spring games. Application has been made for membership in the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association. A baseball club is also being organized and will look after work with the Reliance and college team.

J. L. Grant, a well-known Eastern teacher of physical culture and author of a standard work on the subject, has joined the club and will lead classes twice a week.

Tonight Al Lean and Jim Cook of the Acme Club will give the boys a few pointers on wrestling.

ALAMEDA NOTES.

Treasurer Barber Resigns—The Free Library.

At the meeting of the City Trustees of Alameda, last night, County Tax Collector-elect Barber handed in his resignation as City Treasurer, to take effect December 31st. Several of the Trustees spoke in very flattering terms of Mr. Barber's efficiency in office. E. Minor Smith and C. S. Neal are the most prominent candidates for the vacant position.

In the event of Mr. Smith's success, a vacancy will occur in the Assessor's office, on which E. Mayrisch Jr. is said to have a cinch.

A report compiled by Librarian Harbourne shows that although Alameda's Free Library is first in circulation in proportion to population and third in the State in actual circulation, the institution is run about $5000 per annum cheaper than any other.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. C. M. Hartnett, who has been quite ill, is slowly convalescing.

Frank Roberts of Hinsdale, Mich., who has been the guest of his mother, Mrs. Georgia Smith of Jackson and Ninth streets, has returned home. He is so pleased with Oakland that it is his intention to dispose of his Michigan property interests to return with his family to make this city his future home.

C. J. Herton is spending the winter in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Dr. J. S. McGrew of Honolulu, who has been the guest of Mrs. E. N. Van Vliet of Berkeley, left for San Jose yesterday morning.

Rev. William Rader, associate pastor of the First Congregational Church, has gone to Philadelphia to attend his mother's deathbed.

Ex-Mayor Andrus is lying seriously ill at his home in West Oakland.

John Mitchell of Berkeley has returned from San Jose.

J. Harrington of Alameda is visiting in El Dorado county.

TWO TO WO.

Berkeley's Town Trustees in a Bad Plight.

The Election of a New Member Dead-Locked.

Preble May Yet Get Left in His Race for the Clerkship.

When Berkeley's Board of Town Trustees meet next Monday evening it will be without a chairman or clerk, and instead of five members there will be but four.

There was a slight mistake in the advertising for some street work, which necessitated the bids being opened last night, so the meeting Monday night was adjourned till last night. The occasion was called for the carrying out of the little deal consummated in last Saturday's Tribune, but a hitch had occurred. W. K. Weir had become disgusted with the newspaper notoriety which the affair had been subjected to, and withdrew from the contract. This mixed matters up considerably, as there is no other candidate on whom the warring factions in the board can agree. Still C. S. Preble, with cheerful optimism, decided to resign and take his chances of being elected Town Clerk.

As soon as the resignation was accepted nominations for the position were in order. Acton nominated Dr. J. C. Anthony and Whiting raised his dulcet tones in favor of John Finn. The vote stood 2 and 2, Acton and Stenbenrauch pulling for Anthony, while Hadlen and Whiting cast their ballots for Finn.

Another vote and still another was taken with the same result, and as the deadlock seemed impossible to break, an adjournment was taken. The survivors of the solid three will make a strong effort to whip Hadlen into line by the next meeting Monday night.

Meantime, Preble is doing some deep thinking, as Weir refuses to take part in the programme has reduced the beautifully laid plans to a chaotic condition.

BIG HOUSES.

Warm Encouragement Tendered to Salvini.

"Don Cæsar de Bazan" to Be Given Tonight.

Oakland Theater-Goers Are Getting First Class Shows.

As "Ruy Blas," Salvini last night showed another phase of his versatility and genius. The character called for the work of a tragedian, and though that line is not as natural to him as comedy, he carried his part well.

It was not and dreary without, but the Macdonough had another big house and the lights shone on a fashionable an attendance as had occupied the seats on the opening night. The reason for this is easily to be found. Society has not had much of an opportunity to show itself lately, and now that it can, in addition to doing so, participate in a thoroughly first-class entertainment, it is little wonder that it turns out in full force.

The story presented last night is one of Victor Hugo's prettiest efforts. It is of a lackey who loves a queen, and who is, through the intrigue of a court gallant, placed in a position to declare himself. His good fortune, however, finally falls him and he falls from his high place and ends with suicide. Salvini was very effective in the title role and won much hearty, well-merited applause. The rest of the cast was in excellent hands, the make-up being as follows:

Don Salluste, Marquis of [illegible] . . . . . Elmer Delamater

Don Cæsar De Bazan, his cousin . . . . . William Redmond

Count of Alba . . . . . Ben Johnson

The Oriental.

Thoroughly enjoyable in every way is the vaudeville presented this week at the Oriental. Will Pettingill's famous dog Willie is almost outshone by a trick mule called Mike, who appears with the Burke Brothers. Then there is a clever Spanish dancer called Papita and a host of other equally good attractions.

The People's.

The members of the People's Theater stock company are giving a very artistic production of Treed for Treason this week. The romance and fire of the play is proving just what the patrons want and the big houses nightly tell a tale of appreciation.

Athletic Clubmen Now Indulging in Whist.

Efforts Being Made to Get Up a Big Entertainment.

The whist tourn[illegible] at the Acme Club has created considerable interest among the boys. The tournament will be continued at the clubrooms this evening.

The Reliance men are discussing the proposition to give an entertainment for the benefit of the Native Sons at the Macdonough Theater.

The new season of the Oakland Navy will open in January. There will be a number of new boats entered for the races.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is making rapid progress and the members are very enthusiastic.

The football players are all waiting for the arrival of the Chicago team. Then there will be some exciting games played across the bay.

THE UMPIRE.

There is every prospect of the national game being revived in California next year. Yesterday two prominent baseball men from across the bay dropped into Oakland to feel the public pulse in regard to the sport. The gentlemen have financial backing and they are willing to go into a league, provided it is formed on a business basis. They called on me yesterday and discussed the situation so far as this city is concerned. They had been around among some of the business men and felt very much pleased over the encouragement they received from various sources.

I am not at liberty to give their names for the reason that they desire to remain in the background during the preliminary work of forming a league. They told me about their plans and I referred them to T. C. Coogan, J. T. Moran, Alex Hirshberg, P. W. Kirkham, Fred Poor and C. D. Edson as among those who would talk baseball to them all day and give them some good advice as to how to work up a club in this city. The gentlemen who are seeking the information are no slouches at the business. They can get the backing if they can show that there is a chance to make the league a success.

***

The proposition is to have a club formed in Oakland and another in San Francisco. The managers of these two clubs can meet and then pick out the cities to be represented in the league. They will have San Jose, Sacramento, Stockton, and Fresno to make a choice from. Already Fresno has been considered in the matter and it is said that the people in that town are anxious to get into a league and will put up their share of the money. The expense of getting the teams to and from Fresno has been fully considered and it is said that the town's receipts at the game will warrant the trip.

***

The proposition is to make Oakland an independent city in the league so that the people will rally to the support of the club. It is desired to work up a home pride in the city which was lacking in years past. Heretofore Oakland has simply been the tail to San Francisco's baseball kite and this must be changed. The gentlemen who have looked over the situation concede this point and say that if they go into the deal Oakland will be an independent city and will have Sunday games just the same as any other league city. We have the grounds here and there is no reason in the world why we should not have our regular games. In summer the Piedmont grounds are as good as any in the State for baseball. In my judgment the people of this city will patronize the Sunday game if there is any chance of seeing some good playing.

***

The question of salaries was fully discussed with me, and the gentlemen interested came to the conclusion that the only proper way to run the league is to pay a stated sum to the players. Of course there will be no large salaries, for the day for gilt-edged salaries has passed. Players, and good ones at that, can now be secured for a reasonable sum, and many of them are glad to get the work. The idea seems to prevail that new talent must be secured from abroad. The public is tired of the old-time players and they want to see new faces. Altogether the scheme proposed by the gentlemen is a good one in my judgment, and I see no reason why they would not make a success of the venture.

***

In regard to Oakland, I made the suggestion that it might be well, besides a regular manager, to have an honorary board of directors composed of well known men, who could from time to time give suggestions as to the management of the team. I do not think this would be a bad scheme.

***

The gentlemen interested in the deal desire that every club that goes into the league shall put up $1500 as a guarantee that the team will play the season out. This is a good rule and one which I can commend. It will inspire confidence in the league on the part of the public. In a short time I will be able to give the names of the gentlemen who are urging the formation of the league. They are well known in the business world.

The salary roll of the Boston Club will not be very small next year. Here is what an exchange says about it: "Of the Boston players Ganzel, Nichols, Hodson, Lowe, Nash and Duffy have not yet signed. McCarthy, Stivetts, Long and Tucker of last year's team have signed. Mac got pretty near the limit, $2400, last year, and surely didn't sign unless he got that sum. Tucker was given the limit, an increase of $250 over last year. Herman Long signed for last year's figures, $2500. Jack Stivetts will draw $2000 from the Bostons next year. Of the new men Collins will get the most money, $1700. Pitcher Sullivan comes next with $1600. Catcher Warner will draw $1550 and Shortstop Nye $1350. Pitcher Dolan will get $1200. Hodson, when he signs, will probably get $1400. Of the players to sign Nash, Nichols and Duffy will get over the limit and Bob Lowe the limit. Ganzel will get about $2000. The salary roll of the Boston Club will amount to $35,000.

***

The National League does not hesitate to rob baseball players. The following from an exchange gives an idea of how they work it: "The result of A.

DON'T ACCEPT IMITATIONS.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CIN'TI.

C. Gumbert's case against the Chicago Ball Club, which was settled in the United States Courts here recently, was somewhat of a surprise. It has been again fully demonstrated that the player who while in the employ of the National League desires to say his soul is his own will get another think. No one with good common sense will for a moment doubt that the Chicago people did conspire with the rest of the league clubs to keep Gumbert out of employment, all because he refused to accept a reduction in salary amounting to $900 a year. He dared to make a stand against the Chicago Club and he has got the worst of it, for the time being at least. But the end is likely not yet. The little harmony taken in during the trial showed very plainly that the National League did, at a meeting in 1892, concoct a scheme to beat players out of a greater portion of that salary to which they had been raised during the Brotherhood war, but it seems that is their great American privilege."—Pittsburg Gazette.

The directors of the club will give an entertainment for gentlemen in January, when another boxing contest will be arranged.

THE WHEELMEN.

An Important Point Regarding the Stealing of Bicycles.

The wheelmen have long been anxious to have the law construed in regard to the stealing of bicycles. There have been many thefts in Oakland and the wheelmen wanted the law defined. The Supreme Court of this State has just given a decision that will be of interest to every owner of a wheel. It is as follows:

The Supreme Court has reversed the judgment and order of the lower court in the case of John Brown, convicted of burglary and sentenced to a term of imprisonment. Brown stole a bicycle from a house where he was working for his board. His excuse was that he did it to ride another boy. It was his intention, he said, to return the wheel in a few hours after giving the owner a scare. Counsel for Brown accordingly argued at the trial that in order to convict there must be proof of felonious intent. The trial judge, however, took an opposite view from that of counsel and so instructed the jury. He declared that if the boy had simply taken the bicycle to ride him over a journey of twenty-five miles or so the offense would be larceny just as much as though he had intended an absolute theft. It did not matter whether he intended to permanently deprive the owner of his bicycle or not.

The Supreme Court holds that this instruction was error. It was declared that to support a conviction in such a case as the one at bar there must be proof of felonious intent. The case was therefore remanded for a new trial.

ON THE WATER.

The Oakland Navy Season for 1894 is in History.

With the race last Sunday, the season of the Oakland Navy for 1894 ended. It was a foregone conclusion that the Flash would win the pennant, for she had already secured enough points to win without the race last Sunday. This fact rather killed the interest in the last contest, because the boys knew that they did not have a chance to beat the Flash out.

The season for 1895 will open in January, when the first race will be sailed. A number of new boats will join the navy and participate in the season's contests. It is proposed to hold twelve races during the season.

Commodore Von Schmidt is building a new race boat which no will enter in the navy races next year. He realizes that the Whirlwind, as a racer, is out of the contest, and he proposes to put a boat on the water that will make the Flash look to her laurels.

THE RELIANCE CLUB.

A Big Entertainment is Under Consideration.

The directors of the Reliance Club are considering a proposition to give a big entertainment at the Macdonough Theater. Some of the members of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West have urged that the club give the entertainment in order to raise funds for the reception of Native Sons in this city. It is proposed to produce a new opera written by a San Francisco man. If the arrangements are completed the entertainment will probably be given in January.

The gymnasium at the club is well patronized by the athletes these days. The wheelmen cannot take an outing in this kind of weather, so they get their exercise in the gymnasium.

The Reliance athletes will hold a handball tournament soon. It is proposed to limit the tournament to members of the club only. Some of the boys, however, would like to have an inter-club tournament so that they could try their skill with the Acme men.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

The Reliance Men Are Anxious to Play Again.

The Reliance football players have not done any hard practice as yet, although it is a settled fact that they are going to play a game with the Chicago University team. The local boys, however, are taking a little exercise in the gymnasium and it will not take more than a week for them to get in good playing condition. Captain Lucas and his men feel confident that they can hold their own with the visiting team. As the men of the Reliance team are the champions of the coast the visitors will have to defeat them in order to gain much glory.

The negotiations to get the Denver team to come to the coast are still going on and the Reliance boys are willing to put up some money to help pay for the trip. It is rather late now, however, to close the negotiations.

The Reliance team has not made any arrangements to play games with either the Stanford or the Berkeley teams. The lack of feeling does not prevail among the three teams on account of the negotiations that were made by Stanford to bring out the Chicago team.

The receipts from the three big football games played by the University of Pennsylvania team this year were [illegible] $31 75, and the expenses for the same three games were $20 157 05. Pennsylvania's net profits from the games were $22,161 87, an equal amount being divided between the other three leagues. The Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania is now for the first time in its history free from all indebtedness and has in its treasury nearly $9000. On October 1, 1893, the deficit amounted to $8752 97, in addition to an indebtedness to the Board of Directors individually of some $1700, making a total of about $10,000. This deficiency has been met.

The figures for the three big games follow:

	Receipts.	Expenses.	Each Im.
Princeton	$42[illegible]	$[illegible]	$6[illegible]
Cornell	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

CRESCENT ATHLETES.

The Berkeley Club Now in a Prosperous Condition.

The Crescent Athletic Club of Berkeley is now on a firm basis. Arrangements are being made with J. Lemmer for the erection of a club building near the corner of Addison street and Shattuck avenue. According to the plans the lower floor will consist of the gymnasium and dressing and bath rooms, the upper story will contain billiard, reading, lounging and reception rooms.

The club number several fine athletes and will enter a team in the spring games. Application has been made for membership in the Pacific Coast Amateur Athletic Association. A baseball club is also being organized and will look after the Reliance and college team.

J. L. Grant, a well-known Berkeley teacher of physical culture and author of a standard work on the subject, has joined the club and will lead classes twice a week.

Tonight Al Lean and Dick Cook of the Acme Club will give the boys a few pointers on wrestling.

ALAMEDA NOTES.

Treasurer Barber Resigns—The Free Library.

At the meeting of the City Trustees of Alameda, last night, County Tax Collector-elect Barber handed in his resignation as City Treasurer, to take effect December 31st. Several of the Trustees spoke in very flattering terms of Mr. Barber's efficiency in office. E. Minor Smith and C. S. Neal are the most prominent candidates for the vacant position.

In the event of Mr. Smith's success, a vacancy will occur in the Assessor's office, on which E. Mayrisch Jr. is said to have a claim.

A report compiled by Librarian Harbourne shows that although Alameda's Free Library is first in circulation in proportion to population and third in the State in actual circulation, the institution is run about $5000 per annum cheaper than any other.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. C. M. Hartnett, who has been quite ill, is slowly convalescing.

Frank Roberts of Hillsdale, Mich., who has been the guest of his mother, Mrs. Georgia Smith of Jackson and Ninth streets, has returned home. He is so pleased with Oakland that it is his intention to dispose of his Michigan property interests to return with his family to make this city his future home.

C. J. Horton is spending the winter in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Dr. J. S. McCrew of Honolulu, who has been the guest of Mrs. D. N. Van Vliet of Berkeley, left for San Jose yesterday morning.

Rev. William Rader, associate pastor of the First Congregational Church, has gone to Philadelphia to attend his mother's deathbed.

Ex-Mayor Andrus is lying seriously ill at his home in West Oakland.

John Mitchell of Berkeley has returned from San Jose.

J. Harrington of Alameda is visiting in El Dorado county.

TWO TO WO.

Berkeley's Town Trustees in a Bad Plight.

The Election of a New Member Dead-Locked.

Preble May Yet Get Left in His Race for the Clerkship.

When Berkeley's Board of Town Trustees meet next Monday evening it will be without a chairman or clerk, and instead of five members there will be but four.

There was a slight mistake in the advertising for some street work, which necessitated the bids being opened last night, so the meeting Monday night will be a regular session. The several members of the Board of Trustees, however, have a meeting called for Monday evening, when the mistake will be corrected. Mr. Woodhead became disgusted with the proceedings [illegible] when the bids were opened, and with [illegible] left the meeting. This [illegible] the Trustees to the [illegible] when Mr. Preble, who [illegible] the chairmanship, declined to resign and [illegible] Mr. Woodhead [illegible] Mr. Preble, with the exception of himself, declined to resign and [illegible] Mr. Preble [illegible] Mr. Preble [illegible] Mr. Preble

THE WEATHER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., December 19, 1894, 5 p. m.

SYNOPSIS AND GENERAL FORECAST.

The moderate barometric depression which was central yesterday off the Northern California coast is now central along the Central California coast, from which locality a trough-like depression extends northward along the coast to British Columbia. Rain has occurred throughout California which has been heavy at San Francisco and in the Sacramento valley. The heaviest rainfalls are: Red Bluff, 1.16 inches in twenty-four hours; San Francisco, 1.42; Sacramento, 0.12. The rainfall has been but light in the San Joaquin valley and the southern part of the state, but the conditions are favorable for a more generous rain in that locality today and tonight. The area of high pressure over Utah, together with the storms it evokes mountains, is receding the top ment eastward of this southern depression. It is likely, however, to pass eastward through Southern California, Arizona and Utah during the next thirty-six hours. Rain will continue in California today and showery weather is probable tonight and a portion of Thursday.

FORECAST MADE AT SAN FRANCISCO FOR 72 HOURS, ENDING AT 5 P. M., DECEMBER 22, 1894:

Northern California—Rain today, local rain tonight, probably showers, but partly clearing weather Thursday, nearly stationary temperature, easterly winds, probably shifting to westerly Thursday.

Southern California—Local rain, nearly stationary temperature, easterly winds probably shifting to westerly Thursday.

Nevada—Local snow today, tonight and probably Thursday, nearly stationary temperature.

Utah—Local snow, nearly stationary temperature.

Arizona—Showers today, tonight and probably Thursday, nearly stationary temperature.

[illegible]—Rain today and tonight, probably showers, but partly clearing weather Thursday, nearly stationary temperature, fresh, easterly winds shifting to westerly winds.

WEDNESDAY.....DECEMBER 19, 1894

Robert Louis Stevenson has been for many years an inveterate cigarette smoker, and there is not much room for doubt that his sudden death was intimately connected with that habit.

It is proposed to make a collection of Indian antiquities for the museum at Golden Gate Park. San Francisco is nearly twenty years behind the times in making such a collection, for it is nearly that length of time since M. Pinaurd secured the State and Arizona in the interest of the French Academy of Sciences. He had a virgin field to work in and shipped many tons of the rarest antiquities which the Pacific coast Indian mounds and ancient cliff dwelling contained. These now enrich the precious collections of the French Academy. Even the California Academy of Sciences looked on at M. Pinaurd's work with indifference. It was not until he had despoiled the field of its greatest treasures that it woke up to a full realization of the value of these antiquities of extinct races. It, thereupon, sent its collectors into the field. But they were too late. Pinaurd had gathered the harvest; only the gleanings were left for them. Now the newly-appointed curator of the park museum intends making a collection. He is seriously handicapped beforehand, for the field has been well-worked. He will be very fortunate if he finds anything left that is of any really scientific value.

Escaping Tuition Fees.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education Director Mock exposed one of the impositions that are being perpetrated on the department regularly by persons having no claim upon it. Mr. Mock reported that there were three pupils in the Lincoln Grammar and one in the High school whose parents are residing in an outlying district, but who are escaping the payment of tuition fees by subterfuge and fraud. This practice is a common one—much more common than anyone connected with the department has ever been willing to admit. A few years ago a woman from one of the northern counties, opened a boarding house in the Third ward expressly for the accommodation of the children of her up-country friends who desired the advantages of city school education for their children, but who were unwilling to pay the regular tuition fees. That woman carried on a thriving business successfully through several terms, and may be doing so yet for what is known to the contrary. The constant demand for increased facilities upon these school buildings lying near the city boundary suggest that a similar process is at work there. The condition of the Garfield school seems to have been for years past entirely inconsistent with the condition of the district legitimately within the city limits. As a matter of fact there is a strong suspicion that the city has, at its own expense, been saving a large sum annually to the county in this and other schools for many years past. The cases uncovered by Director Mock show the length to which some people will go in order to get free tuition for their children in the schools of Oakland, when they will register them from a livery stable. Perhaps a thorough canvass of the children in attendance in our public schools would show a very large number of cases similar to those exposed by Director Mock and be the means of stopping some of the frauds.

An Editorial Reminiscence.

Walter Mead, in a very readable correspondence to the Nevada City Transcript on the pioneer editors of Nevada county, tells some good anecdotes about the late Edwin G. Waite. One of them describes the manner in which Waite killed off Eugene Casserly, politically. Waite had been installed on the San Francisco Times, a paper that was afterwards merged in the Alta, as the chief editorial writer. Dr. L. G. Gunn was its managing editor and chief stockholder. Casserly was a Democrat, and at the time—1868—a United States Senator. Having just arrived in San Francisco from Washington, the Senator was prevailed upon to make a public speech. What followed is thus told by Mead:

It was his (Casserly's) downfall. The speech was made in what was then called Platt's Hall. In it he endeavored to show the magnitude of the public debt; he showered facts and figures (of his own) on his hearers until they began to believe that all "the wealth of Ormus and of Ind," would not wipe it out. Silver was then on a par with gold. He took the former as his standard. He stated that it would take so many carts, each one loaded to its fullest capacity, going so many times around the world, to pay off the debt. It is not at many years ago, and I have forgotten the number, but it was enormous. Mr. White pricked the bubble. He showed the falsity of Mr. Casserly's statements by arithmetical calculations, and so convincing were his articles, so thoroughly was his argument, that Mr. Casserly's fine ode had no reply to make. Day after day did these articles continue. It was a rich vein and was worked, for all it was worth. One day Mr. Waite received a letter from a strange source. It was to the effect:

"Dear ——: "I do not want you to say anything more of my friend, Senator Casserly. Yours, ALVINZA HAYWARD.

A little while afterward Dr. Gunn came in. He called our friend and said, "Mr. White, there is a subject that is now engaging the attention of a great many minds. It is the utilization of sewage. Please go in on your articles to that subject." He did. He was bowed. He was not allowed to express a single personal opinion after that time.

That story brings up another, which Waite enjoyed to tell himself. Dr. Gunn was unreasonably critical in his treatment of everybody's manuscript. Waite's suffered like the rest. Getting tired of the doctor's editing, Waite put up a job on him. He copied an extract from The Spectator by Addison, one of the greatest masters of good English of his time, on a subject which fitted the occasion, and giving it a suitable heading, sent it in to Dr. Gunn as an original editorial. The article appeared in the next issue of the Times, having been severely "edited," as usual. "I see, doctor," remarked Waite, "that you read the article on such and such a subject." "Yes," replied the doctor, "it was very good; but I dressed it up a little, you know, to make it read a little more sothly," he added, apologetically. "That's all right, doctor; I don't care, if Addison is satisfied!" Then Waite explained to the astonished doctor what he had done and why he had done it. So long as Waite remained on the Times after that his manuscript was not "mangled," as he described it, any more.

The tramp steamer Montserrat, which is supposed to have foundered in a recent gale while en route to San Francisco with a cargo of coal from Nanaimo, is said to have been overloaded at every trip she made between the two ports, carrying invariably nearly 200 tons in excess of her gross registered capacity. The Montserrat was a British ship and sailed under the British flag. The loading of all British ships is regulated by a law known as the Plimsoll act, and the lawful load line of each vessel sailing under the British flag is defined by what is known as the "Plimsoll mark." No sailor is required to go to sea in a vessel so heavily loaded that the Plimsoll mark is submerged, and severe penalties to officers and owners accompany an offense of that kind. If the Montserrat was overloaded, the Plimsoll mark was submerged. The subject of loading British ships engaged in the Pacific Coast coal trade down to the dock line is likely to be taken up by the proper authorities, owing to the disaster which seems beyond doubt to have befallen the Montserrat.

W. T. STEAD, editor of the Review of Reviews, said some very harsh things about Chicago in his recent book on "If Christ Came to Chicago," but there is nothing in that publication which is half as severe as the following concerning the same city which John Burns, the British labor reformer and leader, is reported to have uttered in a speech recently made at Denver:

If there is a place on the face of the earth that deserves to be wiped out of existence that place is Chicago. I have no toleration for such corruption as I saw there on all sides. Men, women and children seemed imbued with the filth of politics, and there is no attempt to purify the moral atmosphere. Corruption is on every side, and no one seems to take notice of the most flagrant abuse of ordinary decency. Then the social strata is undermined with all that is bad. As I walked through the Italian quarter the sights brought tears to my eyes. Such misery and wretchedness is unparalleled in the darkest part of London. Then the city has more prostitutes than the modern Babylon from which I come and which is said to be the worst city of the world. I repeat that Chicago is a pocket edition of hell and if it is not then hell is a pocket edition of Chicago. Look at the City Hall in Chicago, filled with brothel-keepers, saloon-keepers and prize fighters.

Now that Stevenson is dead the foundation is being skillfully laid to flood the market with posthumous works bearing his name. The first report of his death mentioned one unfinished story. Less than a week after the news reached here this literary heritage has grown to three stories, two being ready for the press. The posthumous racket has been worked for all it was worth after the death of almost every author of note of late years, the publishers reaping a rich harvest from writings which the alleged authors, being dead, could not repudiate.

Chicago formerly boasted that the arrivals and departures of vessels there exceeded the arrivals and departures at any three seaports in the United States. The Times of that city says it cannot make that boast now, for there has been a steady falling off in the record since 1889. That year 12,788 vessels were recorded as having entered the port. It had dropped to 10,000 in 1893. Since then the falling off has steadily continued, and this year the total number of arrivals was 7,492. The decrease in the number of vessels has, however, been accompanied by an increase in the tonnage, which, it is claimed, has nearly doubled since 1880. Larger vessels are now being employed in the lake trade, and many of the small schooners formerly engaged in the Lake Michigan trade have been transferred to Lake Superior.

It is in the air that the organizer of vagrants and ex-convicts into an army whose sole mission is to prey upon the charitable and rob the worthy poor of the aid that justly belongs to them, has made enough out of the organization to start a publication, the first number of which is to contain a libel on those through whose official toleration he and his vagrant crew have been permitted to remain here so long unmolested. If this be true, the fable of the viper and the husbandman will have been again exemplified and the character representing the husbandman will have no one else but himself to blame for it. The vagrancy laws ought to have been put into active operation long ago.

The Berkeley University students seem to have butted their heads against a stone wall when they hazed Campbell for sympathizing with the Stanford football team. They did not hurt him in the least when they painted him with the Stanford colors, but it hurt them to pay the $10 fine imposed by the Justice of the Peace for battery which followed.

What has become of David B. Hill, senior Senator from New York, since the election in which he and Tammany were buried in the same grave?

Merry Old Santy.

Oh, merry old Santy, what stories you tell
To the ears of our dear little sweet Rosabelle!
Though only four summers she's three winters old,
She knows you are coming without being told.

Aye, merry old Santy, she knows you quite well!
For our little one lispeth
Each day: "Ith it Chwithmath?"
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle.

Just as sure as the morning, at dawn of the day,
She opens her eyes to the light but to say:
"Ith Santy Claus gone e, oh, ith he, mamma?
Is Christmath today, oh, ith it, papa?"
And out of the bed on her little bare feet
She trips to the window, your sleighbells to greet.

Oh, merry old Santy, such stories you tell,
To our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

Her tiny white stockings she hangs every eve,
For she says: "Santy's tumin' tonight, I believe."
And ere she's tucked up in her snug little bed
She prays for a dolly "wot wiggles ith head
An' wif nice, curly hair, an' wot opens ith eyes,
An' kin shimmy' stan straight on ith feet if it tries."

Oh, merry old Santy, she knows you so well—
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

ABSOLUTELY PURE

JUST THE THING.

How to Reduce the Cost of Living Expenses.

An Association That Is Based on Economy.

Opportunity for Men of Small Means to Save Money.

People of moderate income will be pleased to know that several well-known and enterprising gentlemen of this city and San Francisco have lately started a new enterprise which will enable its members to save about one-third of what they have heretofore been required to spend on gents' wearing apparel.

The American Clothing Association of San Francisco was incorporated last September with a capital stock of $100,000, divided into 2000 shares of $50 each, over one-half of which has been subscribed. Judging by what has already been accomplished and the further fact that it starts with abundant capital and is under able management, we predict a complete success and a bright future for this new, enterprising and worthy California institution.

The principal aim of the association seems to be to reduce the price to the consumer on such goods as it may handle. It is patterned after a very successful institution of the same kind in England, which has revolutionized the trade there.

The plan of the organization is to obtain a lot of subscribing members, each of whom shall pay a small sum annually in dues. Each subscriber is entitled to receive any of the goods carried by the association at wholesale prices.

While it is the intention of the American Clothing Association to do a regular mercantile business and sell to the general public, its principal business will be to supply the wants of its regular members, thus avoiding the high rents and other expenses which retail establishments of similar size are compelled to pay, in order to obtain trade and which, quite naturally, has to come out of the pocket of the consumer.

The association has established temporary offices at 26 O'Farrell street, in San Francisco, where stock subscription books and books for membership have been opened. Arrangements are being made also to open a large department store, consisting of six departments, to wit: Gents' furnishing goods, hats, shoes, ready made clothing, tailoring and jewelry.

T. B. Potter, a well-known Oakland man, has been elected president and manager for the first year, and his record of ten years past in Oakland as an honorable and successful business man is a guarantee that the new association will be both successfully and economically managed.

F. M. Persinger, for several years cashier and manager of a national bank in Nebraska and more recently the land agent for the South San Francisco Land Improvement Co., has been elected secretary, and is a capable and energetic business man, well fitted for the duties of the office.

The directorate of the association contains the names of some of the most conservative and prosperous business men in Oakland and San Francisco, and taken altogether it will command the respect of the mercantile world.

That business men of Oakland think well of the new proposition is evidenced by the fact that several of our most prominent merchants, professional men and city and county officials have subscribed for the stock.

The stockholders enjoy the same privilege as members but do not have to pay any dues, in addition to which they obtain a share of any profits which may accrue.

The plan of this association should not be mistaken for that of the numerous "supply companies" which have started in various parts of the country with practically no capital, and which make a business of obtaining a discount from various dealers for their patrons.

The American Clothing Association will carry a complete stock from which selections may be made. Its members will actually receive their goods at wholesale cost.

In times like the present nearly every one is more or less affected by the general depression in business, and we believe that many will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity of saving money by joining the American Clothing Association and reaping its benefits. Its promoters have our best wishes for its ultimate success.

DOLLAR BLAND.

Missouri's Advocate of Free Coinage Deserted.
Dallas News, Dem.

Look at Bland. There is a man who has been in Congress continuously from the Forty-third Congress, this being the Fifty-third. He has made a study of free coinage and he is considered here and in foreign countries an authority on the subject. He has devoted his life to the study of the silver question. He has not only taught the country generally, but it is said by those who are acquainted with his home conduct that there is not a farmer in his district whom he does not know and not a hearthstone in it over which he has not expectorated tobacco juice. It is said of him that his custom has always been to make a house to house campaign. In a buggy sufficiently old not to offend the people drawn by a horse not too sleepy to excite remarks about style and fat enough to prevent remarks about the candidate being a trifling man, he wheeled over his district, and in grover, schoolhouses, court buildings, at picnics, fish fries and barbecues, taught and kept in line his people on the free coinage of silver idea. His voice has been heard by every bird and rabbit in his district as a warning cry against the gold bug and the dastard that would relegate free silver to the rear, and yet at the last election his people either walked up to the polls or remained away from them, which is the same thing, and handed their great leader, bound hand and foot, over to the gold bug and spat out the free coinage idea as a man would relieve his mouth of tobacco. The question is, was Bland an indifferent teacher or did the people of Bland's district commence some time ago to think for themselves?

Overcome Opposition.

"Knowledge overcomes it, because as a light darkness." In the same way ALCOCK'S PLASTERS have overcome the prejudice of people who are opposed to every remedy of the kind. Their success is testified to on every hand by those who have used them and those who have seen them used.

For more than thirty years they have won the highest praise from people of every nationality in every country. Sufferers from rheumatism, indigestion, stiff and sore muscles have told of their value, and from the time when seen the relief and returning health have stood their portion of ALCOCK'S PLASTERS. The result has been that a position has ceased and they stand supreme.

PLASTERS of this make can always be relied upon.

A Hard Worker

And success should crown his untiring efforts to please any and all with whom he may come in contact, both socially or in a business way.

Referring to B. C. Lund, who has recently gone to a large expense in fitting up the finest cycling parlors in Oakland, which are located in the Central Bank building, on Fourteenth street, we would say, that he has executed splendid judgment in having arranged the salesroom, waiting room and ladies' dressing room on the ground floor and the repairing department and storeroom in the basement.

He carries a full line of the Columbia and Cleveland wheels, besides a large assortment of cheaper and smaller ones for the holiday trade. He makes a specialty of teaching and can be found at the Central Cyclery, 429 Fourteenth street, corner Broadway.

THE WEATHER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., December 19, 5 A. M.

SYNOPSIS AND GENERAL FORECAST.

The moderate barometric depression which was central yesterday off the Northern California coast is now central along the Central California coast, from which locality a trough-like depression extends northward along the coast to British Columbia. Rain has occurred throughout California which has been heavy at San Francisco and in the Sacramento valley. The heaviest rainfalls are: Red Bluff, 1.06 inches in twenty-four hours; San Francisco, 1.42; Sacramento, 0.82. The rainfall has been but light in the San Joaquin valley and the southern part of the State, but the conditions are favorable for a more generous rain in that locality today and tonight. The area of high pressure over Utah, together with the Sierra Nevada mountains, is retarding the movement eastward of the southern depression. It is likely, however, to pass eastward through Southern California, Arizona and Utah during the next thirty-six hours. Rain will continue in California today and showery weather is probable tonight and a portion of Thursday.

FORECAST MADE AT SAN FRANCISCO FOR 36 HOURS, ENDING AT 5 P. M., DECEMBER 20, 1894:

Northern California—Rain today, local rain tonight, probably showers, but partly clearing weather Thursday, nearly stationary temperature, easterly winds, probably shifting to westerly Thursday.

Southern California—Local rain, nearly stationary temperature, easterly winds probably shifting to westerly Thursday.

Nevada—Local snow today, tonight and probably Thursday, nearly stationary temperature.

Utah—Local snow, nearly stationary temperature.

Arizona—Showers today, tonight and probably Thursday, nearly stationary temperature.

SAN FRANCISCO AND VICINITY.

Rain today and tonight, probably showers, but partly clearing weather Thursday, nearly stationary temperature, fresh, easterly winds shifting to westerly winds.

W. H. HAMMON,
Local Forecast Official.

WEDNESDAY.....DECEMBER 19, 1894

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON had been for many years an inveterate cigarette smoker, and there is not much room for doubt that his sudden death was intimately associated with that habit.

IT is proposed to make a collection of Indian antiquities for the museum at Golden Gate Park. San Francisco is nearly twenty years behind the times in making such a collection, for it is nearly that length of time since M. Pinaurd secured the State and Arizona in the interest of the French Academy of Sciences. He had a virgin field to work in and shipped many tons of the rarest antiquities which the Pacific coast Indian mounds and ancient cliff dwellings contained. These now enrich the precious collections of the French Academy. Even the California Academy of Sciences looked on at M. Pinaurd's work with indifference. It was not until he had despoiled the field of its greatest treasures that it woke up to a full realization of the value of these antiquities of extinct races. It, thereupon, sent its collectors into the field. But they were too late. Pinaurd had gathered the harvest; only the gleanings were left for them. Now the newly-appointed curator of the park museum intends making a collection. He is seriously handicapped beforehand, for the field has been well-worked. He will be very fortunate if he finds anything left that is of any really scientific value.

Escaping Tuition Fees.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education Director Mock exposed one of the impositions that are being perpetrated on the department regularly by persons having no claim upon it. Mr. Mock reported that there were three pupils in the Lincoln Grammar and one in the High school whose parents are residing in an outlying district, but who are escaping the payment of tuition fees by subterfuge and fraud. This practice is a common one—much more common than anyone connected with the department has ever been willing to admit. A few years ago a woman from one of the northern counties, opened a boarding house in the Third ward expressly for the accommodation of the children of her up-country friends who desired the advantages of city school education for their children, but who were unwilling to pay the regular tuition fees. That woman carried on a thriving business successfully through several terms, and may be doing so yet for what is known to the contrary. The constant demand for increased facilities upon these school buildings lying near the city boundary suggest that a similar process is at work there. The condition of the Garfield school seems to have been for years past entirely inconsistent with the condition of the district legitimately within the city limits. As a matter of fact there is a strong suspicion that the city has, at its own expense, been saving a large sum annually to the county in this and other schools for many years past. The cases uncovered by Director Mock show the length to which some people will go in order to get free tuition for their children in the schools of Oakland, when they will register them from a livery stable. Perhaps a thorough canvass of the children in attendance in our public schools would show a very large number of cases similar to those exposed by Director Mock and be the means of stopping some of the fraud.

An Editorial Reminiscence.

Walter Mead, in a very readable correspondence to the Nevada City Transcript on the pioneer editors of Nevada county, tells some good anecdotes about the late Edwin G. Waite. One of them describes the manner in which Waite killed off Eugene Casserly, politically. Waite had been installed on the San Francisco Times, a paper that was afterwards merged in the Alta, as the chief editorial writer. Dr. L. G. Gunn was its managing editor and chief stockholder. Casserly was a Democrat, and at the time—1863—a United States Senator, having just arrived in San Francisco from Washington, the Senator was prevailed upon to make a public speech. What followed is thus told by Mead:

It was his (Casserly's) downfall. The speech was made in what was then called Platt's Hall. In it he endeavored to show the magnitude of the public debt; he showered facts and figures (of his own) on his hearers until they began to believe that all "the wealth of Ormus and of Ind," would not wipe it out. Silver was then on a par with gold. He took the former as his standard. He stated that it would take so many carts, each one loaded to its fullest capacity, going so many times around the world, to pay off the debt. It is a great many years ago, and I have forgotten the number, but it was enormous. Mr. Waite pricked the bubble. He showed the falsity of Mr. Casserly's statements by arithmetical calculations, and so convincing were his articles, so thoroughly was his argument, that Mr. Casserly's friends had no reply to make. Day after day did these articles continue. It was a rich vein and was worked for all it was worth. One day Mr. Waite received a letter from a strange source. It was to the effect:

"Dear Sir: I do not want you to say anything more of my friend, Senator Casserly. Yours, ADELINA HAYWARD."

A little while afterward Dr. Gunn came in. He called our friend and said, "Mr. Waite, there is a subject that is now engaging the attention of a great many minds. It is the utilization of sewage. Please confine your articles to that subject." He did. He was bored. He was not allowed to express a single personal opinion after that time.

That story brings up another, which Waite enjoyed to tell himself. Dr. Gunn was unreasonably critical in his treatment of everybody's manuscript. Waite's suffered like the rest. Getting tired of the doctor's editing, Waite put up a job on him. He copied an extract from The Spectator by Addison, one of the greatest masters of good English of his time, on a subject which fitted the occasion, and giving it a suitable heading, sent it in to Dr. Gunn as an original editorial. The article appeared in the next issue of the Times, having been severely "edited," as usual. "I see, doctor," remarked Waite, "that you used the article on such and such a subject." "Yes," replied the doctor, "it was very good; but I dressed it up a little, you know, to make it read a little more smoothly," he added, apologetically. "That's all right, doctor; I don't care, if Addison is satisfied!" Then Waite explained to the astonished doctor what he had done and why he had done it. So long as Waite remained on the Times after that his manuscript was not "mangled," as he described it, any more.

THE tramp steamer Montserrat, which is supposed to have foundered in a recent gale while en route to San Francisco with a cargo of coal from Nanaimo, is said to have been overloaded at every trip she made between the two ports, carrying invariably nearly 200 tons in excess of her gross registered capacity. The Montserrat was a British ship and sailed under the British flag. The loading of all British ships is regulated by a law known as the Plimsoll act, and the lawful load line of each vessel sailing under the British flag is defined by what is known as the "Plimsoll mark." No sailor is required to go to sea in a vessel so heavily loaded that the Plimsoll mark is submerged, and severe penalties to officers and owners accompany an offense of that kind. If the Montserrat was overloaded, the Plimsoll mark was submerged. The subject of loading British ships engaged in the Pacific Coast coal trade down to the dock line is likely to be taken up by the proper authorities, owing to the disaster which seems beyond doubt to have befallen the Montserrat.

W. T. STEAD, editor of the Review of Reviews, said some very harsh things about Chicago in his recent book on "If Christ Came to Chicago," but there is nothing in that publication which is half as severe as the following concerning the same city which John Burns, the British labor reformer and leader, is reported to have uttered in a speech recently made at Denver:

If there is a place on the face of the earth that deserves to be wiped out of existence that place is Chicago. I have no toleration for such corruption as I saw there on all sides. Men, women and children seemed imbued with the filth of politics, and there is no attempt to purify the moral atmosphere. Corruption is on every side, and no one seems to take notice of the most flagrant abuse of ordinary decency. Then the social strata is undermined with all that is bad. As I walked through the Italian quarter the sights brought tears to my eyes. Such misery and wretchedness is unparalleled in the darkest part of London. Then the city has more prostitutes than the modern Babylon from which I come and which is said to be the worst city of the world. I repeat that Chicago is a pocket edition of hell and if it is not then hell is a pocket edition of Chicago. Look at the City Hall in Chicago, filled with brothel-keepers, saloon-keepers and prize fighters.

NOW THAT Stevenson is dead the foundation is being skillfully laid to flood the market with posthumous works bearing his name. The first report of his death mentioned one unfinished story. Less than a week after the news reached here this literary heritage has grown to three stories, two being ready for the press. The posthumous racket has been worked for all it was worth after the death of almost every author of note of late years, the publishers reaping a rich harvest from writings which the alleged authors, being dead, could not repudiate.

CHICAGO formerly boasted that the arrivals and departures of vessels there exceeded the arrivals and departures at any three seaports in the United States. The Times of that city says it cannot make that boast now, for there has been a steady falling off in the record since 1889. That year 12,788 vessels were recorded as having entered the port. It had dropped to 10,000 in 1893. Since then the falling off has steadily continued, and this year the total number of arrivals was 7,492. The decrease in the number of vessels has, however, been accompanied by an increase in the tonnage, which, it is claimed, has nearly doubled since 1880. Larger vessels are now being employed in the lake trade, and many of the small schooners formerly engaged in the Lake Michigan trade have been transferred to Lake Superior.

IT is in the air that the organizer of vagrants and ex-convicts into an army whose sole mission is to prey upon the charitable and rob the worthy poor of the aid that justly belongs to them, has made enough out of the organization to start a publication, the first number of which is to contain a libel on those through whose official toleration he and his vagrant crew have been permitted to remain here so long unmolested. If this be true, the fable of the viper and the husbandman will have been again exemplified and the character representing the husbandman will have no one else but himself to blame for it. The vagrancy laws ought to have been put into active operation long ago.

THE Berkeley University students seem to have butted their heads against a stone wall when they hazed Campbell for sympathizing with the Stanford football team. They did not hurt him in the least when they painted him with the Stanford colors, but it hurt them to pay the $10 fine imposed by the Justice of the Peace for battery which followed.

WHAT has become of David B. Hill, senior Senator from New York, since the election in which he and Tammany were buried in the same grave?

Merry Old Santy.

Oh, merry old Santy, what stories you tell
To the ears of our dear little sweet Rosabelle!
Though only four summers and three winters old,
She knows you are coming without being told.

Aye, merry old Santy, she knows you quite well!
For our little one lispeth
Each day: "It is Christmuth!"
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle.

Just as sure as the morning, at dawn of the day,
She opens her eyes to the light but to say:
"Oh Santy Claus come, oh, ith he, mamma?
It's Christmuth today, oh, ith it, papa?"
And up it of the bed in her little bare feet
She trips to the window, your sleighbell's to greet.

Oh, merry old Santy, such stories you tell
To our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

Her tiny white stockings she hangs every eve,
For she says: "Santy's tummin' tonight, I believe"
And ere she's tucked up in her song little bed
She prays for a dolly "wot wiggles ith head:
An' wif nice, curly hair, an' wot opens ith eyes,
An' kin almos' stan' straight on ith feet if it tries"

Oh, merry old Santy, she knows you so well—
Our dear little sweet Rosabelle!

JUST THE THING.

How to Reduce the Cost of Living Expenses.

An Association That Is Based on Economy.

Opportunity for Men of Small Means to Save Money.

People of moderate income will be pleased to know that several well-known and enterprising gentlemen of this city and San Francisco have lately started a new enterprise which will enable its members to save about one-third of what they have heretofore been required to spend on gents' wearing apparel.

The American Clothing Association of San Francisco was incorporated last September with a capital stock of $10,000, divided into 2000 shares of $50 each, over one-half of which has been subscribed. Judging by what has already been accomplished and the further fact that it starts with abundant capital and is under able management, we predict a complete success and a bright future for this new, enterprising and worthy California institution.

The principal aim of the association seems to be to reduce the price to the consumer on such goods as it may handle. It is patterned after a very successful institution of the same kind in England, which has revolutionized the trade there.

The plan of the organization is to obtain a lot of subscribing members, each of whom shall pay a small amount annually in dues. Each subscriber is entitled to receive any of the goods carried by the association at wholesale prices.

While it is the intention of the American Clothing Association to do a regular mercantile business and sell to the general public, its principal business will be to supply the wants of its regular members, thus avoiding the high rents and other expenses which retail establishments of similar size are compelled to pay, in order to obtain trade and which, quite naturally, has to come out of the pocket of the consumer.

The association has established temporary offices at 26 O'Farrell street, San Francisco, where stock subscription books and books for membership have been opened. Arrangements are being made also to open a large department store, consisting of six departments, to wit: Gents' furnishing goods, hats, shoes, ready made clothing, tailoring and jewelry.

T. B. Potter, a well-known Oakland man, has been elected president and manager for the first year, and his record of ten years past in Oakland as an honorable and successful business man is a guarantee that the new association will be both successfully and economically managed.

F. M. Persinger, for several years cashier and manager of a national bank in Nebraska and more recently the land agent for the South San Francisco Land Improvement Co., has been elected secretary, and is a capable and energetic business man, well fitted for the duties of the office.

The directorate of the association contains the names of some of the most conservative and prosperous business men in Oakland and San Francisco, and taken altogether it will command the respect of the mercantile world.

That business men of Oakland think well of the new proposition is evidenced by the fact that several of our most prominent merchants, professional men and city and county officials have subscribed for the stock.

The stockholders enjoy the same privilege as members but do not have to pay any dues, in addition to which they obtain a share of any profits which may accrue.

The plan of this association should not be mistaken for that of the numerous "supply companies" which have started in various parts of the country with practically no capital, and which make a business of obtaining a discount from various dealers for their patrons.

The American Clothing Association will carry a complete stock from which selections may be made. Its members will actually receive their goods at wholesale cost.

In times like the present nearly every one is more or less effected by the general depression in business, and we believe that many will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity of saving money by joining the American Clothing Association and reaping its benefits. Its promoters have our best wishes for its ultimate success.

DOLLAR BLAND.

Dallas News, Dem.

Look at Bland. There is a man who has been in Congress continuously from the Forty-third Congress, this being the Fifty-third. He has made a study of free coinage and he is considered here and in foreign countries an authority on the subject. He has devoted his life to the study of the silver question. He has not only taught the country generally, but it is said by those who are acquainted with his home conduct that there is not a farmer in his district whom he does not know and not a hearthstone in it over which he has not expectorated tobacco juice. It is said of him that his custom has always been to make a house to house campaign. In a buggy sufficiently old not to offend the people drawn by a horse not too sleepy to excite remarks about style and fat enough to prevent remarks about the candidate being a trifling man, he wheeled over his district, and in groves, schoolhouses, court buildings, at picnics, fish fries and barbecues, taught and kept in line his people on the free coinage of silver idea. His voice has been heard by every bird and rabbit in his district as a warning cry against the gold bug and the dastard that would relegate free silver to the rear, and yet at the last election his people either walked up to the polls or rammed away from them, which is the same thing, and handed their great leader, bound hand and foot, over to the gold bug and spat out the free coinage idea as a man would relieve his mouth of tobacco. The question is, was Bland an indifferent teacher or did the people of Bland's district commence some time ago to think for themselves?

Overcome Opposition.

"Knowledge overcomes ignorance as sunlight darkness." In the same way ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER have overcome the prejudice of people who are opposed to every remedy of the kind. Their success is testified to on every hand by those who have used them and those who have seen them used.

For more than thirty years they have won the highest praise from people of every nationality in every country. Sufferers from rheumatism, indigestion, stiff and sore muscles have told of their value, and friends who have seen the relief and returning health have added their praise of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER. The result has been that opposition has ceased and they stand supreme.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS can always be relied upon.

A Hard Worker

And success should crown his untiring efforts to please any and all with whom he may come in contact, both socially or in a business way.

Referring to R. C. Lund, who has recently gone to a large expense in fitting up the finest cycling parlors in Oakland, which are located in the Central Bank building, on Fourteenth street, we would say, that he has executed splendid judgment in having arranged the salesroom, renting room and ladies' dressing room on the ground floor and the repairing department and storeroom in the basement. He carries a full line of the Columbia and Cleveland wheels, besides a large assortment of cheaper and smaller ones for the holiday trade. He makes a specialty of teaching and can be found at the Central Cyclery, 420 Fourteenth street, corner Broadway.

MUSIC FOR ALL.

The happy homes of Oakland would want an important element to raise them to the highest standard of refinement, were their echoes never aroused with music and song. But, it may be said, that this evidence of refinement and culture is one of the chiefest charms of Oakland homes. Not only do parlors of this city resound with the sweetest of voices—all home voices and the result of home culture, too—but they are also supplied with instrumental music which can be supplied only by the finest pianos and other instruments intended to produce music under the manipulation of skilled and artistic performers. The music stores of this city have always been distinguished in this respect, and the firm that has been in the van in this respect [illegible], and is, that of Sherman, Clay & Co., whose new store is now stocked with the most improved of all kinds of musical instruments, which invite inspection. The establishment is located at the southeast corner of Fairteenth street and Broadway.

FOR THE FIRST.

What has been said of the elegantly dressed gentlemen of this city is equally true of the ladies of Oakland. In San Francisco, in New York, and even in Paris, there are no more finely appareled women than are a boast of in the Athens of the Pacific coast. This is because in the first instance they have artistic discrimination. They know what becomes them, and, as they are individually gifted with personal charms of form and feature which can be excelled nowhere, it naturally requires the finest kind of apparel to be in keeping. For this reason Oakland ladies, when they appear on the streets are visions of loveliness. This is because they have within this city the means of gratifying their taste for the personal adornment which becomes them. The firm which has conduced in a most remarkable manner to this great feature of our social life is that well-known one of Taft & Pennoyer, 1163, 1165 and 1167 Broadway, which has been in business in this city for many years.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL.

It is one of the facts brought out by experience that whenever nature has been liberal in gifts in beautifying the surrounding country there is sure to be found a race of people who in their form and figure are endowed with charms which are always so agreeable to behold.

There is no need of ill favored, and prematurely aged people suffering by comparison of their appearance, because, if old, they may again become young in a few days at trifling expense. Their gray hair may be made to resume its natural color. If they are wrinkled, the skin may again be made as smooth as it was when they were charming and irresistible. If they have pimpled faces, the blotches may be removed. If they are freckled, the oil feces spots may be banished without pain, and the same may be done with warts and moles. The person who is able to accomplish this is Mrs. Nettie Harrison, the beauty restorer, whose parlors are at 26 Geary street, San Francisco.

SOUND BANKS.

The manner in which Oakland has managed to survive all the commercial crises which has visited this country, has been one of the marvels of the history of the Pacific coast. She has weathered every storm and today is stronger, braver, more solid and more generally known throughout the country than she ever was before. All this has been effected by the staunchness of the money men who have stood by side her and who now stand ready to back her in any financial conflict. The money of the people is the bulwark of this municipality. This money is in Oakland's banks. Back of this money is the personal reputation and wealth of her bankers, and with the latter nearly every adult in this city is acquainted. These banks and bankers have a reputation unsullied. It is the proud boast of Oakland that she has never had a bank failure. When banks in other places were crashing and falling in ruin low there was not the suggestion of a tremor in any of Oakland's home financial institutions. They weathered the last financial storm with the ease and grace worthy of experienced financial institutions and were among the first to announce to their depositors that their deposits were again at their disposal without the customary restriction placed upon their withdrawal as a safeguard in times of trouble. This is especially the proud record of the Oakland Bank of Savings, the president of which is I. L. Requa; the Union National Bank, the president of which is Thomas Prather; and the Central Bank, the president of which is W. G. Palmanteer.

A POPULAR THEATER.

When a community is prosperous, it has the means of relaxation. It readily seeks the means of providing that relaxation, and among those means there is none more popular than the theater. Oakland has always been a good theater city. She has always attracted the best comedy and tragic combinations, and whenever she has permanent theaters of her own they have invariably been of a most worthy character. They have also reaped a rich harvest in patronage of

One of the Most Perfectly Appointed Institutions of the Kind in the Country.

It is Larger, Better Equipped, Capable of Turning Out a Greater Variety of Work and Employs More Men Than Ever Before.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The OAKLAND IRON WORKS, which suffered from the fire some weeks ago, has been rebuilt, restocked with new machinery and is virtually a new institution in everything save the management, which remains as formerly. It has two sites, one on the north and the other on the south side of Second street at the intersection of Jefferson, each 100x150 feet. In place of the structure destroyed there has been a magnificent shop, 100x100 feet erected, supplied with the most improved machinery, and especially with a fifteen ton traveling crane, which is a great saver of time and effort.

There are now 130 men employed in the works. The iron foundry, the machine shop, the brass foundry, the pattern, the boiler and blacksmith shops are perfect, and work in them turned out at more reasonable figures than elsewhere on the coast. Call or address the most encouraging kind. This has been especially true of the theaters established for the masses. One of these which has a warm spot in the heart of every Oaklander is the People's Theater on Washington and Twelfth streets, which is really the people's theater, and in which plays that are well produced and inculcate a wholesome moral are produced in a magnificent manner at the lowest popular prices.

Dreams.

Am I lonely? Oh, no; I could not be,
For I live in a land of dreams,
Where the windows, if ever they gather,
Are dispelled by the tot sunbeams
Of a never ending summer,
Where the flowers never droop nor die,
Where life flows on like a happy song
Under a cloudless sky.

Sometimes when my heart grows weary
With the worry and cares of the day,
I close my eyes—and swiftly
My soul glides sliding away,
Away from the world and its sorrows,
Its pain, and turmoil and strife
To my perfect, changeless, haven of rest,
To my glorious dreamland life.

There my dream friends gather around me,
My dream loves, who never grow cold,
And listening to their tender words,
I forget I am growing old,
And a wonderful rest steals over me,
A peace that the world cannot know,
And out from the measureless distance
Comes music so sweet and so low.

Music, so pure and uplifting,
Inspiring, triumphant and clear,
That I listen entranced to the marvelous sounds,
Till my eyes are filled with tears.
Hang your tears that cool the tired eyes,
And fall with healing balm
Into this restless, unsatisfied heart,
With a touch of infinite calm.

Music, so full of the meaning
Of the life that is to be,
When the earthly fetters that bind me now
Shall be broken, and I shall be free,
Music, that sweeps and surges
To a pean so grand and strong
That it seems to enfold, and bear me away,
And my heart grows strangely young.

And the little cares of this earth life
Dissolve, and fade away,
And I see with vision made perfect,
The dawn of a brighter day.
Oh, friends, does the way seem lonely?
Are your poor hearts with care oppressed?
Come, go with me to my dreamland home
And I promise you joy and rest.

Rest, that surpasses knowledge,
Joy, that the angels might share,
You cannot be lonely, tired or old
In this home of my dreams so fair.
You shall gather the flowers of contentment,
You shall bathe in the crystal spray
Of musical, magical fountains
That shall wash every care away.

Autumn.

A hazy splendor veiling the earth,
A hazy languor filling the air,
A glory of light on the mountains
That tells of the passing year.

Answering, tremulous radiance
Flashing the land and the seas,
While Nature, with touch of an artist,
Is painting the leaves of the trees.

Crimson, and brown, and golden,
They glow, and gleam, and gleam,
Till one wonders how they were ever content
In their cool modest raiment of green.

The days are like glistening jewels
Slipped from the fingers of time,
And the wind sings a soothing lullaby
As it murmurs through hemlock and pine.

The nights are a dreamy enchantment
The mocking bird's song sweet and clear
Floods the woods with delicious music,
Entrancing the listening ear.

Spring and summer may have more flowers,
Winter more gladsome cheer,
But autumn for restful contentment
Is the best of all the year. —Lida Wolcott.

THINK THEY WERE WORKED.

Heirs of the Santos Estate Object to Some Bills.

Maria Roberts, Samuel J. Davina, Eugene A. Davina, and Frances A. Davina have filed objections in court to the first annual account of M. J. Souza, executor of the estate of Joseph S. Santos, deceased.

The contestants make some serious charges against the executor.

They object to the item of $1150 alleged to have been paid to Rufino & Bianchi for a monument on the ground that the amount is excessive. They claim that the monument is only worth $200 and that Souza intending to defraud the estate collusively agreed with Rufino & Bianchi to pay a larger sum than the statue was worth and to charge the estate with such larger amount and to obtain a voucher for the $1150. They assert that the executor has converted the remainder of the money, over and above the value of the monument, to his own use.

Several other items are also objected to on the ground of excessiveness. The matter will be heard before Judge Greene in a few days.

AGAINST THE GATES.

A Meeting Called Tonight at the Courthouse.

A meeting has been called for tonight of the residents south of Seventh street and those holding property in that section. It will be held at 8 o'clock at the Courthouse on Broadway, and its object is to protest to the City Council against the construction of the proposed gates at the Seventh street crossing. The argument is advanced that if the gates are put in operation the property south of Seventh street will greatly depreciate in value and the business houses there will be sorely hampered.

Oakland Iron Works

One of the Most Perfectly Appointed Institutions of the Kind in the Country.

It is Larger, Better Equipped, Capable of Turning Out a Greater Variety of Work and Employs More Men Than Ever Before.

LOCATION, COR. JEFFERSON and SECOND STS.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The OAKLAND IRON WORKS, which suffered from the fire some weeks ago, has been rebuilt, restocked with new machinery and is virtually a new institution in everything save the management which remains as formerly. It has two sites, one on the north and the other on the south side of Second street at the intersection of Jefferson, each 100x150 feet. In place of the structure destroyed there has been a magnificent shop, 100x200 feet erected, supplied with the most improved machinery, and especially with a fifteen to twenty-ton crane, which is a great saver of time and effort.

There are now 150 men employed in the works. The iron foundry, the machine shop, the brass foundry, the pattern shop, the boiler and blacksmith shops are each 100 feet, and work in each turned out at more reasonable figures than elsewhere on the coast. Call or address

BY GERTRUDE ATHERTON

"Wa—a—l," said Mr. Hiram Stump, seating himself upon a log and smirching the golden California poppies with tobacco juice, "there's an old sayin' that finders is keepers, and seein' that I've found this yere land, I believe I'll keep."

"But," remonstrated a younger man, who kept his tobacco in a pipe, and whose overalls and flannel shirt were cleaner than his companion's, "you see, it kinder belongs to someone else. Those Spanish folks have claimed it for nigh on to a hundred years, I'm told."

"Wa—a—l, if they have, they ain't had no right to. What's dagos, anyhow? What right had a Lot or priest and furriners to come here and take possession of free American soil? Grants be damned! The Mexican Government hadn't no right to a square inch of it that was by rights American, whether America owned it or not. I'd like to know if the United States didn't prove it when she kicked 'em out in '46? California is United States territory, and United States citizens has got a right to her land, and what's more, they'll take it. If the dagos want it, they'll hev to go to law or pay fur it, and if they do the fust they'll get licked, and if they do the last it'll all right. If the Senuor Don Julio Sanchez wants this yere section of the Rancho Limiervister, he kin pay fur it in United States gold coin, and pay it to Hiram Stump, esquire, and John Conly, esquire. Here I am and here I'm going to stick. Amen."

"Well," replied his partner, "if those be your sentiments I'm with you, but it don't seem to me exactly right. Seems painfully like takin' what don't belong to you."

"John Conly," said the older man, solemnly, "we came down here to squat, and if we can't find Government land to suit us we'll squat on dago. It's all the same in American-English, and what's more, might is right. This yere square mile of land will be known hereafter as Potato Farm, property of Hiram Stump, esquire, and John Conly, esquire. Now jist put your conscience to bed and git on the bacon and cook dinner. We've had a tramp and I'm powerful hungry."

* * * * * * *

A few days later a valuable mare escaped from the corral of Linda Vista, and for over a week was lost among the hills and gulches of the vast rancho. At last she was tracked and captured by one of the vaqueros and driven toward home with endearments and execrations.

"Ay, mother of God! Thou wretch, thou thief, thou assassin! I am shaken to jilly looking for thee. But if thou hadst fallen over a bluff and broken thy pretty neck, my beloved one! Ay, yi! Ay, yi! Juan would have wept for thee. Get on, thou lazy devil! Dost thou think I have naught to do but crawl at thy heels?"

"What's that gibberish that man is shoulin'?" demanded Hiram Stump, dropping the hand which was giving the completing touches to his log cabin.

"Spanish, I guess. I'm quick at lingos and I've picked up a few words."

At that moment Juan turned his head and caught sight of the two strangers and of the cabin. He stared incredulously, then raising himself in his stirrups and lifting his bridle dashed up to the intruders.

"What do you do here?" he cried in angry Spanish. "Who are you that you dare to build a house on the rancho of the Senor Don Julio Sanchez?"

"What's all that?" asked Stump, calmly continuing his work.

"He wants to know what we are doin' on his master's land."

"Jest tell him."

"Well, young man," said Conly, in poor and halting Spanish, "seeing we liked this place we thought we'd settle here for a time."

"What! What!" screamed the vaquero. "You build a house on my Senor's land and intend to live here? How long? How long?"

"Oh, we'll stay, I guess."

The vaquero stood up in his stirrups and swung his riata as it to rope the intruders, at the same time stuttering a volley of oaths. But the imperturbability of the Americans nonplussed him, and wheeling suddenly, he galloped at full speed up the ranch, followed at long range by the forgotten mare.

II.

Supper was over in the great adobe house at the upper end of the ranch. The family of Don Julio Sanchez was on the long corridor watching the shadows gather on the plateau. Don Julio sat before the open door of the living-room, a black silk handkerchief knotted about his head. His skin was brown and withered, his nose high, his lips thin. Don Julio was something of a martinet. His brown silk short-clothes and lace ruffles were scrupulously neat. He leaned one jeweled hand on a cane and placidly surveyed the broad acres which made him one of the grandees of the land. By his side sat his wife, Dona Josefa, brown and fat and kindly, embroidering by the failing light. Several young men lounged in hammocks. Three girls in white frocks, their dark hair hanging in long braids, were grouped in a corner, laughing and whispering. A half dozen or more children ran about, admonished occasionally by Dona Josefa. Don Julio was very proud of his fourteen sons and daughters.

Suddenly the sound of galloping hoofs broke above the hoarse croaking of the frogs and the shrieks of the children. One of the young men opened his sleepy eyes and sat erect.

"Juan, it must be," he said. "Valgame dios! Has he found La Pulga?"

"Sure," said Don Julio. "He would not return, else."

But a moment later Juan dashed up to the house without the truant mare. A chorus of reproaches greeted him, but ceased as wondering and indignant ears listened to his tale.

Don Julio sprang to his feet and strode up and down the corridor, thrusting the little ones out of his way.

"God of my soul! Mother of God!" he cried. "The insolent invaders! The bandoleros! The accursed Americanos!"

Dona Josefa shook like a large jelly fish. Her strong white teeth clicked audibly. Her cheeks and shoulders smote each other. The girls stood behind her with flaming eyes and flushed faces, a beautiful trio, with no warning in their white, oval and slim elegance that they would one day be brown and fat. The young men were all out of their hammocks and pressing around Juan, splendid caballeros in their gay silken attire and ribboned curls. They were wider awake than they had been since the warm wave came. One of them threw back his head and gave a loud laugh.

"But why pay those interlopers the honor to get angry?" he cried. "We will sweep them out with a broom. They cannot stay. They have no rights. I speak English and I will go in the morning and order them to go. Calm yourselves."

"True, Emilio," said his father, stopping short. "Thou always speakest with wisdom. Of course they must go. But their insolence infuriated me. Not a word have I ever had with a neighbor, and Don Arturo Serpulvidu and I hardly know where his rancho begins and mine ends. To be threatened by an American! God of my soul! An American! But I leave them to thee, my son."

"Yes, to thee, Emilio," cried an admiring chorus. "Thou art the oldest and the wisest. Thou canst manage the Americans."

And peace once more fell upon Linda Vista.

III.

The next noon Mr. Stump and Mr. Conly were frying bacon and boiling potatoes in their new kitchen when the sound of approaching hoofs caused the elder gentleman to look out of the window.

"Well, I'll be durned!" he ejaculated. "What's this comin'?"

Mr. Conly joined him. "Why, that," he said, with a loud laugh, "that's a cavellero."

"A what?"

"One of the rich dago's sons, what is usually in a hammock or on a horse, and what dresses in the stuff we rig up our girls in—silk and lace and diamonds fit for a queen."

Across the fields of poppies, out from the wooded hills, where the long moss waved and the deer leaped, rode Don Emilio Sanchez, a picture calculated to excite the surprise of Mr. Hiram Stump. The pommel and trappings of his embossed leathern saddle were of chased silver. So were his big spurs. So were the links of his bridle, held high in one slender hand. So were the eagles on his brown sombrero. His jacket and short trousers were of red silk, buttoned and laced with gold. His hair and his long yellow botas were bound with red ribbon. His shirt-front was covered with lace.

"Well, he's pretty," remarked Stump. "I move we go out and invite him enter the parlor. He kin sit on that there barrel of lard, and you kin cover it with your extra shirt so he won't grease them pants."

The caballero drew rein and sprang to the ground, removing his sombrero in a deep graceful bow to the two men who had gone out to meet him. Stump and Conly nodded. The languid clear-cut face of the Californian was as sharp a contrast to the gray skin, drab beard and hard features of the lank, ungainly Stump, and to the yellow-bearded, square, stolid face of Conly, as was his rich attire to their soiled overalls and coarse flannel shirts.

"Senors," he said, with exceeding politeness, "I am Emilio Sanchez, the more old son of the Senor Don Julio Sanchez, whose ranch is theses" (with emphasis). "I come talk to you, for I sink English, and the others no can. You onderestand me?"

"You bet," said Stump. "Won't you come inter the kitchen and set? We're cook n' dinner and its soilin'."

"Gracias I shall like."

He followed them into the low room, coughed slightly at the smoke, regarded a flour barrel dubiously, but finally sat himself upon it, risking his trousers rather than hurt their feelings.

"Now you kin talk while we cook," remarked Stump, and once more the bacon sizz'ed.

"I—my vaquero—telling me las' night that two Americanos build house on our rancho. You know, no? that it no is right to build the house on the land de another person? You no have the law in America?"

"Oh, yes; we've got laws enough, but you see, the fact is California's American, and just now she's in the United States. Now the United States didn't take California to run a lot of dagos—beg pardon—Spaniards. My pard's punchin' me; my manners ain't good. I know. Well, the United States took California to make her a grand American State, and the only way she kin do that is by help of American citizens. So, I guess its our duty to help her along. And it ain't no task, you bet. Her gold and her soil is first class. We didn't have no luck in the mines, so we thought we'd try agriculture. See?"

"But," remonstrated the caballero, who had followed this harangue with some difficulty, "why you no take the land we no live on—government land you call, no?"

"Oh, we don't want your leavin's. You've took the best and we don't go a cent on snags 'n rocks. You've got more'n you want, and considerin' as our Government is goin' to run the place, I consider as how her loyal citizens has got their rights. Have a slice of bacon and a murphy? It ain't king's diet, but it's the best we've got and we're satisfied if you are."

Emilio looked askance at the coarse fare on the tin plate, but considered policy and politeness, and ate heroically.

"Now, young man," continued Stump, "you don't want us and we ain't goin' to leave. What yer goin' to do about it?"

"Do? But you mus' go. The land no is yours and you no can have. My father no will sell—no one league."

"And we don't kalkilate to pay no mor'n no kalkilates to sell. We're squattin'."

"Que?"

"Squattin'."

"I no onderestand."

"Well, you will in time. John, you explain. You've got more English'n I've got, to say nothing of yer Spanish."

"Well, it's this way," said Conly, hesitating and blushing a little. "Newcomers to a country who ain't got more money'n they want usually squats—that is to say, settles—builds a house and sows a crop on any place what takes their fancy. Now, we liked this place, after considerable prospectin', better'n any we'd seen, so we concluded to stay here. You won't find us bad neighbors, and we only want a mile. We won't take no more, honor bright, and you'll never miss it."

Don Emilio arose and laid down his tin plate. "Senors," he said with dignity, "I hear the Americanos are brave mens, but I find they are robbers. When they take our country I no mind, for I think it is the best, and I like the officers very much—very fine gentlemens. But all are not alike. I have come to ask you go—very quiet. Si, you not do it, senors, you feel very sorry."

"Oh, we'll take the chances," said Stump, no whit impressed. "We ain't goin'. You kin put that in your pipe and smoke it!"

The caballero's eyes flashed, but he made no retort. He bowed himself out and jumping on his horse galloped away.

IV.

"They'll try shootin' fust," said Stump, "so we'll fix up," and accordingly he and Conly boarded up the windows, barricaded the doors and bored holes for the muzzles of their guns. At about 4 o'clock the next day their precautions were justified. The hills bounding Potato Farm gave up a gay cavalcade of caballeros, who flourished pistols and conversed with excitement. They were some ten in number and were accompanied by the three daughters of Linda Vista. Roboso draped the pretty heads and shoulders of the girls and their flowered gowns fluttered in the breeze. They threatened to divert from their grim purpose the young men that had responded to the call of the sons of the house of Sanchez.

They rode directly up to the cabin and circled about it. It was as silent as the tomb. The chimney was smokeless.

"They have gone!" cried Emilio. "All we have to do is to burn the insolent house."

"I would rather fight!" said one of the assisting caballeros, in accents of disappointment.

"You kin fight!" came a rumbling voice from the interior of the cabin. "We ain't gone or goin'. Fire away!"

"We will fire first into the air," whispered Emilio. "We will frighten them off if possible. I would not do murder." Ten pistols were fired into the air.

"That sounds mighty fine," remarked Mr. Stump. "But why don't you hit somethin'?"

"Senor," replied Emilio, sternly. "Will you go away? I give you one more chancacum!"

"What'n hell's that? But it's all the same. We ain't goin' to leave."

"Then we must kill you, senor!"

"Go it! You'd look well swingin' in the breeze in them circus clothes. And that's what American law'd do fur yu."

"What does he say?" demanded the Californians. Emilio translated, and the blood of the Californians boiled.

"Kill them! Kill them!" they shouted. They spurred their horses and galloped about the house, pelting it with bullets. "Bandoleros! Usurpers! Dogs!" they cried. Then, in a final burst of execration: "Americanos!"

The bullets sank peacefully into the soft wood. Neither shriek nor groan came from within. The caballeros paused to listen, and as silence fell Mr. Stump's voice was heard once more:

"Now, I'm goin' to shoot! And I'll hit. You kin hev five minutes to git out"——

"Ha! ha!" exclaimed Conly's voice, "Do you see that there pretty girl?"

"Pretty girl be ——! This here episode ain't goin' to end in no romance! You 'tend ter business, 'n' when I say shoot, shoot! Hear?"

"Of course I'll shoot. Them dolls make me sick. But the girl! Gosh!"

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Stump, loudly, "will you git?"

An excited conversation ensued without. The caballeros eyed the protruding muzzles with disfavor. The girls counselled war. Their eyes flashed; their cheeks were scarlet. The women of California never willingly yielded to the foe. But prudence prevailed.

"We would only be shot down like dogs!" said Emilio. "We must go to law."

To law they went. The American Alcalde kept the case hanging for several years. Meanwhile, other squatters, encouraged by the success and invitation of Stump and Conly, flocked to Linda Vista, and planted their crops almost to the doors of the adobe mansion. The old Don stamped up and down his corridor in impotent wrath. The sons, like other sons of Californian grandees, drank themselves to death. The daughters married and went elsewhere. The Alcalde died. The Don died. The case fell out of court. The squatters are landholders and the Sanchez are forgotten.—Town Topics.

Good Luck on the Street.

There was a great deal of excitement on Eleventh street, near Broadway, at noon today. It was at first supposed that somebody had been injured, but it was afterwards ascertained that the crowd was attracted by curiosity to witness the transhipment to San Francisco of two immense gold bars by means of the Whitney Rapid Transfer Company, whose office is at 1572 Broadway, corner Tenth street.

Gold, Silver or Nickel.

Booth & Johnson, the electro platers, have just completed the removal of their works to 510 Broadway. By the location of this establishment Oakland has gained another link in the chain of enterprise and many will be glad to know that they can get any kind of Gold, Silver, Copper and Bronze plating done. They make a specialty of silverware, jewelry, carriage rails and lamps, chandeliers, window stands and brackets for glass shelving.

Have You Observed?

Have you observed the new moving van of the People's Express and Transfer Company? It is another leaf in the calendar of their business enterprise. Manager Graham always has an eye on the necessities of the people of Oakland, and as winter is approaching he has met their requirements in having built one of the most unique moving vans known to a modern transfer business. It is a model in construction, ordered for the special purpose of moving furniture under cover, preventing the exposure of household goods to the weather while in transportation.

The People's Transfer Company makes a specialty of checking baggage at your residence to all parts of the United States. Their office is 418 Ninth street. Their telephone is 826.

The Press Clipping Bureau, 510 Montgomery street, San Francisco, furnishes all newspaper clippings on all subjects, business and personal.

Dames, the photographer, who recently was in business in Oakland, has opened a fine photographic establishment at 1116 Washington street. The firm's name is Dames & Dorsaz.

Adjudication of Insolvency.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT IN AND FOR the County of Alameda, State of California. In the matter of Martin M. Samson, an insolvent debtor.

Order of adjudication of insolvency.

Martin M. Samson having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, from which it appears that he is an insolvent debtor, the said Martin M. Samson is hereby declared to be insolvent. It is hereby ordered that Robert McKillican, Sheriff of Alameda County, be, and he is hereby appointed receiver of the property of said insolvent, and that upon his giving a bond to the People of the State of California, in the sum of $500 conditioned as required by law, and qualifying, he take charge and possession of all of the estate, real and personal, of said Martin M. Samson, insolvent debtor, whatsoever and wheresoever situate, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep and care for and dispose of the same until the appointment of an assignee of the estate. All persons having the same or any part thereof in his or their possession, are hereby directed to pay the same to said receiver, and that said receiver keep the said property, or the proceeds thereof, till the further order of this Court. And all persons are hereby forbidden to pay any debts to said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to such insolvent, to him, or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use, and the said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Superior Court of the County of Alameda, Department No. 1, in open court, at the courtroom of said court, in the county of Alameda, on the 21st day of January, 1895, at 10 o'clock A. M. of the day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered, that this order be published in the OAKLAND TRIBUNE, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the county of Alameda, as often as the said paper is published before the day set for the meeting of creditors.

And it is further ordered, that, in the meantime, all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

Dated December 12th, 1894.

RAIL RATES.

Comparisons Between Home and Foreign Lines.

What It Costs to Travel in European Cars.

Sleeping Car Fares in America Dearer Than Elsewhere.

New York Times.

Two recent publications—viz., the official guides respectively of the Compagnie Internationale des Wagons-Lits and the Guide Officiel des Voyageurs—possess an especial interest as giving an insight impossible to obtain without the most extensive personal journeying into the railroad systems of Europe, and suggest comparisons with our own. The French official guide is a pudgy little volume of something less than 1000 pages, containing not only the time tables of all railroads on the continent of Europe and North Africa, but also of the river and lake steamboats, with much interesting information in regard to the telegraph and postal services of the different countries, and many pages devoted to advertising and miscellaneous information. The Travelers' Official Guide to the railways in this country, published in New York, is more than double its size, without undertaking to give the same amount of information that is embraced in the foreign publication. This is a fair indication of the difference in the extent and detail of the two railway systems. The sleeping car guide is more suggestive, however. More than half its space is taken up with advertising, and the list of routes or lines embraced therein numbers just 100, covering the entire continent of Europe. Of these but sixty-one are sleeping car lines, some of which run but once or twice weekly and some only in the summer or winter season, as the case may be. The other thirty-nine lines are wagons-restaurant, in the dining cars upon which the charges for breakfast range from 6.50f. to 5f. and for dinner from 5f. to 7f., wine being extra. In the United States the number of sleeping car lines will not fall far short of 1000. The number of dining car lines is difficult to state, as many of them are operated by the individual railroad companies, while the majority are conducted by the Wagner and Pullman Companies. The usual charge in America is $1 per meal. In a few cases; however, luncheon and breakfast are charged at 75 cents, while the buffet cars, with meals served a la carte, appear to be coming much into favor.

The European center of travel, as of art and fashion, is Paris, and from the French capital diverge the most important lines. From London to Paris, the finest and fastest train is the famous Club train, leaving Victoria station at 9 p. m. and arriving at the Gard du Nord, Paris, at 10:47 p. m., traversing a total distance of 287 miles. This train is composed exclusively of first-class carriages, and the passenger is required to pay, in addition to the regular first-class fare of 72.20f., an excess fare of 18.75f., a total of 91.05f., or $18 20—a much higher rate than is charged upon any American train.

One of the principal fast express trains from Paris is the Sud express, which connects with the Club train from London, and makes the run of 902 miles to Madrid in twenty-eight hours, and the 1,015 miles to Lisbon in forty-four hours, the usual time by other trains being thirty-five and fifty-nine hours, respectively. The railroad fare from Paris to Madrid is 164.65f. first-class. The sleeping car fare is 82.30f. to Madrid and 107.50f. to Lisbon.

To compare with American Trunk lines, the distance from New York to Chicago by the New York Central line is 976 miles, 74 more than from Paris to Madrid. The fare is $20, $12 43 less than the European first class and $3 33 less than the second class for the shorter distance. The excess fare on the North Shore Limited is but $3, and the sleeping car fare but $5, or less than one-third of that from Paris to Madrid. The Mediterranean express is another fast train, which runs twice a week during the winter season between Paris and the Riviera via Marseilles, Nice and Monte Carlo—Vintimille being the terminus of the sleeping car line. It is 535 miles from Paris to Marseilles and 716 miles to Vintimille, the sleeping car fare to those points being respectively 45f and 60.50f. The distance from Paris to Marseilles is just about that from Chicago to Buffalo, and this train de luxe makes about the same time as the fast trains of the Michigan Central and Lake Shore, but the railroad fare is much higher in France, and the sleeping car fare is just three times as much.

The sleeping car fare from Chicago to Utica—738 miles—is $4, less than one-third that from Paris to Vintimille. So on, examples might be multiplied to demonstrate that in Europe, where the cost of living is in almost all things much cheaper than in this country, travelers are obliged to pay from 20 to 60 per cent higher for accommodations on the railroads:

For closer comparison, the charges of the sleeping car lines may be tabulated as follows:

Route.	Miles.	Sleeping-Car Fare.
Paris to Marseilles	535	$ 8 00
Chicago to Buffalo	543	3 00
Paris to Vintimille	716	12 10
Chicago to Utica	738	4 00
Paris to Vienna	871	7 00
Paris to Rome	901	15 50
Paris to Madrid	902	16 40
New York to Chicago	976	5 00
Boston to Chicago	1035	5 50
Paris to Lisbon	1016	21 46
Paris to Brindisi	1331	17 00
St. Louis to Portland	1332	7 00

The comparisons, it will be observed, are very much in favor of the American railroads.

RAIL RATES.

Comparisons Between Home and Foreign Lines.

What It Costs to Travel in European Cars.

Sleeping Car Fares in America Dearer Than Elsewhere.

New York Times.

Two recent publications—viz., the official guides respectively of the Compagnie Internationale des Wagons-Lits and the Guide Officiel des Voyageurs—possess an especial interest as giving an insight impossible to obtain without the most extensive personal journeying into the railroad systems of Europe, and suggest comparisons with our own. The French official guide is a pudgy little volume of something less than 1000 pages, containing not only the time tables of all railroads on the continent of Europe and North Africa, but also of the river and lake steamboats, with much interesting information in regard to the telegraph and postal services of the different countries, and many pages devoted to advertising and miscellaneous information. The Travelers' Official Guide to the railways in this country, published in New York, is more than double its size, without undertaking to give the same amount of information that is embraced in the foreign publication. This is a fair indication of the difference in the extent and detail of the two railway systems. The sleeping car guide is more suggestive, however. More than half its space is taken up with advertising, and the list of routes or lines embraced therein numbers just 100, covering the entire continent of Europe. Of these but sixty-one are sleeping car lines, some of which run but once or twice weekly and some only in the summer or winter season, as the case may be. The other thirty-nine lines are wagons-restaurant, in the dining cars upon which the charges for breakfast range from 3.50f. to 5f. and for dinner from 5f. to 7f., wine being extra. In the United States the number of sleeping car lines will not fall far short of 1000. The number of dining car lines is difficult to state, as many of them are operated by the individual railroad companies, while the majority are conducted by the Wagner and Pullman Companies. The usual charge in America is $1 per meal. In a few cases; however, luncheon and breakfast are charged at 75 cents, while the buffet cars, with meals served a la carte, appear to be coming much into favor.

The European center of travel, as of art and fashion, is Paris, and from the French capital diverge the most important lines. From London to Paris, the finest and fastest train is the famous Club train, leaving Victoria station at 8 P. M. and arriving at the Gard du Nord, Paris, at 10:47 P. M., traversing a total distance of 287 miles. This train is composed exclusively of first-class carriages, and the passenger is required to pay, in addition to the regular first-class fare of 72.30f., an excess fare of 18.75f., a total of 91.05f., or $18 20—a much higher rate than is charged upon any American train.

One of the principal fast express trains from Paris is the Sud express, which connects with the Club train from London, and makes the run of 992 miles to Madrid in twenty-eight hours, and the 1316 miles to Lisbon in forty-four hours, the usual time by other trains being thirty-five and fifty-nine hours, respectively. The railroad fare from Paris to Madrid is 164.65f. first-class. The sleeping car fare is $2.20f. to Madrid and 107.50f. to Lisbon.

To compare with American trunk lines, the distance from New York to Chicago by the New York Central line is 976 miles, 74 more than from Paris to Madrid. The fare is $20, $12 43 less than the European first class and $3 33 less than the second class for the shorter distance. The excess fare on the North Shore Limited is but $3, and the sleeping car fare but $5, or less than one-third of that from Paris to Madrid. The Mediterranean express is another fast train, which runs twice a week during the winter season between Paris and the Riviera via Marseilles, Nice and Monte Carlo—Vintimille being the terminus of the sleeping car line. It is 555 miles from Paris to Marseilles and 716 miles to Vintimille, the sleeping car fare to these points being respectively 45f and 60.50f. The distance from Paris to Marseilles is just about that from Chicago to Buffalo, and this train de luxe makes about the same time as the fast trains of the Michigan Central and Lake Shore, but the railroad fare is much higher in France, and the sleeping car fare is just three times as much.

The sleeping car fare from Chicago to Utica—738 miles—is $1, less than one-third that from Paris to Vintimille. So on, examples might be multiplied to demonstrate that in Europe, where the cost of living is in almost all things much cheaper than in this country, travelers are obliged to pay from 20 to 60 per cent higher for accommodations on the railroads:

For closer comparison, the charges of the sleeping car lines may be tabulated as follows:

Route.	Miles.	Sleeping-Car Fare.
Paris to Marseilles	555	$ 9 00
Chicago to Buffalo	536	3 00
Paris to Vintimille	716	12 10
Chicago to Utica	738	4 00
Paris to Vienna	871	7 60
Paris to Rome	901	15 50
Paris to Madrid	992	16 16
New York to Chicago	976	5 00
Boston to Chicago	1035	5 50
Paris to Lisbon	1316	21 46
Paris to Brindisi	1351	17 00
St. Louis to Portland	1342	7 00

The comparisons, it will be observed, are very much in favor of the American railroads.

Hotel for Invalids.

E. H. WOOLSEY, M. D.
SURGEON AND PHYSICIAN IN CHIEF,

Twelfth Street, Bet. Madison & Jackson
OAKLAND, CAL.

This Institution is healthfully, pleasantly and conveniently located, occupying an entire block in a quiet neighborhood, surrounded by elegant private residences; and yet within four blocks of the Central Pacific and Narrow Gauge railroads, and accessible to their stations by the Brooklyn street cars.

The accommodations are perfect. The wards and private rooms are large, sunny, well ventilated and appropriately furnished.

The building exteriorly, together with the ground, is attractive; interiorly the woodwork is of solid and carved walnut, the mantels of purest Italian marble and design, and the walls decorated with exquisite frescoes.

The Hospital Section, comprising Surgical, Medical, and Convalescent Wards, is separated from the Section for Invalids, each department being provided with special corridors, bath-rooms, electrical appliances. Dr. Louis Weigert's hot air treatment for diseases of the lungs, etc.

Steam, Medical and Electric Baths, and all the appointments of a first-class Hospital, and all the requirements, conveniences and comforts of a Private Home for Invalids are here provided.

The matron is an experienced nurse, and the nurses and attendants (male and female) are well trained and reliable.

Cranks of All Sorts Invade the Capital.

Washington's Monument Is a Favored Spot.

One Individual Insisted That He Could Push It Over.

Washington is the Mecca of cranks, and the Monument seems to be their principal shrine. Even the White House is not as attractive to them as the great white shaft which, from its vantage point on the Potomac flats, plays billiards with the clouds. It can be seen for miles around and seems to attract cranks as a candle does moths. The watchmen have become accustomed to this gentry, and so long as they appear to be quiet and well disposed they usually deal gently with them, however wild their ideas. One man they tell of, says the Washington Post, declared that the monument was built of human skulls and bones, and persisted in pointing out the faces of friends in the stones; but perhaps the oddest specimen on record happened down there the other day.

When the watchman first observed him he was leaning heavily against the shaft, apparently pushing with all his might. At least he would push for a while, and then he would walk around to the other side, apparently to see if there were any people there.

The watchman watched this proceeding for a while and then accosted him.

"Beg pardon; you aren't going to push it over, are you?"

"I could if I wanted to," responded the man; then, with immense dignity, "My name is Samson."

"Oh, the strong man?" ventured the watchman, sizing up the man, who was about five feet five and not, apparently, very muscular. "Let me see, you were down at Kernan's Theater a few weeks ago, weren't you?"

"No, sir!" replied the man, sternly. "I am the reincarnated Samson of Biblical times; the one who overthrew the Philistines, slaying thousands with the jawbone of an ass, and afterward pulling down the pillars of the Temple. Why, it would be mere child's play for me to upset this puny monument."

"Well, I wouldn't do it if I were you," expostulated the watchman, mildly. "You see, this is in memory of Washington; probably you have never heard of him, as he was a little after your time; but we moderns think a good deal of him. Then it cost the Government a good deal of money and took a good many years to build this monument, and a good many people would consider it unkind of you to destroy it. Take me, for instance. I am hired to watch it, and of course you would throw me out of a job. Besides, you might hurt somebody."

"No. I was very careful to look on the other side first," said the man. "But perhaps you think I can't do it. Now you just look up and see me shake it."

The watchman was agreeable. Now, it is a fact that when one stands directly at the base of the monument it appears to be toppling over. This is, of course, an optical delusion, caused by the clouds moving overhead, but it impressed the crank with his power.

"Did you see me shake it?" he inquired triumphantly.

"Yes," responded the watchman solemnly, "but I wouldn't do so any more. You might weaken the foundations, even if you didn't push it over. Besides, here comes a crowd of people, and not knowing who you are they might laugh at you. Then you would have to push it over to prove it to them."

"That's so," said the crank, and bidding the watchman good-day he departed and has not been seen about the monument since.

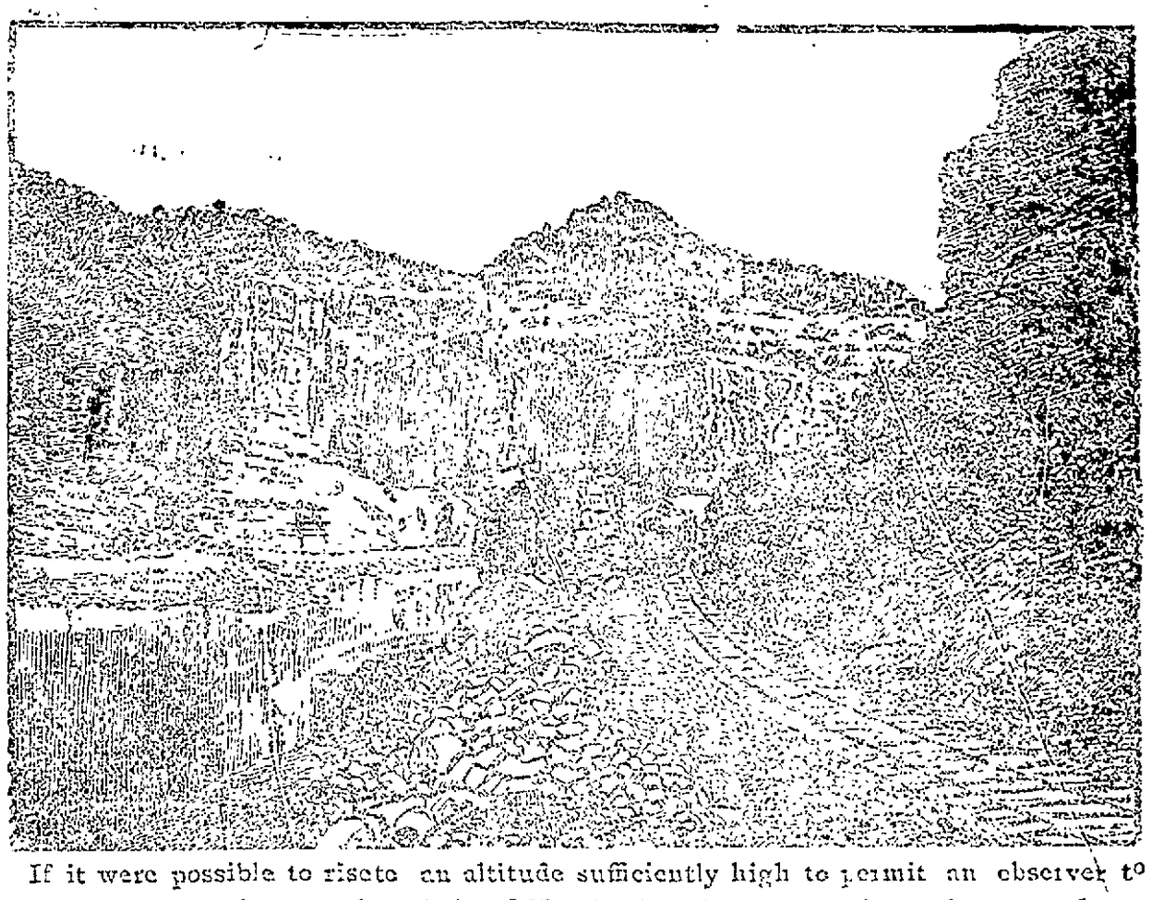
A Panorama of America!



If it were possible to locate an altitude sufficiently high to permit an observer to view through a telescope the whole of North America at one time, what a wondrous spectable would meet his gaze. Beautiful as it might appear, yet the vision would not be half so satisfactory as that which is afforded by the Great Pictographic Portfolio,

Glimpses of America

Which THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE is now distributing among its subscribers. It is a grand procession of scenic wonderlands pictorially presented in a realism that is bewilderingly charming. By means of this most exquisite of all art works, the reader is carried in his easy rocking-chair to

All the Picturesque Regions of Our Country,

From sunny lands where zephyrs are redolent with the breath of orange blooms regions where frosted peaks catch the gleams from Ithuriel's spears and bathe glacial rivers in a light that rises from behind the polar throne. By its magic pages we are taken across the great plains into the heart of the mighty Rockies, and set down amid the witchery of chaotic nature. Thence to the Yosemite, and the wondrous Northwest to Alaska's icy climes. Back again over mountainous ways to Yellowstone Park, then on by Minnehaha's laughing waters to Superior's pictured shores, by Niagara's raging flood to the deep forests, mountains, rivers and gorges of Canada and the Northwest.

Cranks of All Sorts Invade the Capital.

Washington's Monument Is a Favored Spot.

One Individual Insisted That He Could Push It Over.

Washington is the Mecca of cranks, and the Monument seems to be their principal shrine. Even the White House is not as attractive to them as the great white shaft which, from its vantage point on the Potomac flats, plays billiards with the clouds. It can be seen for miles around and seems to attract cranks as a candle does moths. The watchmen have become accustomed to this gentry, and so long as they appear to be quiet and well disposed they usually deal gently with them, however wild their ideas. One man they tell of, says the Washington Post, declared that the monument was built of human skulls and bones, and persisted in pointing out the faces of friends in the stones; but perhaps the oddest specimen on record happened down there the other day.

When the watchman first observed him he was leaning heavily against the shaft, apparently pushing with all his might. At least he would push for a while, and then he would walk around to the other side, apparently to see if there were any people there.

The watchman watched this proceeding for a while and then accosted him.

"Beg pardon; you aren't going to push it over, are you?"

"I could if I wanted to," responded the man; then, with immense dignity, "My name is Samson."

"Oh, the strong man?" ventured the watchman, sizing up the man, who was about five feet five and not, apparently, very muscular. "Let me see, you were down at Kernan's Theater a few weeks ago, weren't you?"

"No, sir!" replied the man, sternly, "I am the reincarnated Samson of Biblical times; the one who overthrew the Philistines, slaying thousands with the jawbone of an ass, and afterwards pulling down the pillars of the Temple. Why, it would be mere child's play for me to upset this puny monument."

"Well, I wouldn't do it if I were you," expostulated the watchman, mildly. "You see, this is in memory of Washington; probably you have never heard of him, as he was a little after your time; but we moderns think a good deal of him. Then it cost the Government a good deal of money and took a good many years to build this monument, and a good many people would consider it unkind of you to destroy it. Take me, for instance. I am hired to watch it, and of course you would throw me out of a job. Besides, you might hurt somebody."

"No. I was very careful to look on the other side first," said the man, "But perhaps you think I can't do it. Now you just look up and see me shake it."

The watchman was agreeable. Now, it is a fact that when one stands directly at the base of the monument it appears to be toppling over. This is, of course, an optical delusion, caused by the clouds moving overhead, but it impressed the crank with his power.

"Did you see me shake it?" he inquired triumphantly.

"Yes," responded the watchman solemnly, "but I wouldn't do so any more. You might weaken the foundations, even if you didn't push it over. Besides, here comes a crowd of people, and not knowing who you are they might laugh at you. Then you would have to push it over to prove it to them."

"That's so," said the crank, and bidding the watchman good-day he departed and has not been seen about the monument since.

PRECIOUS GEMS.

An Expert Talks About the Many Varieties.

Counterfeits of Opals Are Well Nigh Impossible.

"The Stone of Death" Fast Coming Into Favor Again.

D. Earl of Sydney, Australia, is a dealer in precious stones.

In conversation with a St. Louis reporter Mr. Earl said: "I have been engaged in the precious stone business for the past twenty-five years, and for the past nine years have been a resident of Australia. Three-fourths of my time is spent in traveling, as I annually make a business tour of the world. I deal in pearls, opals, sapphires, emeralds and rubies, all of which, with the exception of pearls, I purchase in Australia and New South Wales.

The pearl is found in large quantities in St. George's Sound, off the Australian coast, and in the Indian Ocean, near the Island of Ceylon. Speaking of the popular gems, do you know that the opal, around which so much superstition has been cast, is coming into popular favor, and today more of these beautiful gems are sold in this country than any other stone, except the gem of gems, the diamond.

"About nine years ago the Australian opal was first placed on the market. Previous to that time those from Hungary were considered the finest, but the more beautiful and delicate tints and a greater variegation of colors of the Australian opal have won for it the supremacy above all others.

"Of all stones the opal is the only one that cannot be successfully counterfeited. The delicacy of its tints has proved too difficult of imitation, and all attempts to reproduce that gem artificially have resulted in failures.

"There are two kinds of opals, the sandstone and the matrix. Of these the former is found imbedded in a formation of sandstone and the latter in an ironstone formation. Very often, in breaking the crusts, the gem is partially broken or destroyed.

"In Russia the opal is still called the stone of death and few are worn, and in England, too, the people look upon it with disfavor. The unlucky significance attached to this most beautiful stone is due to Sir Walter Scott, who, in one of his novels, wrote of it so unfavorably that for a long time few could be induced to wear them.

"The majority of persons think that all sapphires are blue in color, but many are found in gray, pink, white and brown. The sapphire is found in many countries, but it is only the Oriental stone which is of various colors. The white sapphire is of the least value, and the brown is often mistaken for a topaz; those of other colors, however, are of nearly equal value. In some of these gems a peculiar formation known as the star is found. This increases its value to a large extent, and when cut so as to reveal this peculiarity a perfect star of six or eight points is brought into prominence. The sapphire is not a favorite stone. During the day its blue depths are beauteous to behold, but at night the stone presents a blackish appearance.

"On the other hand, the emerald is among the most popular of the precious stones, but I doubt if a perfect stone of this kind can be found. In the best of emeralds a close examination will reveal what the lapidaries term 'feathers,' which destroy its brilliancy to some extent. Emeralds bring a better price than diamonds where the stone is of two or more carats in weight.

"The duty on precious stones has been increased since the Wilson bill became a law. Formerly the uncut stones were admitted free, and upon the cut and polished stones a duty of 10 per cent was imposed. Now the duty is 10 per cent on uncut gems and 25 per cent on finished stones. The dealers will therefore increase the price of the various gems to meet the additional increase in cost."

BITS OF GOSSIP.

The Grand Duke of Baden, who has shown his anger at the dismissal of Count von Captivi, is the most popular and influential ruler in all Germany. He is the Emperor's uncle.

Governor John Gary Evans of South Carolina is the youngest man who ever filled that office in that State. He is 31. The newly elected Attorney General of the State, W. A. Barber, had been practicing law barely four years, and is not yet 25, while the Adjutant General Watts has just reached that age.

Dr. Parkhurst, the energetic reformer of New York City was a Massachusetts boy. He was reared on the rocky hills of Worcester county, where likely enough his favorite recreation, Alpine climbing, was formed. Parkhurst pere was a schoolmaster, who ran a farm summers and taught school winters. The family removing to Clinton, Charles had further schooling and then went into a dry goods store. But the boy had an ambition to become a student and finally went back to school and prepared for college. He graduated from Amherst in the class of '66.

That the Emperor and Empress of Russia are starting in right is manifested by their walking about the streets of St. Petersburg quite like ordinary people and making such purchases in the shops as tempt the bride's fancy.

It is said that the only lineal descendant of John Knox, the Scotch reformer, is a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross at Notre Dame.—New York Tribune.

Professor Leyden, the famous German physician, who was called to attend the dying Emperor of Russia, received $50,000 for his fee.

Queen Victoria did more than President Cleveland. In her message to President Dole of Hawaii she commended the new republic to the protection of the Almighty.

M. Ernst Carnot, son of the late President of France, who is an engineer, has been appointed private secretary of M. Picard, who is Commissioner General of the Paris Exposition of 1900.

PRECIOUS GEMS.

An Expert Talks About the Many Varieties.

Counterfeits of Opals Are Well Nigh Impossible.

"The Stone of Death" Fast Coming Into Favor Again.

D. Earl of Sydney, Australia, is a dealer in precious stones.

In conversation with a St. Louis reporter Mr. Earl said: "I have been engaged in the precious stone business for the past twenty-five years, and for the past nine years have been a resident of Australia. Three-fourths of my time is spent in traveling, as I annually make a business tour of the world. I deal in pearls, opals, sapphires, emeralds and rubies, all of which, with the exception of pearls, I purchase in Australia and New South Wales.

"No pearl is found in large quantities in St. George's Sound, off the Australian coast, and in the Indian Ocean, near the Island of Ceylon. Speaking of the popular gems, do you know that the opal, around which so much superstition has been cast, is coming into popular favor, and today more of these beautiful gems are sold in this country than any other stone, except the gem of gems, the diamond.

"About nine years ago the Australian opal was first placed on the market. Previous to that time those from Hungary were considered the finest, but the more beautiful and delicate tints and a greater variegation of colors of the Australian opal have won for it the supremacy above all others.

"Of all stones the opal is the only one that cannot be successfully counterfeited. The delicacy of its tints has proved too difficult of imitation, and all attempts to reproduce that gem artificially have resulted in failures.

"There are two kinds of opals, the sandstone and the matrix. Of these the former is found imbedded in a formation of sandstone and the latter in an ironstone formation. Very often, in breaking the crusts, the gem is partially broken or destroyed.

"In Russia the opal is still called the stone of death and few are worn, and in England, too, the people look upon it with disfavor. The unlucky significance attached to this most beautiful stone is due to Sir Walter Scott, who, in one of his novels, wrote of it so unfavorably that for a long time few could be induced to wear them.

"The majority of persons think that all sapphires are blue in color, but many are found in gray, pink, white and brown. The sapphire is found in many countries, but it is only the Oriental stone which is of various colors. The white sapphire is of the least value, and the brown is often mistaken for a topaz; those of other colors, however, are of nearly equal value. In some of these gems a peculiar formation known as the star is found. This increases its value to a large extent, and when cut so as to reveal this peculiarity a perfect star of six or eight points is brought into prominence. The sapphire is not a favorite stone. During the day its blue depths are beauteous to behold, but at night the stone presents a blackish appearance.

"On the other hand, the emerald is among the most popular of the precious stones, but I doubt if a perfect stone of this kind can be found. In the best of emeralds a close examination will reveal what the lapidaries term 'feathers,' which destroy its brilliancy to some extent. Emeralds bring a better price than diamonds where the stone is of two or more carats in weight.

"The duty on precious stones has been increased since the Wilson bill became a law. Formerly the uncut stones were admitted free, and upon the cut and polished stones a duty of 10 per cent was imposed. Now the duty is 10 per cent on uncut gems and 25 per cent on finished stones. The dealers will therefore increase the price of the various gems to meet the additional increase in cost."

BITS OF GOSSIP.

The Grand Duke of Baden, who has shown his anger at the dismissal of Count von Caprivi, is the most popular and influential ruler in all Germany. He is the Emperor's uncle.

Governor John Gary Evans of South Carolina is the youngest man who ever filled that office in that State. He is 31. The newly elected Attorney General of the State, W. A. Barber, had been practicing law barely four years, and is not yet 25, while the Adjutant General Watts has just reached that age.

Dr. Parkhurst, the energetic reformer of New York City was a Massachusetts boy. He was reared on the rocky hills of Worcester county, where likely enough his favorite recreation, Alpine climbing, was formed. Parkhurst pere was a schoolmaster, who ran a farm summers and taught school winters. The family removing to Clinton, Charles had further schooling and then went into a dry goods store. But the boy had an ambition to become a student and finally went back to school and prepared for college. He graduated from Amherst in the class of '66.

That the Emperor and Empress of Russia are starting in right is manifested by their walking about the streets of St. Petersburg quite like ordinary people and making such purchases in the shops as tempt the bride's fancy.

It is said that the only lineal descendant of John Knox, the Scotch reformer, is a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross at Notre Dame.—New York Tribune.

Professor Leyden, the famous German physician, who was called to attend the dying Emperor of Russia, received $50,000 for his fee.

Queen Victoria did more than President Cleveland. In her message to President Dole of Hawaii she commended the new republic to the protection of the Almighty.

M. Ernst Carnot, son of the late President of France, who is an engineer, has been appointed private secretary of M. Picard, who is Commissioner General of the Paris Exposition of 1900.

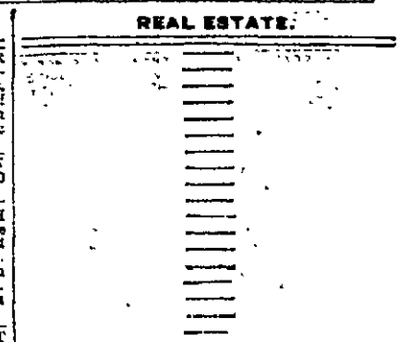
REAL ESTATE.



$3850—8½ ACRES AT UPPER FRUITvale, one-half mile of Hermitage; house and barn and fruit trees, nicely situated; this place must be sold. It is a very desirable little home. M. J. LAYMANCE & CO., 466 Eighth street, Oakland. A. B-1

160 ACRES OF LAND AT $6.50 PER ACRE, in Alameda County, within about five miles of the Cresta Blanca vineyard, Livermore. The property is sacrificed in order to make an immediate sale. Anyone wanting to invest in Alameda County land could not possibly do better than to investigate this property, as it can be easily sold off into subdivisions at four times the price. M. J. LAYMANCE & CO., 466 Eighth street, Oakland.

SIX ACRES AT HAYWARDS, ONE MILE of postoffice; a highly improved ranch, covered entirely with full bearing fruit trees of different varieties, all healthy and in the best of condition; the place is beautifully situated just east of town; has a neat cottage of five rooms, splendid stable and all farming implements, including a fine two-horse wagon and harness. This place has been thoroughly investigated by our representative and we can thoroughly recommend it as being a bargain. Having been reduced from $6000 to $5000 $2000 can remain on mortgage. M. J. LAYMANCE & CO., 466 Eighth street, Oakland.

$500—WORTH $900, CHOICE LOT ON Piedmont avenue, adjoining Linda Vista Terrace, surrounded by fine improvements; sidewalk down; easy terms. Inquire at once. M. J. LAYMANCE & CO., 466 Eighth street, Oakland.
